'Uncle John' Sickles Came to Springfield in 1869 When Ozarks Metropolis Was Small Trading Post

WILLOW SPRINGS, Mo., Sept. 8.—Forty-six years of railroading with the St. Louis, San Francisco railway system, years of service through rain, sleet and snow, years of going at a moment's notice, perhaps at night through storms when the road beds were new and wrecks were frequent. These have been the life of "Uncle" John Sickles, a little sandy haired, blue eyed Irishman, watchman of the Frisco crossing here.

HELPED BUILD FRISCO

As his mind unfailingly drifted back across the years, Uncle John told how he and hundreds of other Irishmen fought, drank and helped build the Springfield-Memphis division of the Frisco system.

Born August 2, 1858 in Jackson county, Ohio, Uncle John, with his parents, moved to Springfield, Mo., in October, 1869. Springfield was not much of a town when he first arrived there, he said, although the Frisco had not started building in Springfield, they were working near Lebanon, Mo., and did not begin operations in Springfield until the following year.

BEGAN IN 1881

It was in October, 1881, that he started working for the road and he has been with the Frisco ever since.

Not once during his 46 years of service has he missed signing his name on the pay check. This, he believes, is another record for the Frisco. Not only has he drawn every check for the 46 years, but he has managed to save about one-half the money he has earned during that time.

He is the father of four children, three of whom are employed with the Frisco: John I. Sickles, maintenance clerk and, Crestle Sickles, secretary to the division engineer, both at Memphis, and Lilly Sickles, clerk to the assistant superintendent at Newburg.

youth, however, had apparently been dead several minutes.

The stepfather was unable to give a reason for his son not answering him. Earlier in the evening Young Madden had told them that he planned to go fishing.

J. T. Ekins, who lives next door, said he heard the youth come into the rear door.

HEAR PANS FALL

The father said that he was awakened when pans fell from a table in the kitchen. He said that he and the youth's mother had just gone to bed after returning from the business district.

"I was certain that it was a burglar when no answer came to my reply," the grief stricken father said. "I thought as much of Ray as anyone could of his own son."

Shortly after the shooting, police arrived at the home and took Elias to headquarters. He was not placed under arrest.

MOTHER PROSTRATED

Young Madden was an employe of the Karchmer Tire company.

The mother was prostrate last night at her home. A physician was called to attend her.

MAN IS FREED AFTER KILLING YOUNG STEPSON

Vivid Drama Enacted at Inquest as Man Depicts Tragic Deed in Home

THOUGHT LAD BURGLAR

Firing High, He Believed, Gropes to Body and Discovers Terrible Mistake

A black cloud of tragedy hung over municipal court this morning as a coroner's jury investigated the death of Ray Madden, 18, who was shot and killed by his stepfather late Saturday night when mistaken for a burglar at his home, 801 South Kansas avenue.

From the boy's broken mother, his grief-stricken stepfather and his brother-pal, Ralph, who tried bravely to keep the tears back as he comforted his mother, the jury heard how the tragedy occurred, and this noon returned a verdict declaring the shooting accidental and absolving O. M. Bliss, the stepfather, of all blame.

Tells Tragic Story

First to take the stand at the inquest was Mr. Bliss, a middle-aged mild-mannered man, his face lined and twisted by the horror of Saturday night. Briefly he told the story in his own way, rushing ahead without questioning as if he feared a breakdown before he left the stand.

It was shortly after midnight, he said, and he and his wife had retired. Mrs. Bliss heard footsteps on the driveway beside the house; heard someone going toward the rear door of the house.

"My wife shouted at me to get up, that someone was coming into the house. I raised up, and saw a shadow enter the house, pass through the kitchen. 'Where's the gun?' I shouted. 'Who's there?' 'Get out!' There wasn't any answer; only that movement in the kitchen. I found my gun and loaded it.

"My God!" my wife screamed, "he's going into Ralph's room. Maybe he'll kill him!" "No," I said, "no—that couldn't be." I walked toward the kitchen. "Who's there?" I shouted.

"My baby boy."

"The form seemed to be down near the light," I shouted again, but there was no answer. I shot—right. I thought, "Someone screamed and fell."

"My wife was half crazy, shouting that it might be the boy. I fumbled around and found the light. It was—

Mother a Wan Figure

That was all he could tell. Sobs wracked his body, and Coroner Jewel Windle mercifully allowed him to leave the stand.

Mrs. Bliss, a dismal little figure in a small tight hat and black coat, sat near the rear of the court room, crying softly. She didn't have to take the stand, but she wanted to get the awful story off her mind. Her story was the same her husband had related.

A note left by the boy the morning before his death, telling his mother he planned a fishing trip and would not be home Saturday night, was shown to the jury. Ralph, the young brother, took the stand to identify the signature.

Neighbors were called as witnesses—Mrs. Sarah Gowman of 736 South Kansas avenue and Tom and Charles Ekins, 815 South Kansas avenue—to testify of the shouting they heard at the Bliss home a moment before the fatal shot. They told of throwing on clothing and running to the house, and there finding Mrs. Bliss hysterical, holding her son's head in her lap.

No Drinking, Says Pal

"It's no use," she was screaming, "he's dead!"

A Starne ambulance took the boy away, to the hospital where a doctor found him lifeless.

Orville Reeter, Jarrett Junior High student, who was Ray's companion the night of his death, was questioned by the coroner. He and his friend had not been drinking, he testified. They abandoned their fishing trip because the lights on their car failed, he said, adding that he could not understand why Ray failed to answer his father's cries.

B. C. Ramsey, 609 West Harrison street, who operates a barber shop in the neighborhood, told of Ray visiting his shop early the night of the shooting. He appeared perfectly normal to Mr. Ramsey.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Starne mortuary. The Reverend Lewis Hale, pastor of the First Baptist church, will conduct the service, and burial will be in Eastlawn cemetery.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

STEELVILLE, Mo., is the home town of John T. Woodruff, Springfield attorney and builder, and it was there he started his career in the legal professions. Mr. Woodruff was born in Franklin county but when he was a small boy his father moved to Crawford county, of which Steelville is county seat. There Mr. Woodruff attended the old Steelville academy and studied law in the office of Ferdinand M. Jamison.

Woodruff

In 1896 Mr. Woodruff left the old home town to become attorney for the Frisco railroad. For a time he returned frequently for visits, then 20 years elapsed before he was there again. That was last June when the former students of the old Steelville academy had a big reunion and gathered from many towns and states.

There were many distinguished members of the reunion. Twelve lawyers were present, including Circuit Judge William E. Barton of Houston; Circuit Judge R. A. Breuer of Gasconade county; Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City and Judge J. N. Springer of the supreme court of Oklahoma. Dr. John Zarhoskey of St. Louis, reputed to be a millionaire and the builder of the resort hotel, Idlewild, at Steelville, was another prominent old grad of the academy.

"The thing that impressed me most on my return was the enormous height the trees in the court house lawn had reached," said Mr. Woodruff. "As a young man I thought the two-story brick court house was a building of fair height. But those trees about it had grown so tall they towered above it and the building looked positively flat."

"Steelville is a pretty and pic-as an immense spring with a clear stream that winds through the valley. The town itself is nestled among the hills."

Pioneer Woman of Ozarks Expires Among Early Scene. of Joy, G

'Aunt Mary' Jones, Who Saw Husband Shot From Ambush By a Civil War Enemy, Is Buried in Hills She Loved

Special to The News

EVERTON, Mo., Sept. 12.—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Jones, pioneer resident of the Ozarks, were held at Sinking Creek church, two miles from Everton, with burial in the cemetery there yesterday afternoon. She died at her home near here late Monday night.

Mrs. Jones saw much of the history of this section in the making and shared the adventures of the early residents of the Ozarks. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Recker, who came to the Ozarks when there were very few settlers and wild animals roamed the hills.

WAR BRINGS PROSPERITY

"Aunt Mary" Jones she was called by friends who knew her for miles about. She enjoyed good health throughout her life and her death followed an illness of only a few days from pneumonia.

In 1862 she was married to John M. Jones, a school teacher, who later became associated with his father in the merchandise business. They established a general store at Cross Roads, the town which later moved to the Frisco railroad line and named Everton, and at Dilday's Mill where they did a prosperous business.

KILLED BY 'COWARD'

When the Civil War broke out and Southwest Missouri became a hot bed of the conflict, Mr. Jones became convinced it was unsafe to stay at home and attend to his business affairs so he went to Dadeville and joined the state militia. He returned home and expected to go to war the next day but one of his close friends who also had joined the militia and expected to return the second day persuaded Mr. Jones to wait for him so they could go together.

But Mr. Jones never returned to the militia for about noon on the next day when he was out in the field washing his face, preparing for the noon day meal some "unknown coward" shot him from the brush near by.

SAW HUSBAND KILLED

Mrs. Jones was coming from the spring with her hands full of vessels when she saw her husband fall. She dropped them and ran to her husband, caught him by his coat as he fell on his face, but he never spoke to her as she turned him over.

Thus Mrs. Jones was left a widow in the section where war raged. Many times it was necessary for her to get on her horse, and it was the fashion then for women to ride side saddles, and go 15 miles to Greenfield for her mail and groceries.

The war became so hot she decided to leave the old home and she, with some women relatives of her husband, took what few belongings the war had left and packed them in an old ox wagon and started for Arkansas.

MARRIED HUSBAND'S BROTHER

The trip was tiresome and dangerous. Once a rain storm overtook them and lightning struck a tree in front of the wagon, knocking both oxen down and stunning the occupants of the wagon. After the war Mrs. Jones returned to Missouri. Twelve years after the death of her first husband, Mrs. Jones married his brother, W. C. Jones.

Mrs. Jones had two children by her first marriage, William M. and J. M. Jones and two by her second marriage, Mrs. Julia Bullington and George A. Jones, all of whom live in Dade county.

Elson-Nicholson

Marriage

The marriage of Miss Kathleen Elson to Mr. Jonathan Nicholson took place Tuesday evening at the home of the officiating minister, the Reverend Lewis M. Hale, 455 South avenue.

Mrs. Nicholson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Elson of Walnut Grove. Mr. Nicholson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nicholson of Ash Grove, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson will make their home at Grays Summit, Mo.

NOT because it is customary to thank the good people for their valuable assistance both during the sickness and burial of Mary E. Jones our precious beloved mother and grandmother, therefore we as her children and grandchildren do from the very depth of our hearts desire to extend our sincere heart-felt thanks to each and every one that was so kind to us and her at that time. We also feel very grateful to the ones that worked so hard and faithful in digging her grave, and also to Brother Crank of Greenfield, Mo., for the many kind words of condolence given us during the devotional exercises so ably conducted by

THE FAMILY.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

THE big steamboats and the big brewery are the two most vivid impressions Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, vice president of the W. C. T. U. has of her old home town of St. Louis.

As a small child Mrs. Burger frequently rode on the steamboats that pilled up and down the Mississippi river, for her grandfather was a steamboat captain. But she never was inside the brewery which she remembers as one of the attractions pointed out to visitors in St. Louis.

"I remember people talking about the big brewery and asking visitors to the city if they had seen it much as people in Colorado Springs would ask tourists if they had seen Pike's Peak," said Mrs. Burger.

"I didn't even know what a brewery was. I never was inside of it and so far as I know none of my family ever was. It was, however, the most important thing in the eyes of most people of St. Louis in that day."

Mrs. Burger lived in St. Louis until she was six years of age and frequently returns to the city on visits. Her next trip there will be September 28 when she will speak before the Federated W. C. T. U. of St. Louis.

Mary Jones, Pioneer of Ozarks, Died At Everton

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Jones, pioneer Ozark woman, better known to her acquaintances as "Aunt Mary," were held yesterday afternoon at Sinking Creek church, near Everton.

Mrs. Jones, left a widow when her husband was shot down in his doorway during the Civil war, saw much of the colorful history of the Ozarks.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rector, who settled in the Ozarks when the howl of wild animals was still familiar to the few scattered residents. She married John M. Jones, a school teacher and later a merchant, and they established a store at Cross Roads. The town was later moved to the Frisco railroad line and named Everton.

Mr. Jones had joined the militia and had come home for a day before going on to the fighting line, when some unknown person shot him before the eyes of his wife. The war raged so terrifically about this district that Mrs. Jones decided to go to Arkansas.

She packed all her belongings in an ox cart and started on the long, tiresome trip. A rainstorm overtook stunned her. After the close of the war Mrs. Jones returned to Missouri, where, 12 years after the death of her husband, she married his brother, W. C. Jones.

Mrs. Jones is survived by two children by her first marriage, William M. and J. M. Jones, and two by her second, Mrs. Julia Brinkman and George A. Jones, all of whom live in Laclede county.

The court after a brief recess adjourned for September 19. The court says to plead."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

SAM TRIMBLE, vice president and cashier of the Union National bank goes back to his old home town about twice a month for it is only 40 miles from Springfield. That town is Seymour and Mr. Trimble has never lost interest in its progress. There are several old timers he always visits if he has time on his trips there and he knows virtually everyone who has lived in Webster county many years.

Trimble

Mr. Trimble's grandfather was one of the earliest settlers of Webster county, coming there from Kentucky. Mr. Trimble was graduated from the Seymour High school and was in the banking business there nine years. He still owns a farm near there and also an interest in the S. C. Trimble and Company General Merchandise store, established by his grandfather and father in 1883.

"If I worship any heroes at all it is the old settlers of the Ozarks," says Mr. Trimble. "There are no better people on earth and when I go back to Seymour I always hunt up the oldest people there if I have any time. It is a sad thing to me that I don't see many of the old timers there any more for they are gone."

Mr. Trimble frequently stops to talk with a distant cousin, "Uncle John" Freeman, who is in his 96th year and lives at Seymour. He also always inquires about "Uncle Billy" George who is more than 80 years old and tells stirring stories of his experiences in the battle of Wilson Creek. Then there is "Uncle Tom" Cardwell and Dave Good and many other old settlers he is pleased to call his good friends.

Mr. Trimble is an ardent booster of the Ozarks and he also cherishes the traditions of the section. He believes that homecomings, reunions and other gatherings of Ozarkers which give the people pride in their heritage from a stalwart race of pioneers should be encouraged.

The farming which Mr. Trimble carries on at Seymour is among his chief hobbies. He insists that he really is a farmer and absolutely is not an "agriculturist."

With Baby in Her Arms

A smiling baby sat in the arms of a thin little girl-mother, who told the judge in a clear, unfaltering voice a story of desertion and faithlessness on the part of her husband. She was granted the divorce.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

PADUCAH, Ky., is the home town of John W. Byng, head of the Springfield Credit Exchange. Paducah already has been made famous as a home town by Irvin S. Cobb and it happens that Mr. Byng knew the distinguished writer in the days when they were learning the multiplication tables. "Cobb was in the class ahead of me," said Mr. Byng, "but the schools were crowded and several grades in the same room and we were really school mates. He was a bright student, but his ability was not recognized in school. He was popular among the boys but did not seem at all unusual to them."

Mr. Byng recalls that one day his school teacher asked the class if they knew where there was one-story house with a two-story porch mentioned by Charles Dickens in one of his books as being located in a city at the confluence of two rivers. She gave them the recess period to find out about the house. That wasn't long enough and school was dismissed for the day. The next day the pupils were told to look across the street, and there was the one story house with the two-story porch. It had attracted the attention of Charles Dickens on his visit to America, and Paducah was the town at the confluence of two rivers—the Ohio and the Tennessee.

Byng has been back to his old home town. His relatives have moved away and many of his boyhood friends are in Paducah.

PAY DAYS SKIPPED AS DRURY BATTLED TO LIVE, RECALLS

Doctor and Mrs. Edward M. Shepard Enjoyed Teaching In College 50 Years Ago

PUPILS STUDIOUS THEN

Romance Between Faculty Members Flowered Into Wedding of Teachers

By CELIA RAY

FIFTY years ago it was this past week that Dr. and Mrs. Edward M. Shepard, 1403 Benton avenue, arrived in Springfield to take up their work as teachers in the new academy and college called Drury.

They were a young couple then. Doctor Shepard had just finished his work at Williams college in Massachu-

Doctor and Mrs. Shepard seats Mrs. Shepard, who then was Miss Harriet E. Ohlen, had only a short time before been graduated from Vassar. He was to teach all the science courses in the academy and college and she was dean of women or "lady principal," as the title was then.

A VILLAGE THEN

Looking back over the years, Doctor and Mrs. Shepard today recall the pioneer days of the college as well as the time when Springfield numbered no more than 5000 persons.

The two Drury teachers arrived in Springfield on the same train. It stopped at a station at the head of Benton avenue.

"I remember this section was having a great drought and everything looked brown and forlorn," recalled Doctor Shepard. "We rode in a bus through the dust to Fairbanks hall, which was the dormitory for girls.

That hall, a square brick building containing the classroom and a frame structure were all the school possessed.

STUDENTS STUDIOUS THEN

"The enrollment of the academy was about 175 and of the college about 30. The students were more mature than those in college today and all came to study. It was a delight to teach them. They were there for work and there were no outside matters to encroach upon their time."

Doctor Shepard recalled that most of the college students were older than he and that two of them were married. Most of the men were studying for the ministry.

"Doctor Nathan J. Morrison was president of the college then," he continued. "He was a brilliant man who sacrificed everything for the college. It was through his great courage and perseverance that the college continued."

BORROWED TO PAY SALARIES

"There were times when it looked as though the school might close. Sometimes we would have to borrow money when the salaries couldn't be paid, but each summer Doctor Morrison would go east and get enough help to carry us through."

Doctor and Mrs. Shepard were married three years after they took up their work with the college. Doctor Shepard continued as head of the science department until 1910 when he retired because of failing health.

Springfield in the early years they were here had no paved streets, very few sidewalks and almost none of the modern conveniences now accepted as a matter of course.

"All the plays and exercises given by Drury were held at the old Mansfield theater over Roger and Baldwin Hardware store," said Doctor Shepard. "We had to walk or hire a hack to take us there. If we walked we crossed a little foot bridge over the Jordan river."

BACK AMONG CLASSMATES

Doctor and Mrs. Shepard only recently returned from a vacation trip through the east during which they attended reunions of their college classes. Doctor Shepard learned that 22 of his class are living and 14 of them were present at the reunion. This was the first time either of them had been present at a reunion of their college classes since they made the trip west to cast their lot with the new college of Drury—50 years ago.

JOHN MALANG—GREAT MISSOURIAN

THERE was buried yesterday in Joplin the form of one of Missouri's greatest citizens.

John M. Malang had given of the best years of his life and the utmost of his tremendous energies and enthusiasm toward providing Missouri with her marvellous system of modern highways which have won for our state an enviable distinction throughout all America.

Years before the state itself began to think seriously of hard-surfaced highways, John Malang headed the organization in Jasper county which pointed the way and served as an example and inspiration for other Missouri counties to follow in lifting Missouri out of the mud. As state senator he served his district and his state with notable distinction. He had ideas as well as ability and a courage that was truly lionine.

Mr. Malang was in the very thick of the fight for the $75,000,000 road bonds which are to be voted on by the people in the November election when death overtook him, and it is quite within the range of probability that his end was hastened by the constantly sustained mental and physical strain to which he voluntarily subjected himself in laboring for the success of the road bond proposal so dear to his heart.

That this fallen leader was not lacking the appreciation of his fellow public spirited Missourians he was shown in the resolution adopted some weeks ago by the good-rovers in the far northeastern section of the state, calling for the naming of one of the main cross-state highways after his name. That resolution should be adopted as a fitting and richly-merited memorial to one who has served his state so helpfully and so enduringly.

Springfield Girl Weds Californian

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Latham, 742 North Kansas avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nellie Irene, to Mr. Claude Cavin September 1. The marriage took place in Los Angeles.

Miss Yohner Marries Mr. Morrison

THE marriage of Miss Helen Ann Yohner to Lieutenant Carl H. B. Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morrison of this city, took place September 5 at 2:30 in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Yohner, 1225 West Rose street, Stockton, Cal. The Reverend Father Albert Bund read the service before an improvised altar banked with orchid and pink asters combined with delicate greenery and flanked with palms. Lighted tall pink tapers formed the only illumination in the room.

Before the ceremony Miss Thelma Lawrence of Vallejo, Cal., sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Elna Lipcomb, who also played Mendelssohn's wedding march for the entrance of the bridal party.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin-back crepe, made on simple straight lines. The bodice, which had a bateau neckline, was cut low in the back and ornamented with three white gardenias in diagonal cascade arrangement, from which fell the back panel forming a train. The veil, which was caught into Juliet cap arrangement, held by clusters of orange blossoms, was of the same length as the train. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Helen Brosnahan of Fresno, Cal., a cousin of the bride, who was the only attendant, wore a gown of pale pink taffeta, bouffant style. Her flowers were pink tea roses combined with maiden hair ferns. Lieutenant Morrison was in the full dress naval uniform and Lieutenant George Mitchell, who acted as best man, was also in full dress naval uniform.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Morrison left late in the afternoon on a wedding trip to Highland Inn, near Carmel, Cal.

Mrs. Morrison's going-away costume was of deep rose beige crepe trimmed with cream lace. Her coat was of rose beige in a lighter hue trimmed with fox fur. She wore a close fitting hat to harmonize. The out-of-town guests were:

Mrs. I. E. Morrison of Springfield, Mo.
Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Doyler of Vallejo, Cal.

WRITER TO FATHER DRURY JOURNALISM

Former Student and Author of Textbooks and Biographies to Lay Foundation for New Subject at College

Work which will lead to the founding of a new department in the curriculum of Drury college has been started by Orland Kay Armstrong, formerly head of the department of journalism of the University of Florida, now in charge of journalism and public speaking at Drury.

Mr. Armstrong, a graduate of Drury in the class of 1916, will have charge of publicity of the college under the new arrangement and will direct student publications. No class work in journalism will be offered this year, but it is planned to offer courses in this subject next year. The work of selecting students interested in journalism as a career will be carried on this term, according to Mr. Armstrong.

COACHES DEBATE TEAMS

The alumni association of the college has selected Mr. Armstrong as executive secretary for this year, and the work of reorganizing the records has begun with the co-operation of Professor W. A. Daggett, former secretary. In addition Mr. Armstrong will act as debating coach.

After graduating from Drury, Mr.
Armstrong taught in Southwest Baptist college at Bolivar for a year and then enlisted in the air service of the army where he served during the World war. He worked on various newspapers, and entered the University of Missouri journalism school in 1924 to do graduate work in journalism.

He received both the Bachelor of Journalism and the Master of Arts degrees from that institution and went to the University of Florida as head of the journalism department there in 1925.

WRITES BIOGRAPHY

On the death of the president of the University of Florida, Dr. A. A.
Murphree, Mr. Armstrong began writing the biography of this noted educator, and his book, "The Life and Work of Dr. A. A. Murphree," is just off the press. The educator leaped into wide notoriety in 1924 when William Jennings Bryan insisted that he was best fitted to be nominated for the presidency by the democratic party, according to Mr.
Armstrong.

Mr. Armstrong is also the author of a pamphlet on vocational guidance in journalism for Boy Scouts.
He wrote "The Rise of the Modern Newspaper" and "The Circulation of the Small City Daily," both published by the University of Missouri.

About a year ago he began compiling a series of interviews from former slaves of the old south, and is under agreement at the present time to finish the series during the year.
The interviews are intended to give a complete and accurate picture of slavery conditions and are to be published in book form.

A FRIENDLY CITY

"The finest thing about getting back to Springfield," Mr. Armstrong said, "is to realize that it is still the same old friendly town—more progressive than it used to be, of course, and more businesslike—but the type of small city a man wants to bring up his family in and live in the rest of his life.

"I think Springfield has the finest school advantages, from the grades up, of any city of its size in the country."

Mr. Armstrong is a member of Theta
Kappa Nu fraternity, and of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, and Pi Delta Epsilon. He is connected with the Kiwanian or-

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

DEARLY treasured are the memories of his old home town—Ozark, Mo.—as they are kept fresh and vivid today by J. R. Roberts, justice of peace and formerly teacher of mathematics in Senior High school 16 years and Greene county superintendent of schools for 10 years.

Roberts

"When I was 7 years of age, my father took me on a horseback journey from our home near where Palmetto now is, to a little mountain town in Christian county," recalls Mr. Roberts.

"The way seemed very long to a boy 'riding behind,' and my heart leaped for joy when the good man said, 'There it is!' We were on the summit of a lofty hill overlooking the beautiful Finley, and when I looked in the direction indicated by my father, I beheld a most fascinating picture—a fine cluster of houses on a noble rise beyond the Finley—Ozark, a little later to become my home town.

"That picturesque village has ever since been my home town, and ever will be. Around it cluster all the memories, happy and unhappy, of my boyhood and youth. There I received my elementary and high school training. There I attended the lyceums, singings and spelling bees. There in the 'blue hole' I learned to swim. There along the banks of dear old Finley George Pettijohn taught me my first lessons in catching the frisky 'chub' and the shiny perch. There in the early 60's I witnessed the bitter tears of the mothers and sisters as the older boys marched away to war:

"Some southward through the verdant vale.

And on and on, their country's pride,

They marched, they fought, they bled, they died."

"I love my old 'home town.' I never visit it without walking over its devious streets, peering down its precipitous bluff, or strolling along the margin of the lake, trying to locate the place where I baited my first hook. I seriously pity the fellow who has no 'old home town,' and I detest the cartoonist who slanders it, and I certainly would refuse to give his ugly picture space in a paper over which I had a controlling interest."

'Champion Shoe Salesman,' 'Uncle Billy' Kintrea Dies

Employed for Sixty Years at Heers Store, He Set Unique Record; Associates Will Be Pall Bearers at Funeral Services Tuesday Morning

William Kintrea, 80 years old, who sold more shoes and boots in Springfield and Greene county than any other man living and who worked for one firm for 60 years, died at his home at 1947 North Douglas avenue yesterday afternoon.

"Uncle Billy," as he was known to the many thousand Springfield and Greene county people who had purchased footwear from him, was a veteran employe of the Heers Store company here.

He came to Springfield from Canada when 20 years old and immediately went to work for the Heers Ragner company store which was located on Boonville hill, where the Lines Music company store is now located.

Sixty Years on One Job

Energetic and anxious to work he was placed in the boot and shoe department. Each of his 60 years with the store was spent in this department. Two years ago he was retired and given a pension.

However, for a year or so after his retirement, he came to the store every morning, always arriving on time, and helped wait on customers, although he was not required to do so.

"Uncle Billy" was characterized by Lee Heer, as one of the best shoe clerks the store has ever had. Without a doubt he sold more shoes than any other man has ever disposed of in Springfield and Greene county, and probably southwest Missouri.

Never Read a Book

Although he had little schooling and never read a book in his life, Uncle Billy was well informed on most any subject that might arise in the day's conversation. His information was received from newspapers of which he was an inveterate reader. His reading took in every page, and every column, Mr. Heer said. He was especially interested in politics and sports.

He was a great lover of children, and much of his earnings went to buying them candy and presents. His acquaintanceship among children took in a large number in Springfield and rural Greene county. Most of them, upon coming to the store, would immediately hunt him and chat with him.

He never married. Up until three years ago he lived with a sister, Mrs. Dora Dugan.

Funeral services will be held at the Herman Lohmeyer funeral home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Pallbearers were chosen from among his associates at the store. They are E. E. Heer, Leo Heer, E. H. Drake, Sam Scarborough, Kenneth Carmichael and Charles Morton.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

LOCKWOOD, Mo., is the home town of Charles F. Newman, Springfield attorney and chairman of the Greene county democratic committee, and he still goes back there on visits whenever he can get away from his business.

Mr. Newman was born on a farm near Lockwood, attended the schools at that town and after returning from the University opened his first law office there. When he was 24 years of age he was elected prosecuting attorney of Dade county and moved to Greenfield where he lived until he came to Springfield several years ago.

Looking back over his boyhood days, Mr. Newman says the thing that impressed him most about his home town in his youth was the seriousness which people took their political and religious affiliations.

"There was bitterness in religion in those days," he recalls, "people generally believing that only members of their own denomination would go to heaven. I can remember that when I was a boy that struck me as a sad and regrettable thing and I am delighted that churches have outlived that day."

"There used also to be extreme partisanship in politics. The old saying 'I vote as I shot' really was the attitude when I was a boy. During the campaigns on the streets of Lockwood we used to have the most bitter arguments and fist fights. The use of weapons was a common occurrence. It is good to know that most of the narrowness and bitterness of politics and religious controversies have been outlived."

Mr. Newman continues to boast for the old home town, stressing the fact that Lockwood has "modern schools, electric lights, waterworks and other things that make a good town, and declaring that it is considered the best business point of its size on the Frisco railroad between Memphis and Kansas City."

Failure to Report Marriages Ties Up Records of Cupid

Failure of the Clergymen or other officiating officers to make returns on 15 marriage licenses have made it impossible to complete the records in the office of Jack W. McKee, recorder of deeds. Licenses in which the returns have not been made include those issued to:

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

ALLEN C. FOSTER, Boy Scout executive, has just returned from his first visit in eight years to his old home town — Seymour, Ind. He attended a national conference of Boy Scout executives in New York City and on the return trip stopped over for a family reunion in the place where he finished high school.

Foster

"The town hasn't changed much," he said, "except they have well paved streets and attractive new school buildings. I was particularly impressed with their modern schools. I just thought as I looked at them that if a town of 6000 could have buildings like that we in Springfield certainly ought to try to get school structures that look better than some of the ones we have."

Mr. Foster's mother and father will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary next year and he expects to return to Seymour for that event. His parents have eight children and 13 grandchildren, all of whom attended the reunion from which Mr. Foster has just returned.

Looking back past the 18 years he has been away from there, Mr. Foster recalls most vividly of all the days he spent in the old home town the day he graduated from high school.

"I never had known as much before and never have known as much since, as the day I graduated from high school," he laughed. "That was the most important day of my life."

Seymour, Ind., was the town from which Seymour, Mo., was named. The first postmaster of the Missouri town was formerly from Seymour, Ind., and so put the name on the map in this state. Dr. Otto Horst of Springfield also is from Seymour, Ind. He was graduated from the high school in that town the year before Mr. Foster and they knew each other as boys.

A tradition which has been handed down in Seymour is that concerning the famous Reno gang of outlaws which operated along about the time of reconstruction days after the Civil war.

"Two miles west of the town is a railroad crossing which is still pointed out as the place where the Reno gang was hanged," said Mr. Foster. "The gang was caught in Missouri and brought back on a train to Reno. Two miles from the town a band of angry vigilants stopped the train and hanged the gang with the exception of the youngest brother, which I understand later became a good citizen."

OF HALF CENTURY AGO

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Sept. 19.—A scene of a wedding feast of 50 years ago was reconstructed here Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Seeburn Kinnaird celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Details of the festival which occurred 50 years ago at a Kentucky home where the two were married were reproduced for the 200 friends who gathered from the surrounding countryside to pay homage to the old couple.

Mrs. Kinnaird greeted her guests in a 50-year-old dress of grey silk, with long, sweeping skirt and close-fitting bodice and bouffant pannels, trimmed with hand pleated ruffles. She wore grey lace mitts and carried a bouquet of old fashioned flowers.

She was assisted in entertaining her guests by her two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Armstrong of Willow Springs and Mrs. Willie May Mires of Willow Springs, who were dressed as bridesmaids of the wedding 50 years ago were dressed. Little Marjory and Evelyn Armstrong appeared as flower girls of their grandmother's wedding party, wearing ruffled skirts and pantalettes and poke bonnets.

Mr. Kinnaird is now 77 years old, and his bride 74. Mrs. Kinnaird wears her white hair bobbed and her skirts modestly short. Long before the guests departed from the celebration Sunday she slipped upstairs to don a more comfortable modern costume, explaining that she believed in the modern dress and comfort.

She has recently won statewide fame as a weaver of old fashioned coverlets, which she makes in a room in her home, fitted as the old spinning and weaving rooms of years ago were fitted. She has woven 18 coverlets from wool which her husband clipped from his own sheep. She washed, carded and dyed all the threads which are wove into the intricate designs of the coverlets.

MOTHER SWOONS AS SONS PLACED IN FATHER'S CARE

Judge White Modifies Original Divorce Decree Following Hearing in Circuit Court Here.

IN the hush that followed presentation of the evidence yesterday in the effort Donald Cluxton, Joplin business man, to have a divorce decree of three years ago modified so that he and not the mother, Mrs. Beale Cluxton of Springfield, might have the custody of their two sons, Judge White spoke slowly.

"The court has endeavored to take into account only the welfare of these boys," he said, and father and mother, seated at the counsel table leaned forward nervously. Donald, Jr., 15, and Claude, 14, seated just behind them, moved forward to hang on every word.

Boys Given to Father.

"Therefore," continued the judge, "I have decided to modify the decree. The boys will be placed in their father's custody."

A sob escaped the mother as she swooned, and the slder of the boys started forward.

"I want to stay with mother," he said, and followed Judge White into his office.

A conference then was held, after which Judge White said he would not change his ruling.

Granted 3 Years Ago

The decree granted three years ago provided that the mother should have custody of the boys except during July and August each year. They were spending the summer with the father in Joplin when he learned that the mother, who has been making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Springer in Springfield, planned to move to Tucumcari, New Mexico, with them and take the boys with her. He then began proceedings to obtain the custody of the boys, and placed them in school in Joplin.

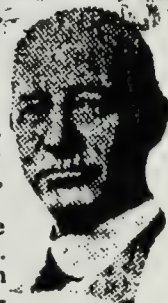

Under Judge White's ruling, they will remain with the father in Joplin and continue their school work there.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

R. RITCHIE ROBERTSON, head of the music department of Springfield public schools and director of the famous Boy Scout band, traveled many miles to come to his present home from the old home town, which was Burntisland, county of Fife, Scotland.

Robertson

The picturesque little town which Mr. Robertson left in 1900 is on the seaside ten miles from Edinburgh.

"Burntisland is a beautiful summer resort," said Mr. Robertson. "It also is a railroad center and a shipping center from which coal is sent to all parts of the world. It has two golf courses, a very beautiful bathing beach and is a favorite summer resort for city people."

"On clear days—September days such as this, particularly, one can see the streets of Edinburgh from Burntisland."

Mr. Robertson left his old home town because a change of climate was recommended for his health. He has not returned there for a visit since 1906, and while he cherishes pleasant memories of the lovely seaside town, he has found Springfield so satisfying as a "home town" he vastly prefers it to all others. This city has no more ardent booster than the man who has waved the baton as the Boy Scout band marched to fame.

"While I believe a man should never forget his home, I don't know that I ever want to live anyplace except Springfield," said Mr. Robertson.

"I am proud of this city. I don't see how any man can live in Springfield without being proud of it. We have so many things here for which we can feel gratified. Springfield is an ideal city in which to rear a family and it is improving all the time."

He was born in Iowa City, Iowa, in 1858, but moved to Springfield during early childhood where he attended the public schools. Mr. Sprague began braking Frisco passenger trains from Springfield to Vinita in 1876.

He also served as switchman, fireman, train baggageman and conductor out of Springfield. He was employed as a switchman on the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, and the Rock Island lines, and later as brakeman on the St. L., I. M. and S. and the Santa Fe.

FATHER WINS CUSTODY OF TWO YOUNG CHILDREN

When the custody of their two children was awarded to Donald Cluxton, their father, of Joplin, the mother, Mrs. Beale Cluxton of Springfield, swooned.

The original divorce decree, granted three years ago, was modified in circuit court yesterday by Judge Warren L. White to give the custody of the children, Donald, Jr., 15, and Gladie, 14, to the father instead of the mother, to whom they were originally awarded.

Judge White stated that he had taken into account only the welfare of the children. The father learned that the mother, who had been making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Springer, in Springfield, planned to move to Tucuman, N. M. and was to take the children with her.

Cluxton then began proceedings to obtain the boys so that they might be placed in school in Joplin.

DISOBEYS ORDERS, MURDERED BY DIXON BANDITS

Fleeing From Scene of Holdup And Murder, Trio Wrecks Car and Escapes to Woods; Hounds on Trail

JOHN SHACKELFORD, 23, of Dixon, Mo., was shot and instantly killed by one of three bandits who held up a filling station near Dixon at 7:30 o'clock last night.

Shackelford, with three companions, were at the station five miles northeast of Dixon, over the Pulaski county line in Maries county, when three men in a Ford touring car drove up.

Two of the men alighted, and flashing a shotgun and a revolver, ordered Shackelford and the three other men to line up with their faces to the wall. All complied with the demand. Shackelford turned around to look at the men.

FLEEING BANDITS IN CRASH

One of the bandits cursed him, and then fired his shotgun into Shackelford's right shoulder. He died instantly. The two bandits then rushed to their car and speeded northward.

Shackelford's companions, Charles Jones, Lawrence Dodds and Chris Veasman, farmers living near Dixon, were stunned. They gave chase and two miles further found the bandit's car, crashed with another motor car. Both were demolished. The bandits had escaped into the heavily wooded country nearby.

A posse was organized and in less than an hour had picked up the trail of the three men. Bloodhounds from the J. L. Wyatt kennels here were put on the trail shortly after midnight.

QUICKLY RETURN VERDICT

In the meantime, Fred Gilbert, Pulaski county coroner, summoned a jury, and with the aid of J. W. Wyrick, Pulaski county sheriff, and James Murphy, Maries county sheriff, and W. H. Holmes, Maries county prosecutor, launched an investigation into the shooting.

The jury, at 1:45 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict of "murder by unknown parties."

It was said the occupants of the other automobiles obtained a good description of the men.

The shooting occurred in Maries county, two miles over the Maries-Pulaski county line. Because of the urgency of an early inquest the coroner of Pulaski county was asked to conduct the investigation.

Shackelford is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shackelford of Dixon, and his wife and two infant children. The body was taken to the Gilbert Undertaking company at Dixon.

Backward Glimpses By Springfield

By CELIA RAY

THE west—even no further west than Cedarvale, Kan.—was still wild and woolly when H. P. Study, superintendent of Springfield schools, went there as a boy of 6 with his parents from Fountain City, Ind.

The nearest railroad to Cedarvale was at Grenola, Kan., 20 miles away. From there the family took a stage to the 900-acre ranch on which they settled four and one-half miles southeast of Cedarvale.

"I walked three and one-half miles to school," recalls Mr. Study. "I almost can see the old ravines across which I walked and the hole through which I climbed in the hedge fence.

"Indians from the territory often came up to our country and my parents sometimes feared they might carry me away. Those old hills looked high to me as a boy and the streams seemed very large. When I go back there I always am impressed with the fact that the country looks almost flat compared to what it did to me then."

In those days Cedarvale was a typical frontier town. Drinking and gambling thrived. The Dalton gang of outlaws and the Starr gang paid frequent visits to the town although they never raided it as the Dalton gang did Coffeyville.

Mr. Study recalls that when he was about 12 years of age he went to Cedarvale to spend the night with a friend. He became so homesick about night he decided he couldn't stay. His brothers were in Cedarvale driving a fast gaited horse hitched to a light vehicle.

"I got so homesick I started running toward home," laughed Mr. Study. "my brothers always affirmed that they drove along behind me trying to overtake me and I ran so fast they couldn't."

Mr. Study was graduated from the high school in Cedarvale. There in the old opera house he took the part of the villain in the class play—was a thrilling hour—so overwhelming, that Mr. Study recalls he fell down and lost the false mustache upon which he was relying for a convincing impersonation of the villain.

A great manhunt was on today in the hills and woodlands of the northern Ozarks.

Officers of two counties and bloodhounds from the Wyatt kennels here were trying desperately to trail the rural "racketeers" who last night murdered John Shackelford, 23, Dixon, Mo., during a raid on the Charley Jones roadhouse five miles northeast of Dixon. It was feared they had lost the trail.

Six young men of the Dixon neighborhood were having a merry time at the Jones roadhouse early last night when a car drove up outside, a warning shot crashed through the door and two men ran in through different entrances. One carried a revolver, the other a shotgun.

Shot as He Peeks

"Stick 'em up and line up against the wall," was the command. "And don't turn around!"

Shackelford lined up against the wall with the rest. For a moment he turned his head to get a quick look at the bandits. It was his last move. One of the guns roared, and Shackelford fell.

With the Dixon youth dying there on the floor, the robbers calmly went on with their work, searching his comrades and taking, in all, about $40 from them. Then they turned back to the car.

Bandits Wreck Car

Shackelford's friends, James, Elmer, and Roy, were in the car. They were shot and killed. The car was wrecked and the bandits escaped. The car was wrecked and the bandits escaped. The car was wrecked and the bandits escaped.

Wyatt's bloodhounds picked up the trail at the wrecked car, and followed the bandits across fields and into a woodland. Near a small creek the dogs gave up, and it is believed the trio rode away on horses which they had hidden in the woods.

Chase Hotly Conducted

But the search still goes on, and officers of Pulaski, Maries and adjoining counties are combing the region for the bandits. Shackelford's companions furnished a fairly good description of the men to officers, and said they could point out the murderer.

A coroner's jury summoned by Fred Jilbert, Pulaski county coroner, decided at 1:45 o'clock this morning that Shackelford was murdered by "some unknown."

J. W. Wyrick, Pulaski county sheriff; James Murphy, Maries county sheriff; and W. H. Holmes, Maries county prosecutor, are leading the investigation of the slaying.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

AS A home town, Buffalo, Mo., is superior to all others according to the opinion of Lon S. Haymes, state senator, who hails from the Dallas county seat.

Haymes

He backs up his opinion by declaring that "Buffalo long has been considered the best inland town in Missouri. It is a wonderful trading point, has many new buildings, good highways and wide awake citizens." Then to further clinch the argument he boosts for the whole of Dallas county, pointing out its progressiveness as well as the pleasant summer resorts and prosperous farm lands within its borders.

Mr. Haymes was born on a farm southeast of Buffalo and went to live in the town at the age of 2 when his father died. He made his home with his father's brother, John S. Haymes, who has been an attorney at Buffalo for the past 50 years and is former prosecuting attorney of Dallas county and former probate judge.

Mr. Haymes was graduated from the Buffalo High school in 1908 and taught school in that town two years. Through his association with his uncle, Mr. Haymes became interested in the legal profession. He did his first law study in his uncle's office. One of the thrilling moments of his life was when he heard his uncle argue the famous Dallas county railroad case before the supreme court of the United States where litigation of more than 30 years standing was settled in favor of the county.

The case involved about three million dollars asked as judgment for bonds issued for a railroad which never was built. John S. Haymes carried the fight through the courts for more than 30 years before it was settled in favor of the county with it paying a compromise only of around $300,000.

"Much of Dallas county history revolved about that railroad case," pointed out Mr. Haymes, "and since it has been settled the county has prospered."

Mr. Haymes returns often to Buffalo to visit his uncle and other relatives and friends. He also goes there for each Dallas county term of court.

(Special Dispatch to The Leader)

DIXON, Mo., Sept. 22.—The little roadhouse a few miles north of here whose floors were stained Thursday night with the life blood of John Shackelford, Dixon youth, was painted today by a Pulaski county officer as a gambling den where liquor flowed and hilarity reigned.

And the youth who was mortally injured as the roadhouse rocked to the roar of a shotgun Thursday night was declared by G. H. Brittain, Pulaski county undersheriff, to have been a "hanger on" at "Charley Jones place," the name of the inn.

Officer Probe New Turn

These revelations by Brittain brought an entirely new turn in the investigation of Shackelford's death. The youth's companions on the night of the shooting previously had told officers a story of an invasion of the place by two strangers and a third.

Large baskets of variegated fall flowers, in which yellow was the predominating colors, were arranged around the altar and through out the church.

PIONEER DAYS ON FRISCO

Mrs. Sue Wood of Fanning, Mo.,

SIXTY-FOUR years ago, Sue Fanning, four-year-old daughter of John Fanning, Frisco section foreman at Fanning, Mo., trailed back of her father with a lighted lantern, so that he might see to cut down small trees along the right-of-way. From the trees he made "wedges" to slip under the track to hold it steady until repairs were made.

Today, at the age of sixty-eight, Mrs. Sue Wood, (nee Fanning), sits in the front yard of the same old home at Fanning near the Frisco's main line and watches the modern motive power and equipment speed east and west. "From a mud hole to a magnificent system" is her way of describing the road's growth.

NAMED STATION AGENT

Her apprenticeship, which started when she was four years of age, began in earnest on February 8, 1900, when she was appointed agent at the little station, named for her father, a section-foreman who worked for the Atlantic & Pacific for nineteen years, prior to its acquisition by Frisco lines.

The family home where she now resides once served as an office for the engineers who surveyed the old Frisco from Pacific west. It at times served also as a government station and at all times the Fanning family occupied a part of it.

In her twenty-eight years of service, she has not missed meeting a train except for several vacation periods.

HOME USED AS CHURCH

The Fanning home was used also as a church. A minister came once a week to preach and Mrs. Fanning would feed all the visitors who came to the service. Mrs. Wood has seen her "bake" a whole sheep in the large oven in the Fanning home. She also helped her mother feed the men who worked on the section and the $12.00 a month which each paid, included three meals a day, bed and laundry.

"Where have all the Irishmen gone?" she asked abruptly. "In the old days that was all there were on the section—Irishmen! They had no rail motor cars, only push trucks.

"The little engine burned wood, and wood piles were numerous along the right-of-way. It was up to the section foreman to buy wood, have it sawed and stacked, pay off the section men, and pay any other expenses which might be necessary. I have seen my father with thousands of dollars in his possession, but we never feared a robbery.

Mrs. Wood recalls Price's raid and his march through Missouri and Fanning in 1864 as vividly as if it were yesterday. The night he marched through Fanning there was to be a wedding at the Fanning home. One of the neighbor boys had asked Mrs. Fanning to serve dinner for him, his bride and guests. Mr. Fanning bought a barrel of whiskey for which he paid twelve cents a gallon. The barrel was rolled under the steps of the front porch.

PRICES' MEN ARRIVE

While the dancing was in progress Price and his men arrived.

"I can see Price yet," Mrs. Wood said. "He had on tall red boots, trimmed in black patent leather. He strode into the room and of course wanted to dance with the girls. They were frightened and he had quite a time securing a partner.

"The dance lasted until late into the night. Finally the bridegroom arrived and said the "bride" had run away with someone else, but added that they would have the celebration anyway.

"The men went into the yard and rolled the barrel of whiskey out from under the porch and drank from it all evening. While the party was getting under way my father went into the hills near Fanning and hid in a cave, for Price made the men he found join his army, or stripped them of clothes and valuable. My mother and I took food to my father, who remained in hiding until Price had left that part of the country. On the march the army cut down wheat stacks to see that there were no men hiding in them, ransacked stores and threw sugar, coffee and flour about the country. While the army was camped near our home it did not have any large amount and in order to satisfy them and get them on their way she went to the smoke house where we kept our salted meats, dug up some of the earth floor, brought it in the house and boiled it in water and strained out the salt.

"The old railroad track had to be repaired after this raid and my father, after he came out of his hiding place, joined what was termed the railroad militia, followed the raiders, and built the track back again."

The old wooden coaches with scenes of the Ozarks painted on the sides were common sights. Mrs. Wood says it seemed to her as if the engines just "hopped" along.

IN COMMEMORATION and honor of Miss Evaline Clifton, only "original daughter" who ever belonged to the Rachel Donelson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, members of the chapter will unveil a monument on her grave near Marshfield on Sunday afternoon, October 6.

Miss Clifton died in 1912, at the age of 96. For some time the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R. had been endeavoring to secure a government pension for her as the daughter of a Revolutionary veteran, but she died before congress took action. She was the daughter of Nathan Clifton, a Carolinian who was born in 1860, and at the age of 17 enlisted as a private in the Continental army. In 1820, when Miss Clifton was 4 years old, her father with his family moved from North Carolina to Tennessee, and 20 years later they again moved westward to Webster county, which was then a part of Greene county.

Miss Clifton gave up all thought of marriage to care for her father, and he lived to the age of 104. When he died he was given military burial and the old gun which as a lad he had carried through the Revolutionary war was fired over his grave.

Miss Clifton continued to live near Marshfield, cared for by her nieces and nephews and their children when she grew too old to be altogether independent. She was, however, a remarkable old person, who retained her strength of body and mind amazingly. Old neighbors near Marshfield recall that until she was well past 70 she commonly rode horseback from hill farm to hill farm, and she continued to sew up until the time of her death.

She was "discovered" by Miss Janie Hubble of Springfield, and made a member of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R. about a year before her death.

Memorial service and unveiling of the monument will take place at 2 o'clock on October 6, with impressive formalities. Sam Shelton, former congressman, will be the principal speaker.

The monument is a granite slab bearing the simple inscription, "Miss Evaline Clifton, 1816-1912, daughter of Nathan Clifton, who served in the Revolutionary War." Inset on the front is a bronze plaque upon which the insignia of the D. A. R. is wrought, with the words "Real Daughter."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

THOSE were thrilling days when the Reverend John W. Pearson, for the past five years pastor of the St. Paul M. E. Church, South, lived on a farm three miles from Lawrenceville, county seat of Brunswick county, Virginia.

"The roads were so muddy when I was a boy we couldn't make the three-mile trip to town very often," recalled Doctor Pearson. "We went there on court day, which was every three months, circus day, which came annually—and once in awhile we had a hanging and everybody had to go to that."

"People came for miles around for the hanging. Why, once there a man was to be hanged and the governor pardoned him just before the time set and the sheriff said the people had gone to too much trouble getting ready for it and had driven too far to see it for him to disappoint them. So they hanged the man."

Then there was election day which Doctor Pearson recalls as an eventful time enlivened by fights in his old home time. On court day there was the arguments of the lawyers which appealed to him as a boy, for even then he had an interest in public speaking. Also on court day there was a lively flurry of horse and mule trading with the traders raising the animals up and down Main street to try them out.

Lawrenceville is in the heart of the cotton, peanut and burley tobacco country and Doctor Pearson recalls as his most detestable work in his boyhood that of killing tobacco worms.

"The first money I ever made was 3 cents my brother paid me for picking cotton," he said. "I had a large two cent piece and a one cent piece. I put them in an old tobacco sack and was sitting before the huge fireplace twirling the sack around on my finger when the money flew into the hot fire. It burned before I could get it out."

Doctor Pearson left the old home town at the age of 15. His mother had died and he wanted to see the world. For three years he traveled as newsboy on railroads throughout the country. Then he went into the grocery business and his partner "got away with the money." About this time he had joined the church and had an ambition to become a minister. First he started taking correspondence courses, believing that to be his only hope to receive an education. A friend made it possible for him to go to college and he later was graduated from Vanderbilt University. This was all through his own efforts, and Doctor Pearson is proud today that he won his education without any sort of financial support except his own earnings and a loan of $75.

By DOCIA KARELL.

EARLY in the history of the Central Christian church of Springfield, organized just 40 years ago, Mrs. Tillie Weaver presented the young and struggling congregation with its first church home, on the same site where the new church now stands.

The policy of the church at that time was against the use of musical instruments in services of worship, and Mrs. Weaver, a conservative, inserted a clause in the deed providing that no musical instrument could be used in the church.

Years later, as the congregation grew and the attitude of younger members toward music changed, there came a great desire for an organ. After many a conference between those progressives who wanted the organ and the conservatives who did not, Mrs. Weaver in 1902 finally was persuaded to sell back to the church the forbidding clause, at a cost of $2500—and the Central Christian church has had an organ for the past 26 years.

COLORFUL HISTORY RECALLED

That was just one of the colorful and amusing bits of history recalled at the anniversary service at the church yesterday, when struggles of early days and later development and growth were related by the older members.

The fortieth anniversary of the church's founding was celebrated with a church homecoming. A special afternoon service was devoted largely to reminiscence, with an address on "Early Leaders" by J. T. Lines a feature of the program. Mr. Lines and other "old-timer" members of the congregation won many a smile from their listeners with their recitals of experiences of the church's early days.

They told how during the first years the church was often without a pastor, and frequently the congregation numbered only six or seven faithful souls who nevertheless continued to meet for regular Sabbath communion. Church feminists perhaps gloated a bit with the memory that often the women of the congregation kept the church alive, and at one time there were only four men on the church roll.

PARSONAGE GOES FOR TAXES

Mr. Lines chuckled as he told how when the sewers were laid in the neighborhood, the good church brethren refused to pay the church assessment, and the little parsonage was sold for the taxes. Mrs. Weaver bought it, and resold it back to the church.

In 1902 W. E. Harlow, evangelist, came to the church, and aroused such enthusiasm that he was soon made pastor. Under his administration, the church was "put on the map," and has continued to prosper since that day. Mrs. Harlow and their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Knabb, attended yesterday's services.

The original building was several times enlarged, and finally had to be abandoned when the present fine edifice was built, being completed last year.

PASTORS SEND GREETINGS

A feature of the afternoon meeting yesterday was the reading of letters of greeting from seven former pastors of the church—the Reverend F. W. Walters, Blackwell, Okla.; the Reverend George L. Peters, missionary superintendent of the sixth Missouri district, Canton, Mo.; the Reverend G. W. McQuiddy, pastor of the Central Christian church at Galveston, Texas; the Reverend O. V. Dunn, dean of a Bible college at Fort Collins, Colo.; the Reverend B. T. Wharton, Marshall, Mo., now retired; the Reverend Homer F. Cooke, now preaching at Raton, New Mexico, having recovered his failing health in the west; and the Reverend Harvey L. Humphrey, who is doing graduate study at Drake university this year.

The Reverend Benjamin L. Smith, acting pastor at the South Avenue Christian church, made a brief address in which he recalled that he had ordained Mr. Harlow.

READS ORIGINAL POEM

R. F. McGlothlin read an original poem on "Homecoming," and Harry Sicheluff sang a song composed for the occasion by Roy E. Martin.

The morning service featured the homecoming, and included a membership roll call and enlistment service in which all members of the church were urged to enlist for some definite church activity this winter. The pastor, the Reverend E. C.

SEVENTEEN-MONTHS-OLD Wayne Newell is alive today because his grandmother, Mrs. Syd Callison, 57, gave his baby buggy a shove just before a hit-and-run motorist hurled the aged woman to her death on the public square at Lamar.

Mrs. Callison was on her way to church early Sunday evening. Pushing her tiny grandson in his baby buggy. She started to cross the street at the southwest corner of the square.

A car, said by those who viewed the accident to have been a Ford coupe, suddenly appeared. The woman was directly in its path, and, seeing that it was almost certain to hit her, she gave the baby buggy a shove and it rolled to the side of the street, turning over, as the motor car struck the grandmother.

The driver sped into the night at a high rate of speed.

Mrs. Callison was taken in an ambulance and the trip to Webb City started. But the grandmother expired before the hospital was reached. The baby was not hurt.

Last night the driver of the motor car had not been caught, but Sheriff J. L. Garrett and other officers were following every available clue.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

O. E. GORMAN, attorney, was born in Tolono, Ill. He lived there until after he entered high school, but it is to Marionville, Mo.,

Gorman

that he refers affectionately as the "old home town."

When he was a boy, 40 years ago, Mr. Gorman's parents left Tolono and came to Marionville to make their home. He taught school there three years after he had attended Warrensburg Normal, and still returns there almost every week for he has a fruit farm near the town.

The scene at Tolono Mr. Gorman recalls with the most pleasure is that of the winter skating parties.

"There was a big pond near the school and we boys skated on it outside school hours and all day Saturday," he said. "The country was flat and had few rocks, but I remember a huge boulder near the pond where we sat to put on our skates.

"Sometimes it would snow, then sleet and the whole country would be a solid sheet of ice for two or three weeks. It was so level we then skated to school and everywhere else we went.

Mr. Gorman's sister married a young student of Illinois university, S. D. Cannady of Marionville, and came there to live. A few years afterwards the Gorman family moved there. Mrs. Cannady died about two months ago. Mr. Gorman's parents remained in Marionville until their deaths.

Mr. Gorman never went to school in Marionville, but after he started his college education he would teach there in the winter and attend school during the summer. Later he went to Michigan university to take up his law course.

"There are probably 20 persons living in Springfield who went to school to me in Marionville," said Mr. Gorman. "I also was superintendent of schools at Mount Vernon two years and many of my former students from there are living here."

CAMDEN COUNTY WITNESSES TWO SUICIDE DEATHS

Charles Calkin, Serving His Third Term as Prosecutor,

FARMER KNIFES THROAT

Son of Pioneer Minister Fatally Injures Himself After Fit of Madness

Two prominent Camden county men found escape in death today from the fear that they were going mad, beaten in mind and body by the battle of life.

Charles Calkin, 45, serving his third term as prosecuting attorney of the county, shot himself through the head at 7 o'clock this morning in his home at Linn Creek, expiring two hours later. He had returned only a few days ago from a sanitarium at Kansas City, where he was sent after a nervous breakdown.

Another Dies Shortly After

Half an hour before the tragedy in the Calkin home, Charles Brown, 48, son of a pioneer Camden county minister, slashed his throat with a razor at his home seven miles south of Stoutland and died a few minutes later. Relatives had feared for some time he was losing his mind, and recently he had been seen carrying a revolver and a butcher knife while at work in his fields.

Each man is survived by a wife and several children. Brown was the son of the Reverend J. M. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Stoutland.

It is believed that the strain of his wife, together with that of his son, led to the tragedy. He had been at the Kansas City sanitarium for several weeks, returning a few days ago.

This morning, while his wife was busy preparing breakfast, the Camden county prosecutor was alone in his upstairs room. He found a .38 calibre automatic pistol, and a single shot brought members of the family rushing to the room. They found him lying on the floor, a bullet wound in his head. He died at 9 o'clock in the Calkin home.

Fires Gun, Cuts Throat

Mr. Brown, a farmer, rose early this morning and went with his wife to the dairy barn. He returned to the house on some pretext and a moment later his wife heard the roar of a gun. The shot brought relatives from their homes nearby to Mrs. Brown's. They found him lying on the front porch of the house, his throat slashed and a razor by his side. He bled to death in a few minutes. It is believed he fired the gun to frighten his wife so that she would not come to him and attempt to prevent the suicide attempt.

For days, friends said, Brown had seemed on the verge of a nervous breakdown. He had carried a revolver and a butcher knife with him, they said, and when questioned about the gun, he answered that he was busy with the hog killing work.

Brown is survived by four children, all of whom are married, three living in Oklahoma. Survivors also include a brother, James, a farmer who lives near Stoutland.

Mr. Calkin was beaten in his recent primary race for re-nomination by G. M. Brinkley, the republican nominee.

Funeral arrangements for both men are incomplete.

The Waste Basket

The Backwoods Contributor tells us of an old, old trail, the Springfield and Harrison road:

"I would like to take the gentle reader (if there is yet extant such a creature) along a real trail, that is "nobody knows how old;" not a charming bit of fairyland and fiction, but a real old rugged trail. Marked by thousands of patient foot prints, good old Arkansas mules with steel-tired Springfield wagons that resonantly rang on the rocks. Then the lusty shouts of wild drivers and flock masters, taking cattle and sheep over this famous old trail.

"This highway was abandoned 20 years ago, when the M. P. laid its serpentine route through the Ozarks. As Highway 78 enters Kirbyville, a little village between Branson and Forsyth, the motorist carelessly glances at a gash in the hillside leading north, then speeds on his way, not knowing he has just gazed upon a really historical thing. The State Historical society should erect a marker here, that this old passage might be remembered.

For nearly a hundred years this was the main artery of communication between North Arkansas and the Springfield country. Tremendous loads of valuable merchandise went southward over this road, by wagon team caravans, and equally valuable products went north, some conveyed by wagon, and some stolidly going out on foot. As a child I watched great droves of long-horned cattle, shaggy horses and colts and young mules, even great flocks of turkeys solemnly wagging along, weary disgusted porkers, then the beautiful and impressive sight of load after load of baled cotton, some of the snowy shred escaping from the burlap covering and waving to us as they passed. There would be a slatted load of chickens, and when they paused in front of our house, as they often did, for the old time freighter was never in a hurry, we children gazed longingly at speckled and top-knot hens, that were blue and pale red, almost pink, and little puttering guineas, a species of poultry also extinct.

"White river was crossed, in low water times, by a smooth and shallow ford, but in high water there was the safe and reliable old ferry boat, manned by Bill Hensley and his stalwart sons. There is an ancient legend of some feudists who were ferried over. They were in deadly haste for they had been vanquished and were fleeing for their lives. Soon the pursuing party arrived, blood crazed with victory, and the wise old ferryman would not cross them over.

"If there is a ghost of an inanimate thing, I wonder sometimes if the old bat does not come back to sail placidly, serenely along its old course, though it would find Lake Taneycomo astonishingly long and tedious ferrying; then maybe one of the large and beautiful motor boats, with music and dancing, would come zooming right through its fragile heart and bewildered and fearful the dim gray shadow would shrink back into oblivion again."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

PLEASANT HOPE, one of the oldest communities in Polk county, is the home town of the Reverend

M. F. Cowden, pastor emeritus of the Woodland Heights Presbyterian church.

Mr. Cowden was born on a farm three miles from Pleasant Hope and 17 miles from the square in Springfield. He lived at the old home until he was 25 years of age and recalls many colorful happenings in the days

Cowden when Pleasant Hope had one store and a blacksmith shop.

"We got our mail once a week when I was a boy," said Mr. Cowden. "It was carried on horseback from Morrisville. The postmaster would take the mail to the back part of the store and call off the names of those having letters. Everyone in the community was always there and would answer 'here' when his name was called for a letter.

"Later we got our mail three times a week and thought that was making great progress so we put up post boxes. When I left the farm we were receiving mail every day."

Mr. Cowden says that time was when the Cowden and Fullerton families were about the only ones to be found at Pleasant Hope.

"If a person met a man there in those days and he said his name wasn't Cowden, then it was pretty sure to be Fullerton," said Mr. Cowden. His mother was a member of the Fullerton family.

"When I was nearly grown," he said, "the Pleasant Hope academy was organized. It ran along a few years so successfully that it was chartered as the Pleasant Hope college. That ran many years and was one of the thriving new colleges of the southwest. It was there that I received my education."

Mr. Cowden's first business venture was with a well drill. His brother and a partner owned the drill and when Mr. Cowden was about 20 years of age he bought the partner's interest. The drill was drawn by a mule which he bought on credit from his uncle for $125.

"Well drilling was hard work—but we weren't afraid of hard work in those days," he said. "I drilled wells and paid for the drill and my mule and had some money left. Then I sold the drill for twice what I had paid for it so I thought it had been quite a profitable investment."

New buildings have taken the place of old landmarks and many changes have come over the old home town since he was a boy, Mr. Cowden finds on his frequent visits there.

"The old academy is gone," he said. "They have a new community high school, a farmers exchange, and three churches instead of the one we used to have."

Mr. Cowden often is called to Pleasant Hope to conduct funeral services for life long friends the memory of whom is interwoven in the community's history.

Large Crowds Attend Funeral For Prominent Camden County Men

Their lives ended at almost identically the same time Monday by self-inflicted wounds, two prominent Camden county residents yesterday were buried at the same time within four miles of each other. Large crowds attended both services.

Charles Calkin, 45, former Camden county prosecutor, shot himself through the head after he apparently feared the return of a nervous attack which he had suffered recently. He had returned from a sanitarium at Kansas City, where he had partly recovered.

3 TERMS AS PROSECUTOR

Mr. Calkin was for three terms prosecutor of Camden county. He was beaten in the last primary race for renomination by C. M. Brinkley, the republican nominee.

By CELIA RAY

IT IS to Grundy county, Missouri, that W. B. Linney returns when he visits his boyhood home. Trenton is his old home town, but he lived on a farm seven miles northeast of there until after he had been graduated from the law department of Missouri university. Then he opened a law office in the town. He also taught one term of school in Grundy county. That was four miles west of Trenton.

Linney

"I have gone back for frequent visits to Trenton," said Mr. Linney. "The last time I was there, however, was in 1924 when I was grand chancellor of the Missouri Knights of Pythias. I left Trenton 20 years ago—doesn't time fly?"

Principal among the changes Mr. Linney notices when he returns to his old home town is the large amount of pavement which has been put in. This, incidentally, should be especially gratifying to him for Trenton people for starting the paving boom. Mr. Linney, recalls, however, that at the time he was advocating the improvement there were plenty of people opposing him with indignation.

"First we got a sewage system for the town by a law of us property owners getting behind the project," explained Mr. Linney.

"Then I suggested to the men living on my street that we do some paving. The property owners on our street incorporated under the business corporation statutes of Missouri and we got our paving at actual cost. We bid on it just as the outsiders did and since of course our bid was the lowest we got the contract. Our bid was above the cost price and we refunded that to the property owners. After our street had been finished property owners on another street bought our charter and they also paved that street. That same plan was tried almost all over the town."

Mr. Linney said that brick paving was used and it still is in excellent condition. Paving at the time that was put in was not done with such elaborate machinery as now so the equipment expense did not mount very high.

"There were a lot of people 'cussing' me at the time we were starting the improvements," recalled Mr. Linney, "but everytime I go back now they thank me for it."

GUESTS AT RALLY STRUCK BY DEATH ON JOURNEY HOME

Polk County Boy, Hurlled From Big Truck Carrying Load Of Robinson Admirers, Is Crushed Beneath Wheels

A MERRY excursion to Springfield to hear Senator Joe Robinson speak, last night shortly before midnight was changed to tragedy when Melvin Vest, 15-year-old Polk county youth, fell from a truck in which he was riding to the pavement and was killed.

The accident occurred on Glenstone road, near the Frisco subway. Young Vest's hat blew off and he signaled the driver of the truck, Buster Breshears, to stop.

FALLS UNDER CAR

Vest either lost his balance, or jumped from the truck before it stopped. He fell under one of the rear wheels. It passed over his head killing him instantly.

C. D. Cloyd, one of the 25 men riding in the huge truck, said that he admonished Vest to be careful, but the boy fell before anyone realized what had happened.

Vest lived with his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Kenfro, near Herron. His father was near him in the truck when the accident occurred. He was a cousin of Dr. A. Armstrong of Springfield.

TRUCK DRIVER STOPS

Jewell Windle, coroner, said that the truck was driving at a moderate rate of speed when the boy fell under the wheels, as the driver stopped it within 40 feet of the scene of the accident.

An inquest will be conducted by Windle at 2:30 o'clock today in the municipal court room, at the central police station. The body was released by Windle and was taken to the parents' home.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

GUY C. GIBBS, circuit clerk, last week made a trip to his old home town, Versailles, Mo., in Morgan county.

From there he and his younger brother drove into the country 18 miles south of the town near the little community of Proctor where their grandfather settled when he came from Tennessee. The farm is on the banks of the Osage river.

Gibbs

"It was 20 years since my brother and I had seen my grandfather's old homestead," said Mr. Gibbs, "and we just decided we would like to go back and look it over. It was difficult to get there because of the roads.

"There we saw the old log house he had built when he settled the land. Four families settled in Morgan county about the same time when the migration first started from Tennessee and my grandparents were among these.

"At the old homestead we also saw the little house built by my father on the 80 acres of land my grandfather gave him from the farm when he married. My brother couldn't remember anything about the old place, but I even remembered the trees standing about the house."

Mr. Gibbs left Versailles 15 years ago, after he had finished his university course. It was then he came to Springfield. On his visit there last week he found many old friends and relatives, but also countless changes.

"My oldest relative is an aunt who lives in Versailles," said Mr. Gibbs, "and while we were there my brother and I had her write the family history for us so we can always keep it. We had talked it over and we knew if she died we could never get a complete account of my grandfather's career. Now we have this where we always can keep it."

Mr. Gibbs' father left the farm soon after he was married. He served two terms as sheriff and then was admitted to the bar. He practiced law until his death several years ago.

"The visit back to Versailles and my grandfather's home were interesting to me," said Mr. Gibbs. "I had wondered just how everything there was looking—and I am glad I went to see."

WILSON CREEK

Hidden away in a little western town, the best eye-witness account of the battle of Wilson Creek, Mo., was discovered quite by accident this summer by Professor L. E. Meador, of Drury college.

Army that in Civil war days, the vivid account reveals, was not so very different from the thrills, the hardships and the horrors which the boys of the 35th Division went through on the battlefields of France. The half-forgotten record is a private's own story of Civil war fighting—how the men despised and respected their commander, how the bickering of officers was blamed for the loss of Wilson creek by the union forces, how the men were poorly supplied and poorly fed—a revealing look into the heart of the soldier of many years ago.

Contrasting the Civil war story with their own memories of life in the trenches overseas, the men of the 35th may find the old record intensely interesting.

It is a graphic and intensely human document, filled with the colorful sidelights on the battle overlooked by historians, which help to recreate the event for students today. It records frankly the private soldiers' dislike and respect for General Lyon—tells what the boys wore, the songs they sang and the jokes they made, and

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

HENDERSON—not many years ago a famous seat of learning in Webster county—was the home town of L. H.

Coward, superintendent of Greene county schools.

Mr. Coward was born on a farm about three miles from Henderson. He recalls that in his youth some member of his family made a visit each week to the town to get the mail and buy such necessities as sugar and coffee.

Coward

"It was a great treat to me and my brothers to accompany our father to Henderson," said Mr. Coward. "We went in a farm wagon drawn by two horses. Father took the wheat in sacks to the steam grist mill which to our childish imagination was one of the many wonders to behold in the valley where Henderson was located.

"There too we saw and admired the 'smart young men,' dressed in fastidious black with shiny celluloid collars and cuffs. The cuffs were fastened with big buttons which rattled loudly when the wearer shook hands with father. These young men were students of the Henderson academy, at that time one of the foremost teacher training schools of the southwest country. It was this institution that gave me an ideal a few years later to future aspirations.

"From old Henderson academy came many of Springfield's prominent citizens. Among them are W. W. Thomas, former city school superintendent; J. E. Wells, manager of the International Harvester company; George Reed, representative in the Missouri general assembly; Charles H. Reed, assistant city clerk; Doctors D. U. Sherman, S. W. Tickle, J. S. Savers, W. A. Dellzell, Attorney U. G. Johnson and many others.

"Well do I remember while attending Henderson academy that one hot May morning I complained of being weary of climbing up the old hill to the academy. My old school friend, Mark Compton, placed his right hand on my shoulder and with his left pointed to the academy 'Boy, this is like climbing the hill of life,' he said. 'If you hold out faithful you shall receive your reward.'

"Just a few days ago my business to a rural Greene county school made it necessary for me to drive from Rogersville through old Henderson and northward. As I drove my car along the narrow bluff road under the hill on the west side of the little town I recalled that as a student I rode along there on a small mule. I stopped opposite the old narrow frame two-story academy building with its small belfry. For a moment I lived over my "School days, school days, good old golden rule days" with all their toils, joys and romances.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpse By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

LON SHARP, commissioner of health and sanitation of this city, can make two claims to distinction that very few others have nowadays. He was born in a log house and he came to Missouri in a covered wagon.

Mr. Sharp's old home town was Grand Saline, Texas, about 65 miles east of Dallas. He was born in a log house on a farm near this town. Grand Saline is in the midst of the cotton country, but its own claim to fame is the large salt plant there.

When Mr. Sharp was six years of age his parents hitched a team to a covered wagon and started the long drive to Laclede county, Missouri.

"I can remember the old wagon and our camps at night where we built great log fires," said Mr. Sharp.

"Once we were over taken by bad weather and we found a little house in the woods where we stayed several days I remember once we started to cross a creek and the horses were struck in the mud so they couldn't pull the wagon out. We had a rope along and our horses were unhitched and after they were on level ground the rope was tied to the wagon tongue so they could pull it out."

For two years Mr. Sharp called Laclede county, south of Lebanon, his home. Then his family moved to a farm in Greene county near Fair Grove.

He still has relatives living at Grand Saline and only a few years ago returned there for a visit. He found the old log house where he was born in still standing.

OTHERS INJURED BY COLLISIONS OVER WEEK END

Greenfield Man Fatally Hurt in Smashup; Cedar County Man Also Killed

FORMER RESIDENTS DIE

Couple Recently Residing in Springfield Perish in Montana Crash

Two men are dead and two others badly injured as the result of week-end automobile smashups in the Ozarks region.

John Divine, 40, whose home was at Greenfield, died instantly at 2 o'clock Sunday morning when his Ford car turned over on Highway No. 12, three miles north of Everton. Driving homeward after attending the 35th division reunion here, he was said to have been speeding and to have attempted to pass a large truck. His light machine skidded in loose gravel and turned over.

Cedar County Man Killed

A deep hole in his forehead, Ira Shurley, 31, Cedar county resident, was killed almost instantly while driving to Stockton to attend a pay party. Poor lights on his car were blamed for a head-on crash with an auto driven by William Hensley of the same neighborhood. The smashup occurred on Highway 64 about 13 miles south of Eldorado

Spring.

John Bradshaw, an occupant of Shurley's car, suffered a broken arm, but three others who were with Shurley escaped with minor hurts. Shurley's machine was demolished, but the car owned by Mr. Hensley was not.

It was believed that the steering wheel struck Shurley when the cars came together.

With Divine in the fatal highway crash near Everton Sunday morning was Wes Russell of Greenfield, who was severely injured. He will recover. An ambulance was sent to the scene of the wreck from Everton, and Divine's body taken to Greenfield.

Former Springfieldians Killed

In addition to the two Ozarks accidents, word was received here this morning that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Justice, formerly Springfield residents, had been killed in an automobile accident near Billings, Mont., their home. The message was received by Mrs. Ida Justice, 468 East Cherry street, mother of Harry Justice.

Mr. and Mrs. Justice left Springfield two years ago for Billings, where Mr. Justice entered business. He is survived by his mother and four sisters, Helen, Vivian, Eva and Neva. His mother is survived by two sons.

ARREST LAMAR YOUTH FOR FATAL ACCIDENT

LAMAR, Mo., Oct. 1.—Ted Rutledge, 18 years old, Lamar youth, was arrested here by Sheriff J. L. Garrett as the driver of a motor car which struck and fatally injured Mrs. Sidney Callison, 60 years old, prominent Lamar woman, here.

The youth, after hours of questioning by police, confessed that he had committed the act.

Charges of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident without reporting were filed.

John Cook of Mount Vernon is one of the oldest citizens of southwest Missouri. For over 50 years he has been publisher of the Mount Vernon Chieftain. He writes:

"Although I have known of Forsyth since I was a ten-year-old kid in Virginia, more than 67 years ago, and had lived in striking distance since 1868, I saw it for the first time Sunday.

"In 1860 my father married Mrs. Maver Ridge of Springfield and brought her to our Virginia home. Her father, Tully Saunders, and John W. Danforth, whose wives were sisters, at the solicitation of Springfield business men in the 1840's established a landing on the present site of Forsyth and named it Forsyth for Major Danforth's native town in Georgia. A warehouse, a store building and two residences, probably all of logs, were erected. The warehouse was used to store the produce, principally furs and hides, sent down by the Springfield merchants to await the arrival of high water and the little stern wheel boats loaded with goods for them, the merchandise taking the place of the produce in the warehouse until the Springfield merchants could send for it.

"My stepmother told me much of her life there as a girl, how she would fish and go with her father on his hunting trips for deer and turkey, how she got so tired of wild meat that it made her sick to see it on the table, how the boat captains would let everyone ride on the boat down to a wood yard a mile or so below from which they would all walk back, etc.

"Naturally it all played hob with my boyhood imagination and I never entirely got rid of the desire to see it, but it was never convenient to do so."

This explains how Forsyth was named and that there is not a final e to its name, a letter many insist on adding.

Voting From Lincoln to Hoover, He Bolted Once For Roosevelt

Civil War Veteran Cast First Republican Ballot In Union Army; 'Any- one Who Could Fight Could Vote'

THE republicans will get the vote of Amos Edwards, 85 years old, 910 South Pickwick street, in 1928 the same as they got it in 1864, when Edwards first voted.

Edwards was 22 years old then, but being in the army, age made little difference. His recollection is that Lincoln called upon the governors of the federal states to issue proclamations allowing any army man to vote regardless of his age. The idea was that any man old enough to fight should be allowed to vote. The governors, with one exception, followed Lincoln's advice.

SOLDIERS SOLID FOR LINCOLN

In 1864, when Lincoln ran for reelection against McClellan, the soldiers voted under conditions that circumstances allowed. Edwards was stationed at Lexington, Ky., in company E., 7th Ohio cavalry, and was one of the election board members. The polls were located in a college dormitory. Soldiers and civilians voted separately, at different polls. No soldier was asked his age because of the ruling, just being checked off on the company rolls after casting his ballot.

Edwards cannot recall just the number of ballots cast at his station that day but they ran into thousands. All the votes were for Lincoln, he says, whom he refers to as one of the grandest men the world has ever known. Throughout the ranks the soldier vote for Lincoln was so solid that he was elected by an overwhelming majority.

CONFEDERATES LOOT TRAIN

The large number of ballots cast at Lexington delayed the final count and the boxes missed the train that was to convey them to Cincinnati. It was a good thing, too. Edwards contends, for the Confederates attacked the train, looted it and then retreated before defense forces could arrive. The next day the ballot boxes were sent north under more adequate protection and safely reached their destination.

Elections nowadays are somewhat similar to those in the past, Edwards agrees. They had a few scuffles around the polls then, but they were confined to fist fights. He cannot remember anything that compares with the recent Texas democratic convention.

BOLTED PARTY ONCE

"We fought with fists, but it seems that they used standards or anything they could pick up."

Edwards always has voted for the republican nominees except in 1912 when he broke the ranks and followed Theodore Roosevelt in his progressive movement. He has no idea of changing his views at this time and November 6 will find him stamping under the eagle as usual.

Two Killed, 3 hurt In Auto Collisions On Ozarks Highways

Motor car accidents in the Ozarks over the weekend resulted in the deaths of John Devine, 40, of Greenfield, and Ira Shurley, 31, of Cedar county.

Devine was killed early Sunday, three miles south of Everton, when his motor car skidded in gravel and overturned.

A collision caused by poor headlights resulted in the death of Shurley when his motor car crashed with another driven by William Hensley, a neighbor, 13 miles south of Eldorado Springs on highway No. 64. John Bradshaw, an occupant of Shurley's car, suffered a broken arm. Three others were uninjured.

Wes Russell of Greenfield, who was with Devine, is recovering from serious injuries suffered in the mishap.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

ABOUT every two weeks these crisp autumn evenings—as well as other leisurely evenings the year around — Walter A. Coon, vice president and trust officer of the Union National bank, drives down to see the folks in his home town—Republic, Mo.

But Republic is not Mr. Coon's only home town. He still cherishes pleasant memories of some other Coon Ozarks communities in which he spent several years. He was born in Urbana, then known as an educational center. Hermitage was another of his "home towns" and it was there that he learned to fish, swim and hunt. When he was small his parents moved to Buffalo where he spent most of his youth. It was in Buffalo, under the direction of "Uncle" Steve Burris, a pioneer merchant that Mr. Coon learned the mercantile business in which he first engaged when he went to Republic in 1899.

"My first glimpse of Republic was in April 1887," recalled Mr. Coon. "I was just a boy and went to Republic to help a preacher move there from Buffalo. I remember we camped out and stayed all night. I was not used to seeing trains and spent most of the night watching them go by. I liked the town so well I resolved to move there some day."

After a few years in Republic Mr. Coon became associated with the Bank of Republic and still is president of that institution.

"Republic is noted for its excellent people and for its small fruits such as grapes and strawberries and its apple orchards," said Mr. Coon. "It always was noted for the cooperation among its people."

Mr. Coon further claims that Republic was the "daddy" of good roads in this county. It built the first gravel road in Greene county, a stretch of more than 25 miles of road built by public subscription. He also points out that Republic had the first accredited first class high school in the county outside Springfield.

Mr. Coon finds it pleasant to recount his associations with friends he first met when he settled in the Greene county town.

Republic, Mr. Coon says, is one of the few small towns which has held its own in population in recent years. He gives figures showing the growth of the town as follows: 1890, population 250; 1900, population 750; 1910, population around 1000, and 1928, population about 1200.

"I only hope that some day I can retire and live on a few acres of land near Republic," said Mr. Coon. "where I can grow my own straw berries and grapes, apples, peaches and cream and can have plenty of fried chicken, country ham smoked with hickory chips, gravy, eggs and old fashioned dried apple pie cut in half moon shape and fried."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

NORFOLK, a picturesque little town in northwestern Connecticut, is the old home town of Dr. E. M. Shepard, former dean of Drury college and one of the outstanding geologists of the country.

Doctor Shepard was born in Windsor, Conn. but his parents moved to Norfolk when he was 6 years of age. His forefathers had lived in that section many years, having first come to Hartford and then moved from there to Windsor.

Doctor Shepard remembers his home town as a peaceful little country village, situated in mountains in the midst of a beautiful lake country. The town now, however, has become an ultra-fashionable summer resort for wealthy New Yorkers. Large estates on which are built magnificent homes spread out from the town several miles in every direction.

The lovely mountainous country used to be attractive to Doctor Shepard for boyish fishing excursions. It was in this region that he learned a love for the out of doors which resulted in his important geological surveys in later years.

During the past summer Doctor Shepard made a trip to the east and visited his old home town. He found the usual changes one would expect time to effect. But he also found the country transformed by the pretentious country homes, attractive drives and the like. His old home was still standing—an old-fashioned New England house of 14 rooms. He also met some of his old schoolmates and together they recalled the days that are past.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

BALTIMORE, Md., the historic city on the Chesapeake bay, is the home town of George S. Russell, of the firm of Russell and Axon, engineers employed by the city to supervise the erection of the Grant Avenue viaduct and of the sewage disposal plant.

Mr. Russell left Baltimore in 1905, not many months following the disastrous fire which burned the heart of the business district of the city. He has been back several times. He stopped there enroute overseas during the World war and has driven there by automobile. His parents, grandmother and other relatives still live there.

"Like every big city, the old part of Baltimore does not change much," said Mr. Russell. "The houses in the old section are built close together, forming a solid wall along the street. This was because of transportation problems which led every one to want to live as close down town as possible. The newer section of the city is built as are suburban developments everywhere.

"Baltimore is a typical southern city. One of the interesting features is the fact that back of the rows of homes in the older section is a 20 foot alley on which live the negroes. This is from the old southern custom when the slaves lived on the back of the lot."

Mr. Russell did not come directly to Springfield from Baltimore. "Like most engineers, I circulated all over the country," he explained. He came to St. Louis from his home, then after working in various cities went to Chicago from where he came to Springfield.

"The thing I missed after leaving Baltimore was the Chesapeake bay," he said. "I am very fond of fishing, boating and crabbing, and of course we have only the fishing here."

ARCH W. MONROE COMMITTS SUICIDE AT HIS HOME HERE

Pilot Found Dying by Wife
With Bullet in Brain; Body
Wracked by Pain

DESPONDENT over illness that had wracked his body with pain for more than two weeks, Arch W. Monroe, 48 years old, an employe of the Frisco railroad 20 years, yesterday afternoon took his life at his home, 546 West Division street.

He had been left alone in his room for a moment while Mrs. Monroe went downstairs to prepare some medicine. Mrs. Monroe heard a shot ring out, and raced upstairs. A gun lay on the bed beside Mr. Monroe where it had fallen after Mr. Monroe had placed it in his mouth and pulled the trigger

APPEARED IN GOOD SPIRITS

He was taken to St. John's hospital where he died a few moments later.

Relatives and friends of the man could assign no reason for the act other than dispondency over poor health. His condition was not considered grave and he had been in fair spirits most of the day, Mrs. Monroe said.

Monroe entered the employ of the Frisco in June 1900, and first was employed as a locomotive fireman. He later was promoted to engineer. During the 28 years service with the company he has worked the greater part of the time on the eastern division, between Springfield and St. Louis.

COMMENDED AS PILOT

Officials in the superintendent of motive power office at the Frisco said Monroe was considered one of the best engineers on the system. A survey of his records revealed that he had been commended many times in recent years for his efficient and economical operation of engines.

He is survived by Mrs. Monroe several children, and a brother, Ed Monroe, of Springfield, also employed by the Frisco.

Monroe was taken to St. John's in a W. L. Starnes ambulance. Funeral arrangements are under direction of Klingner Funeral home.

By CELIA RAY

WHEN Lester E. Cox, chairman of the Boy Scout band committee, was 16 years of age, he had charge of the band in his home town of Republic. Today he points to his boyish enjoyment of that band as the reason he has been interested in helping promote the band for the Boy Scouts of Springfield.

"My first interest in music came when I learned to play a cornet," said Mr. Cox. "I was 13 years old. Luther Beal and I learned at the same time. Then we organized our band and I often wished we could have just such a band as the Springfield boys now have."

Mr. Cox stayed in Republic until he was 18 years of age. His first job was in the Owen and Short Hardware store there. Later he worked during summers in the orchards of Dr. E. L. Beal. After he finished school he taught in Republic one year. He attended Teachers college and Drury college then took a position with the Langenberg Milling and Grain company at Republic. He was sent by the company to complete a special course in Chicago and returned as salesmanager of the milling company. War was declared and he left the old home town to enlist in the air service, and upon his return he entered business in Springfield.

Mr. Cox's parents and his sister still live in Republic and he very often drives there for a visit on Sunday. He sees many changes in the old home town with the transformations brought by good roads and the automobile. The distance between Republic and Springfield is only a matter of around 30 minutes.

"Republic has wonderful community spirit," said Mr. Cox. "It enters into anything helpful to entire region. It has the viewpoint of a much larger town which really

BLOOD GIFT VAIN, DRURY COED DIES

Typhoid Fatal to Jorgia Liepman Despite Transfusions; College Will Hold Memorial Service for Popular Young Student

A young Drury college student last night made a gallant and courageous effort to save the life of Jorgia Liepman, popular Springfield society girl and coed at the college, but the boy's sacrifice was in vain.

Chosen from five fraternity brothers who volunteered to make gifts of blood if they were necessary to save Miss Liepman's life, Harold Garnsey of Aurora, Mo., submitted to a blood transfusion at midnight last night after the girl's condition had become critical and she had lapsed into unconsciousness. She never rallied, dying at 4:30 o'clock this morning at her home, 735 East Walnut street.

Others Ready to Give

Young Garnsey, who submitted to the transfusion, was one of three Drury youths who passed necessary blood tests and were ready to give blood to Miss Liepman. The others were Billy Lincoln, football player, and Walter Nielsen of Akron, Ohio, a personal friend of Miss Liepman for the past two years. All three are members of the Sigma Nu fraternity and are fraternity brothers of Miss Liepman's brother, Paul.

All Drury today mourned Miss Liepman's death, and Dean John N. Bennett announced that a memorial service something like a requiem would be held at the college next week.

Miss Liepman was a sophomore at the college last year and would have been a junior at the present term. She was stricken with typhoid fever several weeks ago. She seemed to be on the road to recovery Wednesday, when internal hemorrhages developed suddenly. Five Sigma Nu men of Drury volunteered to submit to blood transfusions, and three were found to have blood of a suitable type. The hemorrhages began again last night, and a transfusion resorted to.

Funeral Services Sunday

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Grace Methodist Episcopal church, with the Reverend I. D. Harris officiating. Burial will be under direction of the Alma Lodge, Odd Fellows' home.

Miss Liepman is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Liepman; a sister, Gertrude Liepman; a brother, Paul, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carl of Mount Vernon, who were at the home here at the time of the girl's death. Miss Liepman was a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority at Drury.

Young Garnsey was chosen for the transfusion at the last minute, because of Nielsen's nervous condition. Both the youths were at the Liepman home last night.

MAN IS KILLED BY LIVE WIRE, DOWN IN STORM

Springfieldian Perishes As He Stumbles Over Fallen
Line Near City

BODY IS BADLY BURNED

Boy Discovers Victim Hor-ribly Seared; Storm Is Blamed for Tragedy

Stumbling upon a high tension wire near the city disposal plant southwest of Springfield, George W. Harris, 52, was killed and his body horribly burned early this morning.

Hours after Harris' blackened body was found by a schoolboy near the Missouri Pacific tracks 200 yards west of the disposal plant, the man was identified by a city policeman who had seen him often in municipal court in recent years. Later the identification was made positive by a relative. Harris' identity was established mainly by gold teeth, with one missing in front, the man's features being burned beyond recognition by the flashing, searing electricity.

Visited Hell's Pit

Harris, who once operated a grocery store here and who later served a term in county jail on a liquor violation charge, was owner of a farm south of Springfield on the Campbell avenue road.

During the past few weeks he had been seen often in the vicinity of the city disposal plant, and it was thought he might be frequenting Hell's Pit, notorious jungle haunts of knights of the open road, which is near the plant.

Harris was walking early this morning along the Missouri Pacific railway tracks from the depot to Hell's Pit, a crowd of Springfieldians were passing here to find for work.

As he was walking, he saw a high tension wire, and as he stepped on it, he was thrown into the air and fell on the ground. He was killed and his body was badly burned.

blown down during last night's storm, was sputtering on the tracks.

Harris was determined to get into town. He circled the crackling wire, climbed through a wire fence at the side of the right-of-way and started around the obstacle. One foot came in contact with the high tension wire, hidden in deep grass, there was a blinding flash, and a man fell dead.

Boy Finds Burning Body

It must have been 45 minutes later when Clark Boring, 10-year-old school boy who lives on the Brookline road, passed by and saw the body burning near the tracks. He ran to the disposal plant and summoned L. D. Bagga, a sewer construction foreman, who notified the Springfield Gas and Electric company and had the current in the high tension wire cut off.

When Bagga reached the body he found it horribly seared, one leg but burned away, all clothing gone and the face burned beyond recognition. An old watch was the only article found which might furnish clue to the man's identity.

The body was taken to the Herman Schmeier Funeral home and Jewell Windle, Greene county coroner, notified.

The man is survived by four brothers, John and Lem of Battlefield, Ben of Marionville and Tom of Nixa; two sisters, Mrs. Betty Tillman and Mrs. Frank Moore, both of Springfield; a daughter, Mrs. Pauline Stickles of Springfield and a son whose address is unknown. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

W. W. GIDEON

Funeral arrangements were as yet incomplete today for W. W. Gideon, former police chief of Springfield, who died yesterday in Wenatchee, Wash., following a lingering illness. The body will arrive Monday, and funeral services are expected to be held Tuesday.

FRANK W. HAYES

Frank Wesley Hayes, 66, of Mountain Grove, Mo., died early this morning at a Springfield hospital following a brief illness. He is survived by the widow, two sons, H. K. Hayes of Springfield and R. E. Hayes of Jonesboro, Ark.; one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Lewis, of Mountain Grove. The body will be taken to Mountain Grove tonight where arrangements will be made for burial Sunday afternoon in the Mountain Grove cemetery.

MAN, 52, SIZZLES HOURS ON CABLE

Charred Body of George W. Harris Found By Small Boy Near Hell's Pit

George W. Harris, 52, was killed and his body horribly burned, early yesterday when he stumbled over a high tension wire. His body, still smouldering, was found by Clark Boring, 10-year-old school boy, who lives on the Brookline road.

Harris formerly operated a grocery store here and later served time in the Greene county jail on a liquor charge. During the last few weeks he had been seen many times in the neighborhood of Hell's Pit, notorious jungle frequented by tramps, near the city disposal plant.

WEEDS CONCEALED WIRE

Harris is believed to have been on his way to town when he stumbled over the high voltage wire concealed in weeds. It stretched across the railroad tracks near where the Brookline road makes a grade crossing and evidences indicated that he attempted to pass around it.

It was hours before the charred body was identified by a city policeman.

Young Boring, seeing the body sizzling about 200 yards from the road, notified the manager of the city disposal plant, who had the power on the line turned off. The body was taken to the Herman H. Lohmeyer Funeral home.

HOLD FUNERAL SUNDAY

Harris is survived by a son, a daughter, four brothers, Lem and John Harris of Battlefield; Ben of Marionville and Charles of Paola, Col., and by two sisters, Mrs. Anna E. Lee of Springfield, and Mrs. Betty Tillman of Mentor, Mo.

BANTER AT DRURY HUSHED BY DEATH OF POPULAR COED

Funeral Will Be Conducted
Sunday For Miss Jorgia
Liepman Who Died After Blood Transfusion

GAY banter of youth in halls and class rooms at Drury college yesterday was subdued and in place of laughter there were tears.

The student body was mourning the death of Miss Jorgia Liepman, popular Drury co-ed, who expired early yesterday morning after futile efforts to save her life by a blood transfusion.

Chosen from five fraternity brothers, Harold Garnsey, junior, submitted to the transfusion shortly after midnight Thursday when Miss Liepman's condition appeared critical.

DIES FOUR HOURS LATER

The blood gift was in vain for she died at 4:30 a. m., less than four hours after the transfusion. Garnsey was one of five members of the Sigma Nu fraternity, who submitted to blood tests. The others who passed the tests were Walter Niessen, Akron, Ohio, and Billy Lincoln, Springfield.

Garnsey was selected at the last moment for the transfusion because of his calm mental and nervous condition. Mr. Niessen had been an intimate friend of Miss Liepman for the last two years.

Funeral services will be conducted at Grace Methodist Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Reverend I. D. Harris, Miss Liepman's pastor, will officiate.

MEMORIAL SERVICE PLANNED

Members of the Drury college chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha, of which Miss Liepman was a member, and of Drury chapter of Sigma Nu, of which she was a fraternity sister, will attend the services in a body.

Students and faculty members of Drury will pay respect to Miss Liepman at memorial services, which probably will be held at one of the regular chapel hours of the college, one day next week, Dean John N. Bennett announced.

POPULAR IN YOUNGER SET

Miss Liepman was one of the more popular members of Springfield's social set. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Liepman, a sister, Miss Jewell Liepman, and a brother, Paul Liepman. Funeral services will be under direction of Alma Lohmeyer Funeral home.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

J. D. HULL, JR., principal of the Springfield High school often goes back to visit in his old home town — Mountain Grove, Mo. And when he gets there, he says he starts around the public square trying to see everybody.

There's W. S. Candler, chairman of the board of regents of State Teachers college; O. D. "Spike" Shannon, who is in the building and loan business and who was in high school with Mr. Hull; Tom Short, who is in the real estate business and also as in school with Mr. Hull; Floyd Gamble, hardware dealer in Mountain Grove many years, O. H. "Dad" Steagler, one of the best hunters and fishermen in that section and a host of others Mr. Hull always tries to visit with when he returns to the old home town.

Mr. Hull lived in Mountain Grove until he went to college. After he had finished his education he returned there as principal of the high school one year. Last spring he delivered the commencement address to the graduating class of the Mountain Grove High school. It has been 10 years since he last left the town.

Mr. Hull still is a booster for Mountain Grove. When he takes time out for a fishing trip he is pretty likely to go back to the region he became familiar with as a boy. Summer before last he fished on the Gasconade river near Hartsville.

"Mountain Grove is progressive—a good school and church town," he declared. "It has as other attractions the state fruit experiment station and state poultry station."

BELIEVE MYSTERY MURDER AT DIXON IS NEAR SOLUTION

Two Pulaski County Youths Arrested in Detroit For Slay-ing of John Shackelford in September

TWO MEN FACE CHARGE OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Sheriff Pieces Evidence Against Pair Following Killing at Roadhouse More Than Month Ago

Special Dispatch to The News and Leader
DIXON, Mo., Oct. 6.—Nerves snapping in the excitement of "shooting up" and robbing a little roadhouse north of here, two young Dixon men shot and killed a youth whom they had known since boy-hood as a friend.

Such was the picture drawn today by Sheriff Wyrick of Pulaski county of the holdup on the night of September 20 at the Charles Jones roadhouse near here several weeks ago, in which John Shackelford, Dixon youth, was shot down and killed without provocation.

MURDER CHARGES FILED

The youths whom Wyrick charges are the slayers of young Shackelford tonight are in the county jail at Waynesville, awaiting a preliminary hearing there October 17 on first degree murder charges. They are Adrian Riddle and George Pumpmill, both 23 years old and both of Dixon.

Arrest of the alleged slayers of Shackelford came after Sheriff Wyrick had picked up a tiny clue and quietly followed a trail half way across the continent. Riddle and Pumpmill were arrested at the home of a friend in Fordson, a suburb of Detroit, Mich., at the request of the Pulaski county sheriff. Wyrick went to Detroit and brought them to the county jail here.

Wyrick is reticent in discussing the evidence on which the arrests were based—he wants to wait until the preliminary hearing is over. He tells, however, that the two young men were seen the day of the murder in a strange car at Dixon, and that they were seen in the same car near the Jones roadhouse a short time after the shooting. The car later was found abandoned in St. Louis, according to the sheriff.

Two 'Original Daughters'

Miss Evaline Clifton

Mrs. Elizabeth Talliaferro McClelland

Two "original Daughters" of the American Revolution will be honored by the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R. by memorial services and the unveiling of markers on their graves this week.

The first was Miss Evaline Clifton, the only "original Daughter" ever to belong to the Springfield chapter. She was the daughter of Nathan Clifton, who enlisted in the Colonial Armies from his Carolina home at the age of 17. The family moved to Webster county (then a part of Greene county) near Marshfield in 1840, and Miss Clifton is buried in the Clifton cemetery on the place which her father settled nearly 90 years ago.

She devoted her early womanhood to the care of her father, who lived to the age of 104, so she never married. She died in 1912, being then 96 years old.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock members of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R., and surviving kinsfolk of the Clifton and related families, will gather for the unveiling service at her grave of the monument erected by the Springfield members of the D. A. R. Children from the nearby school also will attend.

It is a granite slab, inscribed with her name, "Miss Evaline Clifton, 1816-1912, daughter of Nathan Clifton, who served in the Revolutionary War," and with a bronze plaque bearing the insignia of the D. A. R. and the words "Original Daughter" inset.

The monument will be unveiled by Clay Lane and Robert William Lindenstruth, both of Marshfield, and grandnephews of Miss Clifton.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

The program for the unveiling and memorial service follows:

Prayer.

Address by Mrs. L. M. Sawyer, Regent of the Rachel Donelson chapter of D. A. R.

Reading by Mrs. E. O. Worthy.

Personal reminiscences of Miss Clifton by Miss Janie Hubble.

Unveiling of monument by Clay Lane and Robert William Lindenstruth.

Song, "How Firm a Foundation," by congregation.

Decoration of grave with flowers.

Benediction.

On Tuesday afternoon, acting in behalf of the Jefferson chapter of the D. A. R. in St. Louis, members of the Rachel Donelson chapter will unveil a similar memorial marker to Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland, who was a member of the St. Louis chapter before the Springfield chapter was organized, although she lived near Springfield at the time.

She was the daughter of Richard Talliaferro, of an old Virginia family, who took part in the historical Rogers and Clark expedition as a young man, and who was a Revolutionary veteran.

BURIED NEAR CITY

Mrs. McClelland was born in Batavia, Ohio, April 26, 1805; married Samuel McClelland in 1827, and moved with him to Missouri in 1833. Her only child, a daughter, married Captain L. A. Rountree, and Mrs. McClelland is buried in the Rountree family burying ground about three miles southwest of Springfield.

Mrs. McClelland died August 3, 1900.

Mrs. McClelland died August 3, 1900. The marker for her grave is provided by the Jefferson chapter, but the distance of the chapter from the spot led members to ask the Rachel Donelson chapter to dedicate it.

The following unveiling program will begin at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon:

Prayer, the Reverend O. L. Black.
General singing of America, led by Miss Dorothy Dyer.

Sketch of the life of Mrs. McClelland, by Mrs. L. M. Sawyer, regent of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R.

Address, the Reverend O. L. Black.
Reading Alice Lawson, great-great-granddaughter of Mrs. McClelland.
Unveiling of the marker, Alice Lawson Benediction, the Reverend O. L. Black.

ALL FRIENDS INVITED

There are now living in Springfield, St. Louis, Joplin, and Pasadena, Cal. 16 great grandchildren and great great grandchildren of Mrs. McClelland.

Both memorials services have been arranged by a special committee on the marking of "real Daughters' graves, of which Miss Janie Hubble is chairman and Mrs. Harry Blissett, Mrs. Norman Freudentherger, and Mrs. Fred Clark, the members.

Members of the committee especially invite all the kinsfolk and friends of either of the women being honored to attend the services.

'Discovered' At Ninety She Is Honored In Tomb

Seeking Out the 'Original Daughters' of the Amer- ican Revolution, Order Unveils Shaft to Miss Clifton

By DOCIA KARELL

PAST and present merged into the smooth current of ageless time for a brief period yesterday as more than 200 persons, city folk and country folk, old and young, stranger and kinaman, gathered in a remote little Ozarks' burying-ground to do honor to an "original Daughter" of the American Revolution.

The setting was idyllic—the air scintillant in its sunlit clarity, both crisp and soft; the sky pure azure; the surrounding hills in the remote and Sabbath serenity glowing with the farflung tapestry of autumn, richly colorful in their intricate blendings of a thousand browns, bright golds, old greens, vivid crimsons and occasional scarlet, all melting together in purple haze on the horizon.

MARKER HONORS MEMORY

The little Clifton burying ground, a few miles south from Marshfield, is reached only over old country roads rocky and winding; it reposes in a small clearing, exposed to spring rains and summer suns, autumn winds and winter snows, except for the shelter of one great tree which spreads a grateful shade directly over the graves of Nathan Clifton, Revolutionary soldier buried in 1862, and Evaline Clifton, his daughter, buried near him in 1912.

To Miss Clifton's grave members of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution came yesterday afternoon to dedicate a monument and a bronze marker erected in her honor by the chapter. Members of the Clifton family relationship came for the ceremony, and old neighbors from the country round and from Marshfield. Automobiles were parked and horses hitched along the road, as the celebrants found their way to the little burying plot aloft.

OBJECTIVE IS EXPLAINED

or Robert William Lindenstruth, of Marshfield, himself a veteran of the World war. The monument at the head of her grave was draped in the large, worn flag which Major Lindenstruth explained had been used during the war, and the grave itself was covered with vivid masses of autumn

The Reverend H. D. Byrd of Marshfield opened the dedication service with a prayer, which was followed by general singing of "America," under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Dyer.

Mrs. L. H. Sawyer, regent of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R., then told briefly of the work of that organization, and its purpose to find and to mark the graves of "real Daughters" whenever it is possible. She explained also the object to preserve and to mark historic spots for the inspiration of future generations.

LOYAL UNTO DEATH

S. A. Shelton of Marshfield, former member of Congress, made a patriotic address in which he traced the history of the American nation through its various wars, from the days of the Revolution in which Nathan Clifton fought to those of the world war well remembered by most of those present.

Major Lindenstruth himself spoke on behalf of members of the Clifton family, and recalled his boyhood memories of Miss Clifton. "She was loyal," he said. "She gave up the beaux of her girlhood, to remain loyal to her father when he needed her care in his old age—a thing very few young women would do.

"Although she never knew the joys of mothering children of her own flesh, when her brother died she raised his children, and was a real mother to them."

Although strong in her own faith—"she lived it and died it," Major Lindenstruth said—she never was heard to breathe a word of criticism for any other religion, he said.

'DISCOVERED' AT 90

Miss Janie Hubble, chairman of the committee in charge of marking real daughters' graves, who "discovered" Miss Clifton and visited her when she was well past 90, recalled her personal memories of her.

She described her as a little old woman, remarkably hale for her years, quaintly dressed in black, with a short black cape in which were stuck a number of threaded needles to be used in her sewing.

Miss Clifton had a remarkably clear memory, she said, and unusual command of her faculties. Until past 80 she rode horseback through the hills, and was able to sew up to within a few weeks of her death at the age of 96.

Two lads, Clay Lane and Robert William Lindenstruth, great-grand-nephews of Miss Clifton, then removed the flag from the monument and bronze marker bearing the words "Real Daughter" engraved on behalf of the D. A. R. presented the D. A. R. shield, and Miss Hubble on memorial to members of the Clifton family.

The service closed with all singing "How Firm a Foundation," which had been one of Miss Clifton's favorite hymns.

Miss Clifton came to Webster county, near Marshfield, with her father, in 1840, and lived there until the time of her death. At 95 she was made a member of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R. and was presented the solid gold spoon which the national organization gives to "real daughters."

Among the closest of her kinsfolk at the service yesterday were J. M. J. F., and D. D. Clifton, of Springfield her own nephews; Mrs. U. B. Nease her niece who still lives on the farm; Nathan Clifton settled in 1840; Mary E. Clifton, of Marshfield, and Mrs. Lizzie Lane, of Marshfield, her nieces. Several other grand nieces and nephews and great-grand-nieces and nephews also were there.

UNVEIL MARKER TOMORROW

Tomorrow, on behalf of the Jefferson chapter of St. Louis of which Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland was a member until her death in 1900, the Rachel Donelson chapter will mark Mrs. McClelland's grave in the Roundtree family cemetery three miles southwest of Springfield. Mrs. McClelland also was a "real daughter," and affiliated with the St. Louis chapter before the Springfield chapter was organized. The St. Louis chapter has provided the marker, and the Springfield chapter will unveil it tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

All kinsfolk or old friends of Mrs. McClelland, and any others interested are invited to attend.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

THE Reverend E. O. Sechler, pastor of the Central Christian church and president of the Springfield Ministerial alliance, was born on a farm seven miles southwest of Buffalo. He lived there until he was grown except for a short interval when he lived in Buffalo. He really could claim then to be a citizen of both Polk and Dallas counties for his father's farm was divided by the county line.

"I have a warm feeling toward Buffalo and the people that live in that community," said Mr. Sechler. "I think it is the best inland town I know about. It has an unusually high class of citizens—fine, staid old families who have lived there many years."

During the past summer Mr. Sechler returned to the old home for a visit. His parents left the farm several years ago and moved to Springfield, but he found many old friends he had not seen for many years.

"I visited the Prairie Grove church, about a mile from our old home," he said. "It was the church I attended until I was 14 years of age. I saw people there I hadn't met for 25 years."

A homecoming service was being held at the church and Mr. Sechler preached in the afternoon. During the day he visited with Silas King, 70 years of age, a leader in the Prairie Grove church he hadn't seen for 10 years, and with many other friends he had known since boyhood.

The Prairie Grove church has furnished about six preachers to the Christian denomination. These include besides Mr. Sechler his twin brother, Earl Sechler who is engaged in church missionary work with headquarters in Springfield; Virgil Walker, formerly pastor of a St. Paul, Minn., church, who recently moved to Springfield to engage in evangelistic work; Ardra Walker, pastor at Corpus Christi, Texas, and John Gregg, pastor at Fair Grove.

Dallas county, Mr. Sechler said, has been called the "preacher incubator" of Missouri. It has furnished about 30 ministers in the Christian church, many of them among the leaders of the denomination.

D. R. HONORS IL DAUGHTER

Col. Ceremony Held Near Marshfield Honoring Miss
Evaline Clifton

There was paid yesterday to the memory of a real "daughter of the revolution," Miss Evaline Clifton, who was buried in a little creek cemetery more than 15 years ago.

Some 300 persons, including members of the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R. kinematics of Miss Clifton and people who had been her neighbors, gathered at the little Clifton cemetery a few miles south of Marshfield for the dedication of a bronze marker and monument, erected in her memory.

The grave was banked with wild autumn flowers and the monument was draped in a worn flag which had been used during the war. Major Robert William Lindenstruth, a veteran of the world war, and a grand-nephew of Miss Clifton, acted as master of ceremonies.

The Reverend L. H. Byrd of Marshfield opened the service with prayer. Cemetery Ceremony Held

The group gathered about the grave, which adjoins the grave of Miss Clifton's father, Nathan Clifton, a Revolutionary war veteran, sang "America" with Miss Dorothy Dyer leading.

Mrs. L. M. Sawyer, regent of the Rachel Donelson chapter, D. A. R., told briefly of the work of the organization and of its purpose in finding and marking the graves of the daughters of men who fought in the Revolutionary war.

B. A. Shelton of Marshfield, former congressman, made a brief patriotic address, tracing the history of the American nation through the various wars from the time when Nathan Clifton fought to the recent world war.

Major Lindenstruth spoke of his boyhood memories of Miss Clifton, telling of her fine loyalty to her father and her care of her brother's children.

Miss Janie Hubble, chairman of the committee in charge of marking graves, told of a visit she had paid Miss Clifton when that "real daughter" was past 90. She described her as a little woman, quaintly dressed and remarkably hale and strong for a woman of that age. Until past 80, Miss Clifton rode horseback through the hills and until a few weeks before her death at 96, she sewed garments.

Favorite Hymn Sung

Clay Lane and Robert Lindenstruth, great grand nephews of Miss Clifton, removed the flag from the monument.

The echoes of "How Firm a Foundation," a favorite hymn of Miss Clifton, sounded through the little cemetery to close the service.

Miss Clifton came to Webster county with her father in 1840 and spent the rest of her life there. Among those who attended the service yesterday were two nephews, J. F. Clifton and D. D. Clifton of Springfield; Mrs. U. S. Nease, a niece who still lives at the farm which Nathan Clifton settled, and Mary E. Clifton and Mrs. Linnie Lane of Marshfield, nieces.

Miss Clifton was made a member of the Rachel Donelson chapter, D. A. R., when she was 95 years old.

A monument to Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland, a member of the Jefferson chapter D. A. R. of St. Louis, and another "real daughter" will be unveiled at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by the Rachel Donelson chapter. Mrs. McClelland's grave is in the Roundtree family cemetery three miles southwest of Springfield.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

AT LEAST - once each year the Reverend Lewis M. Hale, pastor of the First Baptist church, goes back to his old home in Shelby county.

Doctor Hale was born on a farm three miles from Shelbyville and lived there until he went to Liberty, Mo., to take his academy and college course at William Jewell. His grandfather had come from Tennessee to settle in Shelby county with the first of the pioneers.

"Shelbyville is a county seat," said Doctor Hale, "and I used to spend much time about the court house where my father's brother was probate judge about 20 years.

"When I was a boy we had no rural mail delivery so it was my job to go to Shelbyville about twice a week after the mail. We always did our trading at a large general store there."

Doctor Hale's father was a minister who preached on Sunday and farmed the remainder of the week. He left the farm about 12 years ago, however, upon the death of Doctor Hale's mother, and went to Shelbyville to live with a daughter. In addition to his father, Doctor Hale has a brother and three sisters living in the little Shelby county town.

"When I left home to go to school I never had before been out of Shelby county," said Doctor Hale. "My older brother was a preacher and I think that perhaps his life as well as that of my father influenced me to become a minister. Even as a small boy I felt the influence of the profound conviction with which my father regarded the ministry."

Very few of the pioneer settlers remain at Shelbyville, Doctor Hale finds as he returns to the town each year. There has been progress in schools and highways, and the like. A small railroad also has been built there since he was a boy and it is no longer an inland town.

Display Old Order Washington Signed As U. S. President

Copies of an extract from an act of congress May, 1793, signed by Thomas Jefferson, then secretary of state, and a proclamation signed by Jefferson and George Washington, president of the United States, in 1793 are the property of Mrs. F. L. Padgitt of Springfield.

The two documents, yellowed and worn with age, are curiously lettered in the old style of writing "f" and "s" in the center of the word. The signatures of Washington and Jefferson are faded, but legible.

The act of congress deals with the behavior of white people entering the limits set aside for Indians. It apparently was forwarded by the government to the head of the Indian tribe. The proclamation calls attention to the act and concerns the Wiatonon Indians at that time living in Wiaw in what was known as the territory of Kansas. Wiaw was near the present city of Paola, Kan.

Mrs. Padgitt's grandfather was a missionary who supervised the mission school at Wiaw for the Indians. Her grandmother was a missionary teacher also and her father was born in the mission and had the confidence and love of the Indians. The old documents were found in an Indian cabin and given to Mrs. Padgitt's father.

The documents have been on display at the Remington Typewriter company, of which Mrs. Padgitt's husband is manager, several days.

'ORIGINAL DAUGHTER'

Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland

By DOCIA KARELL

"HER children arise up and call her blessed," even unto the third and fourth generation"—

Mrs. Maud Buckley, standing hand in hand with little Alice Lawson, recited the words at the D. A. R. memorial service over the grave of Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland in the Bountree cemetery southwest of the city yesterday afternoon.

AN ORIGINAL DAUGHTER

Those two, representing the third and fourth generation, were the only direct descendants of Mrs. McClelland at the service. Mrs. Buckley is a great-granddaughter, and Alice a great-great-granddaughter.

The occasion was the unveiling by the Rachel Donelson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of a bronze marker provided by the St. Louis chapter in honor of an "original daughter."

Mrs. McClelland had been a member of the St. Louis chapter before the Rachel Donelson chapter was organized. She was a daughter of Richard Tallaferrro, Revolutionary veteran and a member of the famous Lewis and Clark expedition into the north west. As a young woman she came with her husband, Samuel McClelland, to Missouri in 1833. She died in 1900, in the same neighborhood where she had lived for more than half a century.

The spirit of pioneer womanhood represented by Mrs. McClelland formed the motif for the service yesterday. Mrs. E. A. Barbour in a vivacious address recalled the aspirations and idealism of those early pioneer mothers who were "original daughters" of the American Revolution, and urged upon members of the D. A. R. today the possibility of being in spirit "real daughters" of those earlier daughters, preserving the same high standards of conduct, character and patriotism.

HISTORY OF LIFE READ

Perhaps, she suggested, the physical handicaps endured and conquered by pioneer mothers of earlier generations were no harder to meet than the social hardships of mothers today, who, she said, must still be real pioneers if they are to keep alive in contemporary youth the traditional ideals on which America is founded.

The Reverend Oscar Lee Black, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, also made an address in which he traced the beginnings of American history leading to the Revolution, emphasizing the religious idealism of the nation's founders.

Mrs. L. M. Sawyer, regent of the Rachel Donelson chapter, read a brief account of Mrs. McClelland's life.

CHILD UNVEILS MARKER

Then little Alice Lawson recited a poem, "Our Pioneer Mothers," and unveiled the bronze marker designed with the D. A. R. insignia and the engraved words, "Original Daughter."

Mrs. McClelland's grave was profusely decorated with quantities of brilliant autumn flowers. Some of land's descendants in other parts of them had been sent by Mrs. McClelland's country.

Preceding the unveiling ceremony, members of the Rachel Donelson chapter had met at the cemetery for a basket dinner.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

JOHN S. FARRINGTON, attorney, is another prominent Springfieldian who spent his early life on a Missouri farm.

Mr. Farrington was born on a farm about five miles from Fayette and lived there until he was grown. He still has many relatives living in the community where he spent his youth. His mother now resides in Fayette and he returns there often.

"I go back to Fayette about Farrington every two or three months for a visit," said Mr. Farrington.

Fayette, the county seat of Howard county, just north of the Missouri river, has a population of about 3000.

"The town has changed in many ways since I was a boy," remarked Mr. Farrington. "It has grown somewhat in population, has paved streets and an improved school system."

Mr. Farrington's first years of school were spent in a little country school house called Cherry Grove.

"It was only about two or three miles from my home," is the way Mr. Farrington describes the daily journey he made for his early education. In fair weather he walked to school and at other times he rode horseback. This he recalls as somewhat pleasant experience, even though there were days when it may have seemed tiresome to him as a boy.

HONOR 'REAL DAUGHTER'

Grave of Revolutionary War Hero's Child Decorated by Springfield Organization at Impressive Ceremony

The grave of Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland, daughter of Richard Tallaferra, a Revolutionary war veteran, was marked yesterday by the Rachel Donelson chapter of the D. A. R., in the presence of the great granddaughter and a greatgreat-granddaughter of the pioneer woman.

Mrs. Maud Buckley and little Alice Lawson, the two descendants, heard Mrs. A. E. Barbour made an address on the "original daughters" of the American Revolution, stressing the idealism and fortitude that were theirs in those days of hardship.

Mrs. Barbour suggested that the hardships of those pioneering mothers were perhaps no harder to face than the problems of the modern mother who must keep alive in the youth of today the traditional ideals on which America is founded.

The Reverend Oscar Lee Black traced the history of America at the time of the Revolution, emphasizing the religious ideals of the early Americans.

Mrs. L. M. Sawyer, regent of the D. A. R., read an account of the life of Mrs. McClelland, and Alice Lawson recited a poem.

"Our Pioneer Mothers" and unveiled the bronze marker which is designed with the D. A. R. insignia and bears the words, "Original Mother."

Mrs. McClelland had been a member of the St. Louis chapter of the D. A. R. and that organization provided the bronze marker which the Springfield chapter unveiled.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

NOW that politics is warming up in the campaign of 1928, John L. McCormack, superintendent of freight loss and damage claims department of the Frisco, recalls a campaign in which he took a boyish interest back in his home town of Cuba, Missouri.

That was the famous Norton-Clark race for the senate in 1892. Champ Clark was a personal friend

Mr. McCormack's father and often visited in the home. In those days the senatorial candidates made a house to house canvass. Mr. McCormack drove the horse and buggy for the famous Missouri statesman to make his hand shaking tour over the Cuba community.

Mr. McCormack completed high school in Cuba and then took up the study of law. During the campaign in which he acted as driver for Mr. Clark he had met Frank H. Farris, another famous Missouri statesman. Mr. Farris was an attorney in Steelville, county seat of Crawford county, and Mr. McCormack went to his office to study law. Later he was graduated from law school and for a time was partner with Mr. Farris. Another Springfieldian was in Steelville at the same time, that was John T. Woodruff, also an attorney.

Mr. McCormack still returns frequently to Cuba for visits. He has a sister living there and many friends he knew when a boy.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

SEDALIA is the home town of Miss Della Altemiller, president of the Springfield Business and Professional Women's club. The busy years since she became a business woman, however, have prevented her making frequent visits at the old home. Miss Altemiller says she was there three years ago.

Altemiller Miss Altemiller was born in Krakow, Franklin county, and her family moved to Sedalia when she was 6 years of age. She still has a sister and two brothers living there.

Miss Altemiller attended the Sedalia schools and started her business career in that city. She entered a millinery shop there and learned the trade which she still follows.

"It was necessary for me to go to work," recalls Miss Altemiller concerning her early career. "Most of the girls who entered business then were either milliners or stenographers, and I always had enjoyed sewing so I chose millinery.

"One of my sisters liked cooking. She always did the housework while

I did the sewing so it seemed only natural that I should start in the career I chose."

Miss Altemiller did not come direct from Sedalia to Springfield.

"I traveled about a lot, before I came here," she explains. "I like Springfield better than any place else. Sedalia is a pleasant town in which to live. I liked it when I was there. But there is no place else like Springfield."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

A COUNTRY newspaper office in Kansas gave Mrs. Maude Johnson, president of the Community Business and Professional Women's club and owner of the Johnson Print shop, the inspiration for her career.

Mrs. Johnson was born in Tipton, Ind., but her parents moved to Eskridge, Kan., when she was 3 years of age. It was there that Mrs. Johnson finished high school and also that she got her first whiff of printers' ink. Her father, after serving as superintendent of Kansas schools, bought the "Eskridge Star" and her four brothers became newspaper men, buying papers of their own.

Mrs. Johnson attended Campbell university at Holtan, Kan., then returned home and was married. Her husband died and she was left with two small children.

"Father had moved to Lyndon, Kan., and was publishing the Lyndon Herald," she recalled. "I taught school awhile but found I could not support myself and the children that way so I borrowed $150 and bought a dead newspaper in western Kansas.

"Then I advertised for a town which wanted a newspaper. Hickkory, Okla., answered and the city authorities paid the freight on my plant for me to move it there.

"I stayed there about six months, sold my subscription list for $150, paid back the freight expense and moved to Kenesick, Okla. I stayed there a few years and sold my plant for $1250.

"Then I went to Hartford, Ark.—which really seems to me to be my old home town for I was there 11 years—and bought the 'Hartford Observer.' "

Mrs. Johnson still recalls many pleasant incidents of the towns in which she lived before coming to Springfield. Occasionally she sees or hears from friends of a former day. But above all, she retains an enthusiasm for the profession she saw her father and brothers embark upon back in the old home town.

Van Buskirk-Boss Wedding Solemnized

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last Sunday evening at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Rhodes, 980 North Main, when Miss Ida Constance Boss became the bride of Mr. Lyman R. Van Buskirk of Stockton, Mo.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Frances Rhodes sang, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bride descended the stairs, preceded by her maid of honor, Miss Mary Lamona. They were met at the foot of the stairs by the groom and his best man, Mr. Francis Babba. The single ring service was performed by Father Isadore, O. S. B., before an improvised trellis entwined with ferns and roses banded with art baskets of yellow dahlias.

Miss Rhodes wore an afternoon frock of orchid crepe with lace trimming. The maid of honor wore an attractive frock of peach chiffon velvet, fashioned sleeveless with bodice effect, and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bride was charming in a gown of white satin, fashioned bouffant with uneven hem line. Her tulle veil was held in place with a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white Killarney roses. After the ceremony an informal reception was held. The out of town guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Boss, of Pomona, Mo.; Mrs. P. E. Scharf, and daughters, Velma and Marjorie, of Mountain View, Mo.; Miss Ethel Ramsey, Miss Nellie Boss, Mr. Frank Boss, Victor Boss and Martin Cross, of Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Dorothy Van Buskirk and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fritts of Stockton, Mo.

Mrs. W. G. Turner died at her home in St. Louis Saturday night, relatives here were notified yesterday. The funeral will be held in St. Louis tomorrow, with burial there. Mrs. Turner is survived by the husband and two daughters, Helen and Betty. She was formerly Miss Gertrude Singleton of Springfield.

A HALF century of marriage life, all of which has been spent in the Ozarks, was celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fly, 723 East Elm street, Sunday, at which a large group of friends and relatives were present.

The Flys were married October 12, 1872, six miles north of Cassville, Mo.

Both married young, Fly being 19 years of age and his bride barely 18. They lived on his farm near Purdy, Mo., until 1924, when the desire to be near their children, Mrs. J. A. Burrows, 845 Nettleton avenue, and Mrs. H. R. Blankenship, 1842 East Blaine street, drew them from the homestead they had known for years to Springfield.

Springfield has pleased the Flys and they have no desire to return to their former abode. The convenience of the city has appealed to them. Fly traded his farm for city property and the work connected with overseeing it is far less than keeping up a farm.

Modern farm machinery, Fly asserts, has done more to lessen the farmer's burden than anything else. He believes that tariff is of some assistance to the farmer but insists that the farm problem is up to the farmers, individually. Hard work is the chief remedy. Of the presidential candidates, Fly believes that Hoover will do more in the way of agricultural relief.

The Flys have five grandchildren, four of them the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Burrows and one child of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Blankenship.

The guests at this fiftieth wedding anniversary were Mr. Sam Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stubblefield, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Blankenship, all of Cassville, Mr. Harold Powell of Boonville, Miss Emma Herbold of Thayer, Miss Charline Hoffman of Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Burrows and children, Arthur, Jr., Charles and Hollis, Mrs. Alva Deal and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Johnson, all of Springfield.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfield-
fieldians to Places They've

By CELIA RAY

The father of W. F. Spencer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was a Methodist minister, which means that the Springfield man has had many home towns and lived only a short time in each one

Mr. Spencer was born in Valentine, Neb., but his parents left there when he was two years of age. Before he was grown he had lived in several towns in Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas and Oregon. He lived ten years in Salamanca, N. Y., which was the record for residence in one town.

It was in the state of New York that Mr. Spencer learned his love for a hobby that he still cherishes—fishing. Next to his work, Mr. Spencer says fishing is his greatest hobby. During his youth in New York he fished in the Allegheny river and small streams flowing into it.

There were pleasant and sad phases to the constant moving which he did in his youth as his father followed the church assignments of the officials.

"I really had a delightful time seeing new places and meeting new youngsters," said Mr. Spencer.

"At the same time though there were heartbreaks, particularly after I got about 8 years old. Then I hated to leave friends I had made in the neighborhood and go to other towns to meet new boys."

During this summer Mr. Spencer made a trip back to Salamanca. It was the second time he had been there since he left 30 years ago.

When he left Salamanca, Mr. Spencer went to Baker university one year. For financial reasons he quit to work in the Y. M. C. A. in Kansas City. He kept up his study through correspondence courses, extension courses and 16 summer schools and remained in Kansas City ten years as assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. From there he went to Carthage where for five years he was general secretary. He recently completed his eleventh year in Springfield as general secretary. On the day he completed his 25th year as Y. M. C. A. secretary Mr. Spencer presided at the opening session of the state convention of the Y. M. C. A.

FIND TWO BOYS DEAD IN WRECK OF MOTOR CAR

Crane Youths Killed While on Way Home From Reeds
Spring

Body Vain Search for them

Two young boys were found dead this morning beneath the wreckage of a car near Reeds Spring on highway 48, where the bodies had lain since Saturday night.

The lads, J. B. Henry, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Henry, and Willard Hair, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hair, both of Crane, had attended a dance in Reeds Spring Saturday evening and left for their home about midnight. They presumably were killed a few minutes later when they evidently had attempted to round a sharp curve in the road at high speed.

Relatives Search Vainly

Relatives had started a search for the boys when they did not return Saturday evening, but no trace had been found of them until this morning, though the accident occurred only a mile and a half from Reeds Spring.

The car had hurtled itself a distance from the road into a hollow and was not evident to passersby.

Both boys were students in the Crane high school. When the bodies were found they were badly crushed and indications were that death was instantaneous. No inquest was held.

Borrowed Car Wrecked

The motor car, an Essex coupe, which had been borrowed from a friend in Crane for the pleasure trip to the dance, was completely demolished.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

DOUBLE SERVICES FOR CAR VICTIMS

Rites Will Be Held Today For High School Youths Killed In Accident

A double funeral will be held this afternoon for J. B. Henry, 18, and Willard Hair, 16, two Crane, Mo., youths who were killed early Sunday morning in an automobile accident near Reeds Spring, according to arrangements completed by the parents yesterday.

The boys were found dead early yesterday morning beneath the wreckage of their car near Reeds Spring on highway No. 43.

Took Curve Too Fast

Both had attended a dance in Reeds Spring Saturday evening and left for home shortly after midnight Sunday. They were killed, it is thought, a few minutes later when they had evidently attempted to turn a sharp curve at a high rate of speed.

Although relatives had started a search when the boys failed to return Saturday night, their bodies were not found until yesterday morning. The car, in leaving the road, hurtled into a hollow some distance from the road and was not seen by passersby.

High School to Close

No inquest will be held as relatives were satisfied that the boys were killed accidentally. Henry was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Henry, and Hair the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hair.

Both boys were students in the Crane high school. School authorities announced that classes will be dismissed this afternoon to allow classmates to attend the services, which will be held at the First Presbyterian church, beginning at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in the Masonic cemetery.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've
Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

JUDGE T. K. BOWMAN of the county court took the advice of Horace Greeley to go west and grow up with the country and so left his home town of Apollo, Penn., when he was a young man.

Bowman

Apollo was a town of around 2000 when Judge Bowman was a boy living there. The population has grown some since and Apollo has acquired the usual civic improvements of modern American towns, but it retains as its principal industry that of the iron works. The town is in the western part of Pennsylvania in the midst of a coal mining region.

"I went through the public schools at Apollo, then worked for a time at Pittsburgh and decided to go west," said Judge Bowman. "I first went to Kansas. That was in 1884. Still I wasn't satisfied and I started out to find a better place and that was when I came to Springfield in 1889. I have never had any desire to go anywhere else to live."

Judge Bowman has made two trips back to Apollo to visit. The last time was about 13 years ago, but he found few persons he knew. Only distant relatives and a very few boyhood friends remain. The old home town had been transformed since he left it 44 years ago.

Miss Ryker Becomes Bride Of Mr. Viles

A pretty church wedding was celebrated last night at the First Presbyterian church when Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Ryker, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Ryker, 621 Holland street, became the bride of Mr. Lester Gideon Viles, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Viles, 929 West Lombard street.

The ceremony was read at 8 o'clock by the Reverend Oscar Lee Black. Preceding the ceremony Professor Marcus Peterson of Aurora played "Narcissus" (Nevin), "All For You" (Bertrand-Brown) and "At Dawning" (Cadman). Professor Peterson sang the last two numbers, playing his own accompaniment. The bridal party approached the altar to the strains of "The Bridal Song" (Wagner).

The vows were read before an altar intertwined with ferns and garden flowers. White satin bows and variegated autumn flowers marked the ends of the pews.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with pearl trimming. Her veil was of tulle and lace and was caught to her head with a band of rhinestones and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Marguerite Drake of Aurora was maid of honor and wore a bouffant frock of yellow crepe. She carried yellow pernet roses. Misses Vesta and Veda Frazier of Aurora were bridesmaids and wore pink frocks made bouffant style. They carried bouquets of pink roses. Jacqueline and Betty Jean Holt were flower girls and scattered rose petals before the bride.

The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Clarence Sprague of Aurora, who gave her in marriage.

Mr. Ralph Doty was best man and Mr. Fred Mahan and Mr. Wayne Mahan were groomsmen.

The bridal party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother immediately following the ceremony. A pink and white color scheme was observed in the table decorations with the center of the table holding the white bride's cake. Pink roses and white satin ribbon made a pleasing effect. The cake was cut with a knife brought from France by an uncle of the bride.

CARTHAGE MAN IS HELD TO TRIAL FOR MURDER

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 17.—E. R. Cochran, proprietor of the Carthage Bottling works, charged with the murder of his neighbor, W. T. Weddle, musician, here Sunday night, has been bound over to the November term of circuit court.

Cochran, in a statement to Frank R. Birkhead, prosecuting attorney, said that he believed Weddle to be a negro prowler and intended to fire above his head to frighten him away when he found him prowling about his yard late Sunday night.

Mrs. Weddle, widow of the slain man, testified at an inquest here yesterday that her husband had gone for a walk as was his custom before retiring, and probably was returning home through the yard of Mr. Cochran, who lived next door, when he was shot.

Cochran said he arose at about midnight to take some medicine and saw a man standing outside his window. A few minutes later he saw him crouched beside his porch, and he stepped outside and fired at him. He had commanded the man to put up his hands before he fired and he instead turned and started to run, Cochran said.

Weddle's body was later found on the lawn of the First Presbyterian church. Cochran, who with a group of other residents went to the scene, called an officer aside and told him he believed that he had accidentally shot the man.

Though the two men were neighbors, they knew each other only by sight, according to both Mrs. Weddle and Mr. Cochran. The Cochran family had only recently moved to Carthage.

Weddle was conductor of the boys' band and the Light Guard band here.

OZARK WOMAN, 94 ENJOYS HER PIPE,

Mrs. Margaret Jane Swearengin, 94, lighting her pipe to enjoy a smoke on the porch of her daughter's home at 873 South street. Although Mrs. Swearengin has smoked a pipe for about 75 years, she disapproves cigaret-smoking by today's flappers.

By DOCIA KARELL

ENJOYING the sunny warmth of an Indian summer afternoon, "Grandma" Swearengin sits on the porch of her daughter's home contentedly puffing a little pipe, and recalls the experiences of a long and very busy life. She is a frail small person, but talking to her, one gets a sense of sturdy vigor and vitality—for her frailty is purely physical; her mind is active and keen, and her memory as clear on the events of 60 and 70 years ago as on the affairs of yesterday.

"I was born and raised down in Webster county," she says, "and if you had followed after me you would think I've had plenty of experiences!"

MARRIED AT 17

She was Margaret Jane Williams, and at 17 she married Andrew Russell Swearengin, and began the life of a frontier farm wife. By the time of the War of Secession, she had five small children—the smallest a babe in arms, and the others "stair-steps" about two years apart. Her husband joined the Union army, and left her alone with the babies and the farm.

"They took everything we had," she says, "even to the last needle and pin—no, not the soldiers; the bush-whackers that came after them. They came into my kitchen and demanded something to eat, when there wasn't a bite to eat on the place. They took my baby out of my arms and threw him on the floor—they and their devilment!" She speaks with a fine scorn, even today, and an indignation that has endured the years.

"My mother taught me to smoke when I was a girl at home and had the toothaches," she recalls. "She went out in the garden and got some pumpkin stems, and made me a corn-cob pipe to smoke them in."

RAISED OWN TOBACCO

"When I married, my husband was raising his own tobacco, and he just begged me to smoke it instead. I've been smoking for about 75 years, I guess—and it never has made me sick yet."

Opening a little metal matchbox

in her lap, she relights her pipe.

Yet she disapproves cigaret smoking—perhaps because today if girls have toothaches, they can go to a dentist, and need not smoke to anesthetize the pain.

Mrs. Swearengin is just recovering from an attack of pneumonia, and cannot talk much. But the daughter with whom she lives at 873 South street, Mrs. A. M. Redick, recalls that her own father was an amateur dentist of sorts.

"He went to the blacksmith and had him make some forceps," she says, "and people used to come for miles around to have him pull their teeth. We would get them down on the floor, and we would all help hold them while he did it. There wasn't a dentist in the country—that seems funny, doesn't it?—and I guess I've seen him pull hundreds of teeth; he even pulled a couple of mine."

MOTHER OF 15

Mrs. Swearengin bore 15 children; reared 14 to adulthood; and 10 of them are now living. All but one live in Missouri, and all but two, who are ill, have visited her since her illness a month ago.

"Folks think they work pretty hard today," she says, "but it don't seem like they do as much as we did. I used to make all of our clothes—from raising the sheep, and shearing the wool, to spinning the thread and weaving the cloth and cutting and sewing it into garments. I'd do that at night, and work in the fields all day."

From the time the children were old enough to toddle, they helped with the home and farm work, and Mrs. Reddick recalls that every night before they went to bed, each girl must do her stunt—a bit of spinning, or weaving, or sewing, or quilting. She displays with pride quilts most finely quilted, and several priceless woven coverlets in the traditional designs of the hills, which her mother made.

They made their own dyestuffs, soap, candles—providing on their own place virtually everything they needed. Before even oil lamps were introduced, Mrs. Reddick remembers, they used a little lard lamp which was called a "goose," and provided a flickering flame which would not blow out even in a heavy wind, she says.

CAME HERE 23 YEARS AGO

About 25 years ago, Mrs. Swearngin and her husband left the farm and moved to Springfield to live with Mrs. Reddick. Mr. Swearngin died about two years later.

Mrs. Swearingin likes modern girls—and they like her—but she cannot approve them. She doesn't approve the way they dress, "no modesty!" or the way they talk or the way they act. "Girls say things to their mothers today," she says, "that we have thought of saying even when we were grown."

'MY' HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

Greeley, Neb., a town of about 800 population, on the border line between farming country and shifting sand hills, was the home town of the Reverend A. J. McClung, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian church.

McClung

Doctor McClung's parents lived on a farm which was at the edge of the town. He attended the Greeley schools and was graduated from the high school there. Then he went away to college at the age of 16 and about that time his parents moved to better farming country farther east in Nebraska. So he never returned to the old home town to live.

"When I was a boy in Greeley I had the distinction of running the town herd," recalled Doctor McClung. "Almost every family owned a cow and one section of land had been set apart near the town for pasture. It was my job to drive the cows to pasture every morning and bring them home at night. There were about 50 cows in the herd that I drove."

This quaint custom, however, has disappeared in the town. Doctor McClung has found on visits to Greeley since he moved from there

"I haven't been back to Greeley many times since we moved from there," said Doctor McClung, "but I remember vividly many things about the town. The last time I was there was about 18 years ago."

Bruce Yarberry Shoots Himself As Health Fails

Forcing his way into a room on the top floor of the Keystone hotel, 436 College street, the proprietor this morning discovered the lifeless body of Bruce Yarberry, 44-year-old Greene county juvenile officer, with a bullet through his brain.

It is believed that the county officer, facing a life of sickness and pain, chose death by his own hand soon after going to the hotel at 2 o'clock this morning. Yarberry apparently had been brooding for days over an old illness, and having seen him at Tuesday morning.

Call Goes Unanswered

The tragedy which occurred sometime early this morning in a back room on the third floor of the hotel was not discovered until after 9 o'clock, when Mr. Yarberry had asked the night clerk, Sam Stoffel, to call him. At that time the switchboard operator tried to call him by phone, and Dallas Lanore, negro porter, was sent to his room to waken him.

The porter found the door locked, the key blocking the lock, his pounding on the door went unanswered.

As Though Asleep

W. N. Waugh, proprietor of the hotel, went up a few minutes later with a key. After working several minutes he forced the inside key from the lock, opened the door and saw Mr. Yarberry lying in bed. The window shades were pulled down and the door was closed.

He saw the body, and knew the man was dead.

News of the suicide was given immediately to Jewell E. Windle, coroner, and Mr. Windle made a brief investigation, deciding that no inquiry would be necessary.

Widow Collapses at News

Told by Mr. Windle at her home, 922 North Robberson avenue, of her husband's tragic death, Mrs. Yarberry became hysterical and collapsed.

Mr. Windle was able to learn but little from her of the circumstances which goaded her husband to kill himself. He had been in ill health for several years, she told, and recently spent a month at Claremore, Okla., taking treatments for rheumatism at the health resort there.

She said she last saw her husband Tuesday morning, but that she had been alarmed, believing he was visiting relatives who live in nearby towns.

Hotel Guest

Mr. Yarberry was known casually at the Keystone hotel, employees there saying he spent the night there on several occasions during the past few months, most of them when he arrived from his duties.

He was making a trip to one of the state institutions.

It is believed that the parade of youthful tragedies which he was subjected to was a county juvenile officer may have had something to do with his decision to end his life. He lived with his family at the county detention home, where youthful incorrigibles were kept pending hearings in the county court.

The room assigned Mr. Yarberry last night was at the end of a long hallway on the third floor of the hotel. Failure of anyone to report hearing a pistol shot during the night was accounted for by the fact that this section of the hotel is occupied by railroad men, who go to work at midnight. Another railway crew does not come into the hotel until after 3 o'clock in the morning.

Rooms beneath the hotel, in which the officer killed himself, were occupied by members of the musical company which presented "The Vagabond King" at the Shrine Mosque last night, and all of these left the hotel and the city early this morning before the suicide had become known. None of them reported having heard a shot during the night.

Funeral Not Arranged

Mr. Yarberry is survived by his wife and one daughter, Oona, a Senior High school student; four brothers, James, Walter and Dan of Morrisville, and Arthur of Ebenezers; and two sisters, Mrs. Edith Creed and Mrs. Baille Sloan of Morrisville.

The body lies at the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral Home awaiting funeral arrangements.

Held Various Positions

Mr. Yarberry came to Springfield from his farm 16 miles north of the city in January, 1915, when he was appointed as elevator operator at the court house. After serving in this position for four years he was appointed county school attendance officer on August 20, 1919.

His next appointment was to the superintendency of the detention home on Robberson avenue, this appointment having been made November 3, 1920.

Appointment as Humane Officer

The appointment as humane officer was made January 1, 1923. Two of the appointments were held by Mr. Yarberry at the time of his death. He had been succeeded as county school attendance officer by Anderson Owen August 30, 1927.

Springfield 'Medic' Weds Greek Consul's Daughter

Bride's Father at St. Louis Announces Mar- riage, but Groom, on Visit Here, Fails to Mention Nuptials

THE marriage of Norman Van Matre, 22, of Springfield, to Miss Adrian Pasmezoglu, 18, daughter of Hector M. E. Pasmezoglu, Greek consul at St. Louis, was announced in St. Louis yesterday by the girl's father.

Norman Van Matre is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Van Matre, 1101 New street, and is a junior in the medical school at Washington university. Mr. Pasmezoglu, when he announced the marriage, said that the young couple had been married Tuesday and left immediately for Springfield. They notified him of the marriage by letter from Springfield, he said.

'SOME MISTAKE,' SHE SAYS

Mr. and Mrs. Van Matre could not be reached last night, but a woman who lives in their home said that the young people had not come to Springfield, and that Norman Van Matre's parents knew nothing of the marriage. She said they had left the house sometime yesterday and not returned, and very likely were out of the city on Mr. Van Matre's business affairs.

"There must be some mistake," she said, and suggested that perhaps the bride and groom had gone to Springfield, Ill. She knew of their friendship, she said, but had not known that they were married or even engaged.

OBJECTED BECAUSE OF AGE

Mr. Pasmezoglu said that he had dissuaded his daughter and Norman Van Matre from marrying last July, after they had obtained a marriage license in Belleville, Ill. He approved young Van Matre, he said, but urged that the marriage be deferred because of their ages. He said Norman Van Matre had written him that he had his father's consent to the marriage.

Miss Pasmezoglu is a graduate of Hosmer Hall, in St. Louis.

BRUCE YARBERRY COMMITTS SUICIDE

County Officer Found Dead In Keystone Hotel With Bullet Wound In Head

Despondency actuated by ill health is believed to have driven Bruce Yarberry, 44, Greene county juvenile officer, to suicide. The lifeless body of the man was found in a hotel room yesterday morning. A bullet through his brain and a revolver lying nearby were evidences of suicide.

The body was not found until several hours after Yarberry is believed to have fired the shot into his brain. Only when he failed to answer the call of a hotel clerk, at the Keystone, where he was stopping, were suspicions aroused. No one heard the shot.

Waugh Finds Body

After a porter failed to arouse Yarberry, W. N. Waugh, the hotel proprietor, went to the room and forcing the key from the inside of the lock, entered the room. He found the man dead.

Jewell Windle, coroner, after a brief examination, said that he did not believe an inquest necessary. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock Saturday at the home, 922 North Robberson avenue. Burial will be at Hickory Grove cemetery, near Morrisville, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Modern Woodman lodge will have charge of the services. Burial will be under direction of the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral home.

Judges Are Pallbearers

Pall bearers will be Hershel Holder, J. W. Tippin and T. K. Lowman, judges of the county court, Judge Guy Kirby, Cal Salee, and Dean Wright.

He is survived by the widow, a daughter, Ona, a Senior High school student. He also is survived by four brothers, James, Walter and Dean Yarberry, of Morrisville, and Arthur, of Ebenezer, and two sisters, Mrs. Edith Creed and Mrs. Sallie Sloan, both of Morrisville.

Yarberry went to the hotel at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. He had not been seen by any of his family since Tuesday evening. They thought him to be visiting at relatives near the city.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

JOHN P. MCCAMMON, attorney, has called Springfield his "home town" for 48 years. Before that he lived in Ash Grove two years. He was born four and one-half miles from Pulaski, Ia., in the county of which Bloomfield is the county seat, and spent his boyhood in that section.

After finishing his school work, McCammon Mr. McCammon took up the study of law in the Bloomfield office of James B. Weaver, who once was candidate for president on the "greenback" ticket.

"Mr. Weaver was the greatest political speaker I ever heard," said Mr. McCammon. "He was an old time orator and is said to have held audiences spell bound for as long as three and one-half hours. I'd like to see anyone do that nowadays."

The young law student alternated his study with school teaching. He was in charge of the preparatory department of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, a few years. This was the school in which the P. E. O. was founded and Mr. McCammon knew the girls who formed the organization which has spread to all parts of the country.

Mr. McCammon returned 15 years ago to Mount Pleasant for commencement exercises. He found about seven persons there he knew and at his old home in Bloomfield about 12 persons.

After coming to Missouri, Mr. McCammon taught school two years in Ash Grove before establishing his law office in Springfield.

Several prominent Springfieldians were pupils of Mr. McCammon at Ash Grove. Among them were W. G. Swinney, Bill Swinney, Tillman Nicholson and Frank Frazier.

He also came searching for any of his pupils who might still be living here.

The baby was buried in Hazelwood cemetery and Mr. Rickard promised his wife before she died that he would visit Springfield to find the grave.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

SPRINGFIELD always has been the home town of R. L. Pate, manager of the City Water company. He was born and reared in a home at the corner of what is now Grant avenue and Lynn street.

But it was a very different Springfield that Mr. Pate knew as a boy from the modern city of today. Outstanding among his impressions, as he looks backward to the old home town as he knew it about 45 years ago was the public square.

That was in the days when the old town pump stood where the concrete pile today defies the city beautifiers. The old court house stood on the site of the Heer building and there was no pavement.

"I remember farmers used to bring meat, wood, potatoes and whatever else they had to sell into town in their wagons, drive to the square, unhitch their teams and stay until the sales had been made," recalled Mr. Pate.

"We boys particularly liked for the farmers to bring loads of water-melons to sell. We would buy the melons and eat them there, then throw the rinds pell mel about the square. Hogs would come running about to eat them. Often people moving from one town to another would camp in the square. Farmers coming to town would get their mail and collect the news to tell their families and neighbors.

"I used to go to school where the Frisco office building now stands. The eather often would send two of us boys with a bucket to the well in the center of the square after water.

"Another boyhood impression was when the sheriff or his deputy would come to the balcony of the court house and call out the name of lawyers or witnesses supposed to appear in cases. It was a custom of the court that the attorneys were not to go outside of hearing distance from the balcony when they had a case likely to be called, but they were privileged to wait around the square.

"I still remember how they used to shout out the names of J. W. D. L. F. Mack, sometimes they simply called 'Alphabet' Mack; C. B. McAfee, Semphonius Boyd, whom they called "Pony" Boyd, Babe Harrington, O. H. Travers and other prominent attorneys. A sheriff in those days had to have a hardy voice. There were no newspapers to print the pleas of the attorneys, but when one freed a man the audience usually went out and talked so much about what a remarkable speaker the attorney was he received a wonderful reputation as orator.

"Many are the changes that have taken place in Springfield in the last 45 years. It seems hardly possible that so many wonderful transformations could take place in that time."

REGULATORS HANG INNOCENT, GUILTY TO STOP BANDITRY

'Honest Man's League' Formed
Soon After Civil War Struck Terror to Greene County's Lawless Soldiers

By A. M. HASWELL

ONE of the outbreaks of lawlessness in the history of Greene county took place soon after the Civil war. The Ozarks were full of former soldiers of both armies. It is safe to say that 99 percent of these men returned to their homes, and took their places, only too glad to be released from military service, but the remaining one percent had lived too long the life of soldier, free to take whatever suited them, without paying for it. The result was that in many parts of the Ozarks, and especially in Greene county, there existed a regular system for thieving, robbery and sometimes murder.

I remember one old citizen telling me that in the first year after the close of the war: "man dares not leave so much as his plow in the field at night, or he would not find it there in the morning." The officers of the law were faithful, but the rascals seemed to stand together, and any number of witnesses were always were on hand to furnish alibis, and the thieves went free.

MINISTER HEADS VIGILANTES

Then the decent element did just what men of Anglo-Saxon blood have ever done, when they found that the law could not protect them, they organized; made their own laws and enforced those laws with the pitiless hand of home-made justice. The leader was a Presbyterian minister, named Brown, the pastor of the church at Cave Spring, some 15 miles northwest of Springfield, in Cass township. The first victim was one of the last men who would have been suspected of being guilty of any evil act. He was Captain Green Phillips, who lived near Cave Spring.

He had been a gallant Union soldier and had fought bravely at the battle of Springfield. But one morning while he was feeding his stock, some men rode up and without a word shot him dead.

Opinions were sharply divided as to whether Phillips was in any way connected with the thieves, but cool after-thought long ago decided that a fearful mistake had been made; that probably some personal enemy had used the new organization to wreak a revenge he was too cowardly to take for himself.

PUT FEAR IN BONDSMEN

But the "Honest Man's League," now generally called "The Regulators," rode on seeking new victims. Near Walnut Grove they captured John Bush and Charles Gorsuch; gave them a short trial; found them guilty of theft, and hung them to a tree on the road between Walnut Grove and Springfield. The Regulators did not always execute their prisoners, but in many cases aided the sheriff, and turned their captives over to him. But when the men were in jail, some of them were bailed out, and others escaped with light sentences, the following notice was posted all over Greene county, and published in every paper in the region:

"Headquarters Regulators, Walnut Grove, June 16th, 1866.

"To the Citizens of Southwest Missouri: We, the Regulators, organized to assist in the enforcement of the civil law, and to put down an extensive thieving organization known to exist in our midst, having succeeded in arresting and committing to jail a number of persons charged with grand larceny, robbing and general lawlessness, whom we believe to be bad men; and finding that some of them have been bailed out, thereby extending to them an opportunity of again putting into execution their diabolical purposes of robbing, plundering and murdering their neighbors, therefore we hereby give notice that all persons bailing such parties out of jail, will be regarded as in sympathy, if not in full cooperation, with such, and will be strictly held responsible for the conduct and personal appearance in court for trial, of all persons thus bailed out of jail.

(Signed) EMPHATICALLY THE REGULATORS."

NAME STRIKES TERROR

After that it became a difficult matter for any men in jail to get bail. Then the Regulators showed their strength and their determination by marching onto the public square in Springfield, 280 strong, on horseback. They circled and formed in a hollow square and were addressed by Parson Brown, Colonel James Baker, and others, in approval of their work, and also by some brave men, who spoke vehemently against them. Chief of these last was Colonel John S. Phelps, who had led many of them in battle. But even their old commander could not avert them from their purpose, for when the meeting on the Square broke up, the 280 horsemen rode grimly away to the southeast, through Ozark and out onto the road from that place to Forsythe. A few miles out they captured a Greene county man by the name of James Edwards, for whom they had made this long ride. They gave him a short trial, condemned him to death, and strung him up to an oak tree at the roadside. It was told me, years afterwards, that grim old Parson Brown first led in prayer for the poor wretch, and then superintended hanging him.

That execution ended such activities by the Regulators, and they soon disbanded, for their work was done.

T. J. LANGSTON, PIONEER, EXPIRES

West Plains Merchant Was Greene County Native and Long Prominent

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Oct. 20.—

Thomas Jefferson Langston, 74, one of south Missouri's most prominent pioneer merchants and churchmen, died at his home in this city at noon today from an attack of pneumonia. He had been in poor health several months.

Mr. Langston was born in Greene county, Mo., January 12, 1853. Coming to West Plains as a small boy, he was forced to leave this section when bushwhackers raided through here and killed his father, a union man.

He worked for a relative, Abner McClinty, a merchant at Marshfield, and returned to West Plains in 1876, where he established the S. J. Langston Mercantile company, with his brother, the late Sam J. Langston. The firm now occupies the same corner where it started in 1876 and is now the Langston-Pease company.

He married Miss Sarah E. Bradford of Marshfield, Mo., October 10, 1876. She was the daughter of Doctor Bradford, who lost his life in the Marshfield cyclone. Mr. Langston was converted early in life and was a member of the Methodist church, having served for many years as a trustee and chairman of board of stewards. He had been a regular delegate to state and district conventions and attended the general conference at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1892. He was vice president and a large stockholder in the West Plains bank.

Surviving, besides the widow, are three daughters, Mrs. Fred E. Pease, Mrs. Charles Pease, and Mrs. Clara Cochran, and one son, Ralph S. Langston, all of West Plains.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon under the direction of the Reverend W. T. Farley of Marionville, Mo., former pastor here.

Card to Metzger Crosses Atlantic In Graf Zeppelin

A delicately drawn and attractively engraved blue stamp brought a card in the first airmail from Europe to America and delivered it to Herman Metzger, R. F. D. 5, Springfield. The card crossed the Atlantic in the Graf Zeppelin.

The card was from his niece in Offenbourg, Germany, and gave a view from an airplane of her home city. The stamp, which cost 50 cents in our money, has on it the picture of a Zeppelin floating above the world.

Mr. Metzger will answer the card on the return of the Graf Zeppelin. He was disappointed yesterday when he learned there is no special stamp yet made by the United States for this mail, but he will buy ordinary stamps to the amount of 50 cents.

"It won't be long though until we will have such stamps," said Mr. Metzger, "and the United States has such wonderful artists and engravers I know we will have just as attractive a design as the one sent out from Germany."

Mr. Metzger formerly lived in Switzerland, not far from the city from which his niece sent the card. Her message was written in German and indicated the enthusiasm with which the people of Germany are looking upon the linking of the countries of the world by air.

The translation of the message was: "With the first airmail from the old to the new world I am sending you and Aunt Joey my sincere greetings. May this postcard (a bird's eye view of Offenbourg from a Zeppelin) reach you in good health, the same as it has left us. Surely you will look with admiration on the achievement of this magnificent airship which brings you greetings from your home. With sincere love, I remain your niece, LEONA."

ILLINOIS RESIDENT PERISHES, 3 HURT AS AUTO CRASHES INTO LOCOMOTIVE

James Parker, 70, of Robinson, Ill., Called Here By Illness of Wife and Arrest of Son, Meets Death

OCCUPANTS ARE INJURED
AS MOTOR CAR OVERTURNS

Son Held as Suspect in Filling Station Robbery Begs Behind Jail Bars to Rush to Father's Body

TRAGEDY was added to tragedy yesterday when James Parker 70, of Robinson, Ill., who was called to the bedside of his wife, who is near death in a Springfield hospital, and to aid his son who is lodged in the Greene county jail on a charge of robbery, was killed when his motor car was struck by a fast Frisco passenger train. Mr. Parker was killed at 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning when his motor car crashed into a Frisco locomotive at the tri-intersection of National Boulevard, Division street, and Frisco tracks.

His daughter, Mrs. Hazel Parker Dean, and Tom Alsup, and G. H. DeArmond, other occupants of the motor car, escaped only with minor injuries. Attendants at the Springfield hospital, where they were taken for treatment, said their condition was not serious.

The car was traveling westward on National boulevard, and was struck by the locomotive as it was crossing the tracks. The car was overturned, during the accident, and the occupants were thrown out.

Mr. Parker was driving the car at the time it was struck by the locomotive and was killed almost instantly.

He had come to Springfield to be at the bedside of Mrs. Parker, who is seriously ill at Burge hospital, and to see if he could aid his son, James Parker, who is held by county officers on a charge of robbing a filling station two weeks ago. While here he had been staying at Mrs. Dean's rooms.

When informed of the death of his father at the county jail yesterday afternoon, young Parker was plunged into grief and begged to be taken to the body. Sheriff Alfred Owen said last night that provision would be made for the youth to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Parker late last night was in a semi-conscious condition. She has not been told of her mate's death and physicians expressed doubt that she would regain consciousness. her condition is so serious.

TO PROBE ACCIDENT

Jewell Windle, coroner, who arrived at the scene shortly after the accident, called a coroner's jury investigation for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The hearing was set at that time in order that the other three occupants of the car might be able to attend.

R. H. McMinne, Riley Horton, George Lee and Chesley Horton, who witnessed the accident from Riley Horton's home at 1248 East Division street, will be the principal witnesses.

The car was not damaged beyond repair.

Parker is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Avis Highfill, both of Springfield, Mrs. Martha Brown, Laird, Kan., Mrs. Mabel Holt, of Nebraska, and three sons, James, Springfield, Robert, Montana, and Aleck, of Fisher, Ark. Funeral arrangements are incomplete but are under direction of W. L. Starnes, undertaker.

DEATHS

GEORGE W. GIER

Funeral services for George W. Gier will be conducted at Brin cemetery, near Rickland, today. He died in a Springfield hospital Saturday following a brief illness. The body was shipped to Richland yesterday by the Herman H. Lohmeyer Funeral home. Mr. Gier's home was at Hazelgreen.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

THE oldest Baptist church west of the Mississippi river is in the home town of Mrs. Sam W. Hargis, president of the Springfield Federated W. C. T. U. and also of the Greene County Women's Republican club. The church is the old Fee Fee Baptist church and the town is Pattonville, Mo., about 14 miles west of St. Louis.

Mrs. Hargis

Mrs. Hargis was born on a ranch five miles from Richland in Pulaski county. Her father had bought the 160 acres of land and moved his family there because of his wife's ill health. He was unused to the type of farming required, however, and when Mrs. Hargis was only 9 months of age the family moved back to Pattonville. She lived there until she was married.

"My mother was a member of the old Fee Fee church 56 years," said Mrs. Hargis. "I attended Sunday school there until I went away to college. I was educated in the St. Charles Methodist college and then joined the Methodist church. The Fee Fee church was named after a creek near there, which I believe is an Indian name.

"The old church, a one story brick structure with old fashioned gable roof, still stands. It has been well preserved and is used as a home for the sexton who takes care of the Fee Fee cemetery. My mother and other relatives are buried in that little cemetery."

Mrs. Hargis often goes back to Pattonville on a visit. She was there October 7 and saw the old church and the little cemetery where members of her family are buried. She had opportunity to stop there while enroute to St. Louis to address the Women's Republican club of that city.

Pattonville, is little changed. Mrs. Hargis found. The old church has been electrically lighted and an electric car line connects the little town with St. Louis. Her brother still owns the homestead upon which their father settled when he came from Virginia.

Mrs. Hargis also has visited the ranch in Pulaski county where she was born, but that has no memories for her as does Pattonville, because she knows of the ranch only by incidents her family has told her of it.

W. P. NEFF

W. P. Neff, 82, pioneer Greene county resident, died at St. John's hospital yesterday. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Tom Burns, 1502 North Grant; Mrs. C. Services probably will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at the funeral chapel. Burial will be in the Walnut Grove, Mo., cemetery.

Mrs. Elmer Perrey was called to California, Mo., Tuesday by the sudden death of her father, C. C. Sprague. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Sprague is survived by his wife, daughter and a son, Dwight Sprague, of Chicago.

BOY WINS PLEAS TO DESERT CELL FOR BURIAL RITE

'No One to Help Me Now,' Laments Youth Whose Father Perished in Crossing
Crash Here; to Funeral Under Heavy Guard

"Now there's no one to help me—just myself."

There was only a trace of sorrow in the face of James Parker, held in the Greene county jail on a filling station robbery charge, as he dispassionately discussed this morning his father's sudden death yesterday and the serious illness of his mother.

The father, James Parker, 74 years old, who has for the past several months made his home in Roberson, Ill., was instantly killed yesterday shortly before noon
by his daughter.

Deadly crash occurred at the intersection of the highway and the railroad and the victim was killed instantly.

Mr. Parker was rushed between the automobile and the train, while the other occupants of the car, Mrs.
Dean, Tom Alsup and G. H. DeArrigo, escaped with minor injuries.

Mrs. Dean was driving east on Division street when the crash occurred, the motor striking the engine midway between the pilot and coal tender and overturning, hurling the occupants to the pavement.

Mrs. Parker today had not seen the youth, James Parker, 17, when told of his father's death yesterday before he was taken to see the body.

He will be taken under guard this afternoon to view the body and also will be taken to the funeral, Sheriff
Alfred Owen said today.

"I think that's about the least we can do for a person in a case like this," Mr. Owen said this morning.

The young Parker seemed more concerned this morning about the condition of his mother. "The paper said she was seriously ill," he said.
"She can't be that bad, can she?"

Young Parker declared that someone left a letter at the jail for him several days ago, telling him that his mother was dead.

Officers, however, believed that the letter was a ruse, attempting to gain his freedom.

"I hadn't seen him for about seven months," Parker said of his father this morning. "And I want to see the body and go to the funeral."

When he was told that his mother was dead, he said, "I don't know what to do."

his father had been robbed of $88
Saturday night and that they were going to see if they couldn't get it back when the accident occurred.

The coroner's investigation of the accident will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the municipal courtroom by Jewell Windle, coroner. R. H. McMinne, Riley Horton, George Lee and Chesley Holton, who witnessed the accident from Riley Horton's home at 1248 East Division street, will be the principal witnesses.

Parker is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Avis Highfill, both of Springfield; Mrs. Martha Brown, Laird, Kas.; Mrs. Mabel
Holt of Nebraska, and three sons, James, Springfield; Robert, Montana, and Earl, Ill.

LOVE FOR TWO BARED IN NOTE LEFT BY YOUTH

Letter

POISON COFFEE BLAMED

Boy Appeared in Good Spirits
When Last Seen By Friends

Leaving a rambling note in which he declared he was in love with two girls, Glenn R. Conley, 21 years old, died in convulsions at 9:05 o'clock this morning at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Conley, 1188 West State street.

Poison was blamed for his death.

The youth came home at 11:30 o'clock last night and, according to friends who saw him get off the street car near his home, seemed to be in good spirits.

Note Found by Family

Early this morning he called his father and told him he was sick and Doctors Lee Cox and Robert Williams were called to the home, but the youth died in convulsions a short time later.

Members of the family declared that Conley said he had drunk some black coffee and that it was extremely bitter. The note in which he declared he was in love with two girls, however, was found by members of the family this morning.

Yesterday noon he called Miss Yerna Bell, 1188 West State street, and she seemed in good spirits.

He came home late in the evening, saying that he would not be in until late because he was going to church.

Coroner's Convulsion Probe

Jewell E. Windle, coroner, is conducting an investigation of the case, but he would make no statement concerning it this morning.

A post-mortem examination of the body probably will be made Tuesday morning at the Starne mortuary.

Conley was for a time recently employed as a delivery truck driver for the Bagaine Grocery company. He had also worked as a helper at the Starne mortuary.

He is survived by the parents, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Hurst, Ventura, California, and Mrs. James O. Crockett, of Pittsburg, Kansas, and by one brother, Charles Conley, of the home address.

Funeral Plans Incomplete

Pending word from relatives, funeral arrangements have not been made, but services probably will be held at the Starne mortuary with interment in Hollywood cemetery.

Young Conley was a member of the Modern Woodmen, Camp No. 3123.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

ATCHISON, Kan., is the home town of the Reverend Edwin W. Armstrong, pastor of the Woodland Heights Presbyterian church. He was born on a farm about five miles from Atchison and his parents still live there.

"The most vivid impression of my boyhood is the trips my father and I used to make to town about once a week to market the farm products," said Mr. Armstrong.

"That was a great event—going to town. We made the trip in a wagon and after we had marketed our load of products father always bought me a chocolate ice cream soda. Since I have been grown I have tried many times to find another chocolate ice cream soda that tasted as good as those but I never have found one."

Mr. Armstrong makes frequent trips back to Atchison to visit his parents. The old town always seems to beam a welcome when he returns, he finds.

"When I went back home after I was out of the army it almost seemed that every old telephone pole along the way was my friend," he laughed.

Mr. Armstrong several times has preached in the church he used to attend as a boy. That is the First Presbyterian church at Atchison. He was graduated from the Atchison High school before taking up college work. H. P. Study, Springfield superintendent of schools headed the Atchison schools before he came to this city, but that was after Mr. Armstrong had left there to take up his work as minister.

Boy in Quandry Over Affairs of Heart Gulps Death Drug in Coffee; Note Begs Forgiveness

DESPONDENT because he could not decide between two girl friends he loved, Glenn R. Conley, 21, died at his home here yesterday after drinking poison poured into his breakfast coffee.

In a note to his parents the youth asked their forgiveness, told of his love for his two friends and deplored the trouble that he had caused his parents.

TOLD OF 'BITTER COFFEE'

Young Conley was a former Senior high school student and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Conley, 1135 West State street. He had been out of work considerable time, but had shown no signs of despondency, his parents said.

Early yesterday he called his parents and told them he was ill. He said he had drunk some bitter coffee. A short time later he died in convulsions.

WORKED IN MORTUARY

Jewell Windle, Greene county coroner, after an investigation, declared that a coroner's jury would not be called and a post-mortem examination planned for this morning would not be made.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of W. L. Starnes, undertaker, Conley's former employer. He is survived by the parents, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Hurst, Ventura, Cal., and Mrs. James O. Crocker, Pittsburg, Kan., and by a brother, Carrol, of the home.

JURY WILL PROBE CROSSING CRASH

Hearing Will Be Conducted To-day By Coroner Windle in Parker Death

A coroner's jury today will hear the stories of witnesses who saw a motor car driven by Mrs. Hazel Dean crash into a fast Frisco passenger train Sunday morning, an accident that resulted in the death of Mrs. Dean's father, James Parker, 74.

The hearing will be conducted in municipal court room at Central police station, by Jewell Windle, Greene county coroner.

Funeral Plans Incomplete
Funeral arrangements for the aged man who came here from Roberson, Ill., to be at the bedside of his wife, who is near death in a Springfield hospital, and to aid his son, James, Jr., who is languishing in the county jail awaiting trial on a holdup charge, still are incomplete.

The erring son will be allowed to attend his father's funeral. A dispassionate request of the boy obtained the consent of Sheriff Alfred Owen. He will go to the funeral under a heavy guard.

Son Views Body

Yesterday afternoon Parker went to Starnes mortuary where he viewed his father's body. He seemed little affected by the tragedy then, being more concerned about the condition of his mother whom he declared he thought more of "than any one in the world."

Parker was killed shortly before noon Sunday when the motor car which he was riding crashed into a Frisco engine at the intersection of National Boulevard, Division street and Frisco tracks.

DRIVER BLAMED IN MAN'S DEATH

Failure to Heed Stop Signal Cause of Crossing Crash, Jury Decides

While two victims of the crossing crash here Sunday which killed James Parker, 74, of Roberson, Ill., still were in a serious condition at a hospital, a coroner's jury today fixed blame for Parker's death upon the failure of the car in which he was riding to obey a "stop" signal.

After hearing a half dozen witnesses in a brief session at the municipal court, the jury summoned by Coroner Jewell E. Windle returned a verdict briefly reciting the circumstances of the accident and finding that Mrs. Hazel Dean, driver of the death car, failed to obey a city ordinance requiring motorists to stop at railway crossings.

Woman Suffers Relapse

Mrs. Dean, who suffered numerous cuts and bruises and possibly a fractured rib in the crash which killed her father, was released from a hospital Sunday but suffered a relapse and was taken back to the hospital yesterday. She was unable to appear at the inquest, and Tom Alsop, of Springfield, who suffered a crushed side and other minor injuries, still is in a hospital.

The only dramatic moment in an otherwise drab hearing came when G. H. DeArmond of Springfield, an occupant of the car in which Mr. Parker was killed, described the crash. He was riding in the front seat of a Ford touring car with Mrs. Dean, he said, and Parker and Alsop were in the rear. The machine approached the intersection of Division street, North National avenue and the Frisco railway tracks from the north, he said, and he did not see passenger train No. 12 approaching from the southwest until it was within 15 feet of the car.

Tells of Crossing Crash

Mrs. Dean swerved the car toward Division street in an attempt to beat the train across, he said, but the engine pilot struck the rear of the machine, whirled it around and off the tracks and threw himself, Parker and Alsop out of the car and to the ground. Mr. Parker appeared dead when he got to him, he said, and Mr. Alsop was unconscious and seemed in a bad condition. Mrs. Dean was hysterical and bleeding badly. He took her to the home of a relative nearby and returned to the scene of the wreck, but as an ambulance arrived to take Alsop to a hospital she came running back, screaming and crying. She, too, was taken to a hospital.

H. G. Spencer, claim agent for the Frisco railway, told of interviewing the crew of the passenger train and their stories that the engine bell had been ringing continuously from the time the train left the Frisco passenger station until the wreck.

ONLY A FRIEND, GIRL'S REQUIEM ON DEAD YOUTH

Senior High Miss Denies Love Affair With Suicide; She Assigns His Joblessness and Ill Health as Motive Be- hind Tragedy

"I can't believe that Glenn killed himself because he was in love with two girls. And if he did I know that I wasn't one of them, because I had even had a date with him."

Verma Ray, a senior at short time, and this morning he for any position. The girl said she was independent over that and all that, which hadn't been so good and she believe that is why he killed himself.

Conley came home late Sunday night and complained of being ill, saying he had drunk some coffee and that it was extremely bitter. He died at 9:05 Monday morning in convulsions. Physicians declared it the result of a deadly poison, which the youth apparently took in coffee before he came home.

Another Friend Silent

Eighteen-year-old Nora Baker, who is a housekeeper at the Pythian home, was busy at her work at the home when a reporter called.

She is understood to have had a few dates with the youth.

"I have absolutely nothing to say," she retorted, concerning her friendship with Conley.

"Have you known him a year?"

Only for "Six months?"

The girl again repeated, "I have absolutely nothing to say. I do not even have a picture of him."

Funeral services for Conley will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Sterne Mortuary with interment in Hazelwood cemetery under the direction of W. L. Sterne. Elder E. L. Sanderson of the Church of Christ will conduct the services.

95th Birthday to Be Observed Here Today by Ozarks Pioneer

A. M. Collins, Whose Father Was One of Earliest Ministers Here, Recalls When City Was Small Village

A. M. COLLINS' father was a "hard-shell Baptist" preacher who lived on a pioneer farm near Virgin Bluff, on the James, and added to the family income by carving out wooden spoons, wooden bowls for bread mixing, and perhaps wooden rolling pins. That was more than 80 years ago.

As a youngster it was one of Mr. Collins' tasks to make periodical trips to Mount Vernon on horseback, with a pack-horse laden with dressed wild turkey and the home-manufactured wooden articles his father had made, and to market them.

He was a toddler of three in 1836 when his father came overland from Tennessee to western Missouri by oxcart.

95 YEARS OLD TODAY

Today he will celebrate his ninety-fifth birthday at the home of his son, L. E. Collins, 1800 East McDaniel street, with whom he lives. One of his favorite diversions is to visit the new municipal airport here, watch the planes soar to a landing and take off again, and to compare travel today with that of 90 years ago. But he always has refused to go up himself.

Mr. Collins was born in Cornerville, Tenn., October 24, 1833. In 1836, with his parents and a large family of brothers and sisters, he travelled through the region where Springfield now stands. Passing on, they stopped at a large spring on Turnback and made their first Missouri home. Later they moved to Virgin Bluff.

His first memory of Springfield is that of a small trading post, set at the crossroads in a country abounding in wild game.

SERVED IN CIVIL WAR

Mr. Collins served in the War of Secession as a volunteer member of Company H, 15th Missouri Cavalry.

His wife has been spent farming in the Ozarks until his retirement a few years ago, when he and his wife went to live with their son. His wife died six years ago.

He is still active, and in excellent health, and still finds a keen joy in living. He came to Springfield when his son moved here about six months ago.

He has one other son, W. F. Collins, and a daughter, Mrs. Alice Carter, both of Wetumka, Okla., and he has 14 grandchildren, uncounted great-grandchildren, and one little great-granddaughter.

Exonerate Frisco, Blame Car Driver In Fatal Accident

Absolving the Frisco railroad of blame, a coroner's jury yesterday fixed responsibility for the death of James Parker, 74, of Robinson, Ill., who was killed Sunday in a train crossing crash, upon the failure of the driver of the car in which he was riding to obey a "stop" signal.

The hearing, which was conducted by Jewell Windle, Greene county coroner, returned the verdict after hearing testimony of several witnesses, including G. H. DeArnold, an occupant of the car.

Mrs. Hazel Dean, driver of the car, and daughter of Parker, was still a patient in the Frisco hospital from injuries suffered in the crash. Tom Alsop, the fourth person in the car, also was unable to leave the hospital.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

HUME, Mo., a town of 500 population, located 81 miles south of Kansas City near the Kansas line.

Wood

is the home town of the Reverend H. A. Wood, pastor of the Campbell Avenue Methodist church.

Mr. Wood was born in a log cabin on a farm in Pettis county but his parents soon moved near Hume.

"I saw the first two houses erected in the town and the first branch railroad run through it to Rich Hill," recalled Mr. Wood.

"When I was a small boy my constant companions were a little dog and a pony. Often I rode the pony through long days herding cattle over the prairies. Sometimes the grass was taller than the pony and I.

"During August I attended camp meeting in a brush arbor built in the timber. It was there I received license to preach by popular vote of the congregation."

Mr. Wood had the distinction of being the first boy to be graduated from the Hume High school. There were seven members of the class. Last year he went back to the old home town and delivered the baccalaureate sermon for the high school graduating class of which his niece was a member.

"I return to Hume twice a year to see my mother," said Mr. Wood. "She has moved from the farm to a home in the town. She is now past 80 years of age. I enjoy these visits with my mother—with her I find rest and peace—companionship, sweet and tender."

SECOND DIVORCE AT 19 IS SOUGHT BY BEAUTY HERE

Virginia Ryker Steury Says
Second Husband's Love
Soon Cooled

'HE LOVED ANOTHER'
Marriage Lasts Less Than Fortnight; Fashion Pageant Aftermath

A new chapter was written in the divorce courts today to conclude the second whirlwind romance of Mrs. Virginia Ryker Steury, 19, Springfield girl, who reigned as a beauty queen at Senior High school here during the 1926-27 term.

Twice married since she was crowned beauty queen of the high school yearbook, The Resume, the 19-year-old girl today filed suit for divorce from Elmer Lee Steury, 21, of 1206 St. Louis street, whom she married three weeks ago.

Because of her age, it was necessary for Gene Diemer, her attorney, to file the suit through the girl's mother, Mrs. Ethel Ryker.

General indignities and incompatibility are set forth in Mrs. Steury's suit to break the union with Steury, who is employed as a decorator at a women's clothing shop here.

Loved Another, He Said

The divorce petition declares that soon after their marriage her husband told her he did not love her, that he was in love with another girl and wished he was free to marry her.

He told her he was sorry, Mrs. Steury declares in the petition, that he ever married her. The suit also charges that he was extremely cold toward her.

After the divorce was granted, she returned to Springfield and Mrs. Steury went to the home of her mother, where she since has lived.

Her brief romance with Steury was said to have begun with her appearance in a boys' pageant at the Elgin theatre here early this fall. She was a star in the pageant, and Steury was director of the presentation.

Accused First Husband

She was married May 11, 1927, to Fred L. Walker here, and they separated February 18 of this year. Later she filed suit for divorce, declaring that Walker quarreled and nagged her during their married life and that he used liquor to excess.

This divorce action also accused Walker of nonsupport and declared she was forced to seek aid of her mother for her support. The divorce was granted last May.

"Just Made a Mistake"

Steury will make no attempt to oppose the divorce suit, he said this afternoon, frankly discussing the brief matrimonial venture. When he took his pretty bride soon after their marriage to St. Louis, where he had obtained a position, they both soon were homesick, he said, and discovered that they were not in love. Then came the mutual decision to return home and separate.

His courtship of Mrs. Steury was of the briefest sort, the youth revealed. They had been going together "steady" only about two weeks when they married, though he had known her casually at Senior High school and later in two style pageants here in which she appeared.

"There wasn't any trouble," he said, "except that I found we had made a mistake; that I didn't love her and apparently she didn't love me. We made a mistake—and the best thing now for us both is to try to forget it."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

R. F. SMALLEY, chairman of the agriculture bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and head of the poultry and dairy feed department of the Lipscomb Cream and Seed company, frequently returns to his old home town of Hartville and to the community of Fuson where he lived until he was grown.

He gets much pleasure, he says, out of visiting old friends and he takes pride in the agricultural progress of the region.

Mr. Smalley was born on a farm near Seymour and when he was 3 years of age his family moved to Fuson, which then was a little post-office six miles from Hartville. Mr. Smalley's earliest experience in agriculture came when he was 9 years of age and put in a crop of corn, tended a small garden and a little crop of oats. His first interest in dairying, which he has done much to promote in the Ozarks, was when he was placed in charge of a cream

On Saturdays he would buy cream from farm women who marketed it in small tin buckets. He tested the cream with a Babcock tester, a new device at that time. On Mondays he started the trip to Niangua to take cream and poultry for shipment. The cream was sent to Mountain Grove, by way of Springfield. It took two days for him to make the trip to Niangua and back. The cream station at Fuson was one of the first in that section. Later Mr. Smalley served as postmaster at Fuson for a time. The little post office since has been discontinued.

"I enjoy going back to visit," says Mr. Smalley. "The drive between Mansfield and Hartville is one of the finest in the country. They have made fine progress in poultry raising, dairying and the like in that country."

At Fuson Mr. Smalley visits his old friends including A. A. Barr, a progressive farmer; L. R. Fritz, a pioneer poultryman of the Ozarks; W. R. Delk, prominent stockman and others.

"Hartville has a beautiful lake formed by a dam to furnish electricity for the town," he adds. "There also are some fine large poultry plants there. Harry Clodfelter is one of the progressive poultrymen there. Roy Curtis has one of the most modern poultry plants in the state near Hartville. There also are other fine agricultural projects in the community."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

BOLIVAR, county seat of Polk county, is the home town of Clyde O. Sperry, realtor and insurance broker. Very often the Springfield man returns to visit old friends and to take pleasure in progress made by the town.

Mr. Sperry was 16 years of age when he left Bolivar to come to Springfield. His father, J. N. Sperry, was mayor of the town and was just completing a term in that office when he moved his family here.

One of the incidents Mr. Sperry remembers in his boyhood is when the county court ordered that the magnificent trees in the court yard be cut to give an unobstructed view of the new court house. Now, he finds, a determined effort is being made to raise more trees.

"Bolivar is a pretty town," he declares. "Since I left there the square and main streets have been paved. There are many fine shade trees throughout the town and beautiful homes. The Southwest Baptist college also is there and the town is a good agricultural center."

Mr. Sperry says that on his visits to the town he particularly likes to look over the old swimming hole, the home where he formerly lived, and the other places associated with his boyhood there.

There are a large number of Springfield business and professional men who lived in Bolivar at the time Mr. Sperry was there. In fact, he points out, the entire county of Polk is well represented among the civic leaders of Springfield.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpse By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

JOHN T. STURGIS, attorney, calls Neosho, Mo., his old home town but he was born in Smithfield, Ohio.

His parents left the Ohio town when he was only 4 years of age and came to Missouri to live on a farm about four miles from California, county seat of Moniteau county.

Drury college was a young institution when Mr. Sturgis came to Springfield in 1881 to enter the school. He was a member of the graduating class '86 and still retains a hearty interest in the welfare of the college. He has served as a trustee of Drury for about 10 years.

"After I finished Drury," recalls Mr. Sturgis, "I taught school two years—one year at Greenfield and one at Jasper. Then I took up the practice of law at Neosho where I remained until January 1, 1913, when I came to Springfield as judge of the court of appeals."

Mr. Sturgis served as judge eight years, then resumed his private law practice, remaining in Springfield. He frequently returns to Neosho for visits. He was married there and his wife's relatives still live in the town. Mr. Sturgis also has a brother living there. He is publisher of the Neosho Times.

Mr. Sturgis was the law partner in Neosho of M. E. Benton, former congressman, and father of Nat Benton, Springfield attorney. P. E. Miller, president of the Miller Loan company, is another prominent Springfield man who lived in Neosho at the time Mr. Sturgis was there.

RECALLS CLIMBING TREE TO SURVEY 'NORTH TOWN'

Original Surveyor Tells How a Group of Five Men Met and Laid Out Site Which Was Des- tined to Become North Springfield

By A. M. HASWELL

ONE BRIGHT morning in January 1888 five men met at the point where the alley between Washington avenue and Summit avenue now intersects East Division street and began the first survey of north Springfield. They were Doctor Parrish, for many years one of the most accurate land surveyors in Greene county; Doctor E. T. Robberson, for 48 years the best loved citizen of the town; the two Harwood brothers, Charles and Alfred; the fifth of the group was myself.

The point where we had met was close to the half mile corner on the south line of Section 12, of Township 20, of Range 22. Years before the corner had been marked with a limestone, by United States surveyors, but the place was then a thicket of post oak and black jack saplings, and blackberry branches, and we could not find the stone.

NORTH TOWN SURVEYED

Doctor Parrish declared the center of section 12, half a mile due north of the spot where we were standing was marked by a big lime stone. He suggested one of us climb a tree with a flag attached to a long pole. He believed that the flag could be seen and a survey struck.

I volunteered to climb the tree. Alfred Harwood drove to his home and got a 16-foot fish pole.

I climbed the tree to the topmost limb, taking with me the pole. It had a large white cloth tied to the top, and I waved the pole until I was about convinced it could not be seen by the surveyor. At length I heard the revolver shot that told me the flag was located.

That was the beginning of the survey of North Springfield, the little town that was destined to a stormy existence of 18 years, before the two towns consolidated.

BEUHNES NOW OAKS

The tree I climbed stood at the northwest corner of what is now the North Side shop fence. The tree has probably disappeared long ago, but the corner stone should be there yet.

To a person standing today at the point on Division street where we were that morning, and seeing the stately oak trees all the way to the north, it would seem impossible that the insignificant brush of that time could have grown to the present size; but that was 88 years ago, and I have lived to tell the story.

The story of how North Springfield came into being is much too long to be told here in detail, but can be briefly outlined.

The "Southwest Branch of the Pacific railroad" was surveyed in 1881-2. It left that which is still called "The Missouri Pacific" at Franklin, now Pacific, some 65 miles west of St. Louis, and ran to the southwest, passing out of Missouri near the present little city of Seneca, Newton county.

At Marshfield the survey struck the divide which runs from the Mississippi in Perry county, Missouri, generally to the southwest across this state and Kansas to the Rockies, somewhere near Pike's Peak. The survey followed it most of the way from Marshfield to Billings. That took it through the woods about a mile and a quarter north of the square of Springfield.

RECALLS EARLY FIGHT

Drive out Washington avenue to a point about 200 feet south of Commercial street, and you can see the divide sloping both north and south. Commercial street follows it two or three blocks south of the shop fence.

After the 18 stormy years which included the panic of 1852 and the Civil war, it became certain that the railroad would be built through the Ozarks. There was wild rejoicing in war torn Springfield. And then a new equation entered into the problem.

Doctor E. T. Robberson, of whom I have spoken, owned a tract of some 500 acres lying on both sides of the divide north of Springfield, and cut into halves by the railroad survey. Who first conceived the plan for a new town on that tract I do not know, but a partnership was formed between E. T. Robberson, Charles E. Harwood, and Sempronious H. Boyd, at the time representative in Congress of the Springfield district.

TOWNS INTO STRIFE

The three partners made a trip to

St. Louis and made the railroad a proposition that if it would build the road on the original survey they would deed 40 acres for the shops. They also promised to give a strip 200 feet wide through their land for the railroad yards. They also agreed to lay out 200 acres into a town and give the road an interest in it.

The railroad wanted to accept, but the old town went on the warpath. Delegations were rushed to St. Louis, New York, and Boston to protest that Springfield must not be ruined by a rival town.

Andrew Pierce, the president of the road, and several other officials came to Springfield, and a wildly exciting meeting was held, resulting in an offer by the road that if Springfield would put up $25,000, the road should be swung as far south as Center street. Some of the Springfield men were in favor of accepting, but, led by plucky old General C. B.

Holland, they finally told Pierce: "Your charter says that you must build into Springfield; we won't pay you a cent!" At that Pierce ripped out a ringing oath, and adjourned the meeting sine die, and from that moment North Springfield became a certainty.

Death Hits Twice in Week To Orphan Young Prisoner

Woman Expires in Hospital Without Knowing Of Husband's Death or Of Her Son's Arrest as Bandit Suspect

JUST a week after her husband had been killed in a grade crossing crash, Mrs. Mary Parker expired at a Springfield hospital following a long illness.

The woman died yesterday almost to the hour that her husband, James Parker, was killed a week ago Sunday when a motor car driven by his daughter crashed into a Frisco train. The accident occurred at the intersection of National boulevard, Division street, and Frisco tracks.

DEATH OPENS BARS

Mrs. Parker's son, James, who is confined in the county jail on a charge of highway robbery, yesterday was granted permission by Sheriff Alfred Owen to attend his mother's funeral at 2 o'clock today at the W. L. Starnes mortuary. He will go to the funeral under heavy guard.

Mrs. Parker died without knowledge of her husband's death, or knowledge that her son had been arrested and said to have confessed to participation in several robberies here two weeks ago.

FATHER CALLED HERE

Parker was killed after he had been arrested here. He was taken to the hospital and died.

Mrs. Parker is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Howard Smith and Mrs. Hibel Dean, both of Springfield; her son, James; five sisters, Mrs. Paris Brake and Mrs. William Vaughn, both of Stratford; Mrs. Mike Fields, Mrs. Lee Walsworth and Mrs. Tom Sneed, all of Springfield; and four brothers, John, Herschel and William Smith, all of Springfield, and Frank Smith, of Los Angeles, Cal. Burial will be in McCraw cemetery, nine miles east of Springfield.

A MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Helen A. Cone, who left us three years ago today, October 24, 1925.

Three years among the angels,
Beloved thou hast been.
Three years have heaven's white portals,
Shut back the sound of sin,
And yet no voice, no whisper,
Comes floating down from thee,
To tell us what glad wonder
Three years in heaven might be.
The years are long and dreary
Since angels closed the gate
Behind our darling mother,
So we listen and we wait.

Miss Geister Is Married To Mr. Green

A VERY pretty-home wedding was celebrated Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock when Miss Emma Doretta Geister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Geister, 600 South Fremont avenue, became the bride of Mr. Claude E. Green.

The ceremony was read by Dr. Lewis M. Hale, pastor of First Baptist church, before an altar banked with palms and ferns. The mantle back of the altar held bowls of yellow and white pom poms and tall yellow and white tapers. Art baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums flanked the altar.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Conrad Coulter sang, "O Perfect Love" (Bamby) and "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy" (Cantor). She was accompanied by Miss Betty Davidson, who played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party approached the altar, and "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

An aisle was formed, leading to the altar, by six friends of the bride, Miss Ammon Hood, Miss Ruth Hoffner, Mills Pauline Gray, Miss Lutie Mae Hoffman of Muskogee, Okla., Mrs. William C. Bryant of Ft. Scott, Kan., and Mrs. George Humphreys.

Miss Louise Geister, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mr. Earl Foster, best man.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

THE Reverend G. Bryant Drake, pastor of the First Congregational church, has had many home towns and they are scattered from the Atlantic coast to the far west.

Mr. Drake's father also was a Congregational minister and served as pastor of many churches.

Mr. Drake was

born in a little Vermont town, Bershire, in the Green mountains and has never lived in any town longer than six years.

From Vermont Mr. Drake's father went to New York state. He lived in two different towns there, then spent nine years in western Kansas. Mr. Drake was graduated from the Argentine High school in Kansas City, Kan., and from Washburn college, Topeka, Kan. He spent five years in Chicago, where he did his graduate work, and where his parents now live.

The fact that he has lived in many towns does not make his interest in them any less, and Mr. Drake returns whenever possible to the places he has lived and made friends in the past. He visited in Minneapolis, where he lived three years, during the past summer. He also has returned for visits to Ames, Iowa, where he was pastor to the students of the Iowa agriculture college after completing his training for the ministry.

"It was in Barysbury, N. Y., that I learned to swim and skate," he recalls. "The fun during the winter time there was to coast down hill on the snow and to skate for several miles up the river.

"Most of my good times as a boy, however, were at Mount Hope, Kan., a little town near Wichita. There we boys used to swim a lot. I remember I had a little donkey that I paid $10 for and you can imagine how much fun a kid would have with that. I have been back there a few times on a visit, but most of the boys and girls I knew have moved away."

Green-Geister Vows Are Read

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Geister, 608 Soptm Fremont avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when their daughter, Emma Doretta, became the bride of Mr. Claude E. Green.

An altar was built before the fireplace and banked with ferns and yellow and white chrysanthemums. The mantels held bowls of yellow and white pom poms and tall burning yellow and white tapers. The vows were read by Dr. Lewis M. Hale, pastor of First Baptist church.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Conrad Coulter sang "O Perfect Love" (Bamby) and "O Fair O Sweet and Holy" (Cantor). Mrs. Coulter was accompanied by Miss Betty Davidson who also played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party approached the altar. "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "I Love You Truly" were played softly by Miss Davidson during the ceremony.

The following friends of the bride formed an aisle leading to the altar: Miss Ammon Hood, Miss Ruth Hoffner, Miss Pauline Gray, Miss Lucie Mae Hoffman, of Muskogee, Okla., Mrs. William C. Bryant of Ft. Scott, Kans., and Mrs. George Humphreys.

The maid of honor was Miss Louise Geister, sister of the bride, and Mr. Earl Foster was best man. Miss Geister wore a frock of forest green crepe and carried pink roses. The bride was attractive in a frock of midnight blue chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the Valley.

A buffet supper was served in the dining room following the ceremony. Here the yellow and white color scheme was also observed. The bride's cake was in the center of the table and was filled with yellow roses, and surrounded by greenery. Lighted yellow and white tapers were at either end of the table.

Two great aunts of the bride, Mrs.

Millie E. Plummer of this city, and Mrs. Susie Griffin of Jefferson City, Mo., were present at the wedding.

The following out of town guests were present:

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Helen A. Coon, who left us three years ago today, October 22, 1925.

Three years among the angels,
Beloved thou hast been,
Three years have heaven's white

portals,
Shut back the sound of sin,
And yet no voice, no whisper,
Comes floating down from thee,
To tell us what glad wonder
Three years in heaven might be.
The years are long and dreary
Since angels closed the gate
Behind our darling mother,
So we listen and we wait.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

DR. T. W. NADAL, president of Drury college, was born on a farm near Milroy, Ind., and lived there until after he had finished the elementary schools and one year in high school. His mother then was named post-master at Milroy and they moved into the little town.

"As a boy my life was about the same as that of any farmer boy," recalls Doctor Nadal. "I attended the district school, then when I entered high school I walked three miles into town each day during my freshman year."

After he had completed the second year of high school it was necessary for him to go elsewhere to complete his education for that was the highest grade at Milroy. So Doctor Nadal entered De Pauw academy and later De Pauw university.

"I always had intended to go to college," he recalls. "Even as a small boy I had made up my mind that I would get an education. I had no means so when I left home at the age of 16 I started working my way through school."

Doctor Nadal returns two or three times a year to his old home town to visit his mother. There has been little change in the town, he has found. The population when he was a boy was about 600 and it is around 1000 now. The town is in the heart of a good agricultural district.

Slightly more than two weeks ago Doctor Nadal preached the sermon for the annual homecoming at the old church he attended as a boy in Milroy. He had been specially invited by the congregation to give the principal talk at the event.

The ceremony was read Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents by the Reverend T. H. Wiles.

Miss Ruth Johnson and Mr. Paul Kaylor were the only attendants. Only members of the immediate families of the young couple were present.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davidson of Wichita Falls, Texas, announce the birth of a son, William Emerson, on October 13. Mrs. Davidson was, before her marriage, Miss Henrietta Truman, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. R. E. Truman, formerly of Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ward, 644 South avenue, announce the birth of a son this morning.

A. M. Haswell comes into Springfield from his farm near Mansfield once in awhile and looks over the old home town. The other day he said he did not feel at home away from Springfield and expected to sell his farm and return to this city. Mr. Haswell is in good health, although he has lost his hearing. He is probably the greatest authority on Ozark history today and as his memory is as fresh as it ever was, his tales of early times are of interest. Moreover, he depends on his memory and not his imagination. The oldest inhabitant often has a way of being interesting at the expense of truth, but not so Mr. Haswell. He was here when Springfield had but 2500 people, a little battle scarred village. He recalls a time when Springfield claimed 8000 people and found no believers. He represented Greene county in the legislature in 1887 and was prominent in the early affairs of Springfield.

PIONEER SMITH EXPIRES AT 84

Funeral Services Probably Wednesday for James Si- man, Veteran Here

Springfield's oldest blacksmith, who, a score of years ago, owned five shops here with horseshoeing as a specialty, died suddenly yesterday morning at his home, 1610 St. Louis street.

The man, James Siman, 84 years old, came to Springfield 52 years ago. He had served in the Union army during the Civil war. After the war he had given up the trade of carriage making and began shoeing horses. While living in Louisville, Ky., before coming to Greene county, Mr. Siman had fitted shoes on many of Kentucky's greatest racing thoroughbreds as he had made a specialty of shoeing race horses.

Even after he came to Springfield he made many racing shoes which he sent back to old customers in Louisville.

His Business Destroyed

But during Mr. Siman's life here horses and horseshoeing gave way to automobiles and tire repairing. Hitching posts and wagon yards were succeeded by parking signs and stop signals. Feed barns were replaced by filling stations.

He followed his trade, however, until automobiles destroyed it. He was reputed to be the oldest blacksmith in Missouri who was still able to work.

Mr. Siman was the father of 23 children, 13 by one marriage and 10 by the other. He is survived by eight children of the latter marriage and his widow. The children are Eli, Jack, Charles, James and Thomas, all of Springfield; Mrs. James Brewer of St. Louis; Mrs. J. B. Stagner of Hesston, Pa., and Mrs. Oscar Carroll of Springfield.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've
Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

ROY ELLIS, president of State Teachers college, has spent his life, except intervals when he was away at college and the like, in the Ozarks. Consequently he always has been an enthusiastic booster for this section. Mr. Ellis was born on a farm about eight miles northeast of Seymour, which he calls his home town because it was there his parents did their trading when he was a boy. The farm, however, was not in the same county as Seymour for it was in Wright county.

Mr. Ellis received his elementary schooling at the New Grove school, one and one-fourth miles from the farm upon which he lived. He always has retained an interest in this little rural school and at least once each year he drives there to take some books for the library and visit the scene of his school days.

Mr. Ellis was graduated from high school at Hartsville and from there continued his education at college. His mother is still living and owns the farm upon which he used to live, but she makes her home in Mountain Grove.

"I well remember the long drives we used to take in a wagon to Seymour," said Mr. Ellis. "It was an all day trip with a wagon and team and in cold weather it was a bitter drive."

"Seymour was our nearest railroad town and we did our marketing and milking there. Roads were not good in those days and in the dead of winter it sometimes seemed that we had to make a great many trips to town."

JOHN W. FRANKLIN

Funeral services for John W. Franklin, pioneer Polk county resident and republican leader, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock today at the Bolivar Christian church. Mr. Franklin died Monday.

Mrs. Williams moved to Springfield only within the past month. She was the widow of Dr. William Williams, an eminent physician of Pittsburg, who died more than 10 years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harry Rogers, 310 South Boulevard, Springfield, Mo., Mrs. Fred Moore, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; three sisters, Mrs. D. A. ## VAIN ANALYSIS IS MADE AFTER SCHOOL BOY DIES

Dr. Murray C. Stone, pathologist, this morning reported to Dr. John W. Williams, county health officer, that he had been unable to determine whether Lester Robertson, 16-year-old Senior High school student died of contagious or noncontagious spinal meningitis.

Doctor Williams said this morning that the cultures will be kept for several days and examined at intervals.

"The death was caused by a form of spinal meningitis," Doctor Stone said this morning, "but our analysis revealed no organism to indicate which particular form."

The county health department's office was flooded with telephone calls this morning from parents of students at Senior High school and students wishing to attend the funeral asking the result of the analysis.

Semiprivate funeral services for the youth were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Brookline, Mo., the youth's home, with burial in Greenlawn cemetery under the direction of the Thurman Funeral home, Republic. COVINGTON, Ohio, was the home town of the Reverend Oscar Lee Black, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He says, however, that when he was a boy he lived in Stillwater — that is the name of the river which flows the town of Covington, and in which he used to fish and swim.

Doctor Black lived in Covington until he went away to college—Wooster University, Wooster, Ohio. He took his final year of college work at McCallester college, St. Paul, Minn., and since that time has made only brief visits to Covington, where his mother still lives.

"Covington is an agricultural community," explained Doctor Black. "The Stillwater Valley is considered the most fertile in the world—more fertile than the Nile.

"As a boy I enjoyed the usual activities of every youth who likes the out of doors. I recall many pleasant hunting trips with my father in the woods about Covington. I often went fishing and swimming with my brothers."

Doctor Black's chief hobby since his college days has been bird study. He recalls that even when he was a boy he was interested in birds and in all nature lore. This he had his first opportunity to learn in the region about his old home town.

Grim Fortune Hits Carthage Man Third Time in 7 Months

Special to The Leader
CARTHAGE, Mo., Nov. 1. — The death of Miss Austa Kidder, 10-year-old girl who died in a Kansas City hospital Sunday from rabies, was the third stroke of grim fortune for E. W. Kidder, her father, a Carthage resident.

Mrs. Kidder died in April and the Morrow-Kidder Milling company here, of which Mr. Kidder was vice-president and a large stockholder, was destroyed by fire in August at a loss of $161,000.

Miss Kidder was bitten on the arm by a small pup here seven weeks ago. Her father, uneasy about the actions of the dog at the time, had it examined by Carthage veterinarians and they declared that it was free from rabies. The animal died a few days later. Mr. Kidder consulted physicians and they advised against giving the girl a serum treatment.

Miss Kidder then went to Holden, Mo., with her father and about two weeks ago, complained of a burning in her arm. She was taken to a Kansas City hospital immediately, where it was discovered that she was the victim of rabies, and she died there Sunday.

'PEOPLE ALWAYS COME HOME'

By DOCIA KARELL

People always come home. No matter how far abroad they may wander or how many years they may devote to forgetting, sooner or later they come back to the "native soil" in which their roots are planted—

That is the belief on which Allan Updegraff's latest novel, on which he is now working, is based; and it is the explanation for his being in Springfield this week.

For the first time in 26 years, he is back in the "home town" visiting old school-mates and boyhood scenes. While here he is, too, putting the finishing touches on his novel, "Native Soil," which will be published in January. The setting for the novel is Springfield as he knew it 30 years ago, and at least a part of the material is autobiographical, based on his childhood here.

Mr. Updegraff hastens at once to explain that he waited to come to Springfield until his book was virtually complete, so that nobody possibly could read into it his experience here, or believe that any of his characters are based on hometown folk.

His home is now in Paris, where he is French representative of the Literary Digest, and he came back to the United States this summer to take charge of the Literary Digest straw vote, which he completed shortly before coming to Springfield.

With urbane good nature he explains his confidence in its "liveness" and accuracy. Not more than a fraction of one percent of the ballots sent out go astray in the mails, he says, because the lists of voters are taken from telephone subscribers' lists and registration lists, and are kept as up-to-date as is anyway possible.

This year's results, he concedes, may not be as accurate a forecast as the poll was four years ago—but that, he says, is because so many voters are still changing their minds.

He expects a larger vote for Al Smith in the south than the Literary Digest indicates, because he believes that at the last minute a lot of "Hoover-democrats" will refuse to bolt their party. "They have been all excited," he says, "but when they get to the voting booths, they'll find they'll vote as 'they always' have voted."

RECALLS "NEW TOWN"

As a youngster, Allan Updegraff lived in one of the first homes to be built in the Woodland Heights addition. "Across the road," he recalls, "was a tassafras lot, and next to our yard was a vacant lot where we kept our horse. Now," he says, after having revisited the neighborhood, "they keep a bungalow there—but I think the horse looked just as well."

In those days the Commercial street district was the "new town," and boasted the main Prisco station. Not having been back since, Mr. Updegraff expected to come into the same station, and was a bit surprised when he landed in the "old town."

He is charmed with the beauty of the city, especially its avenues of colorful old trees, and hopes that they say never be sacrificed. And he is planning to get really "into" the Ozarks—he never learned to know them very well as a boy, he confesses because "in those days you had to take an old mule and ride for three days to get anywhere." The hill were pretty inaccessible.

Allan Updegraff and his brother Lawrence were members of the class of 1901, Springfield high school, and belonged to the intimate group which included W. W. Hawkins, now business manager of the Scripps-Howard newspaper organization; Ralph and Burgess Snyder, whose father published the old Springfield Republican, and who now own the Gary, (Ind.) Tribune; Will Carrington, prominent Atlantic City physician, and Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Anderson and Mrs. Ward Morgan, of Springfield, with whom he is spending much time in reminiscence. His brother is now on the editorial staff of the New York Times.

By coincidence, another member of the class, Mrs. Maud Maxwell, of Manila, P. I., is also in Springfield visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mehl.

Mr. Updegraff began his writing career as a columnist on the The Springfield Leader, at nothing a week. After a year at Drury he went east and finished at Yale.

He has been a contributor to Century, Harpers, Colliers and Smart Set magazines, and to the Saturday Evening Post, and is the author of several successful novels — "Second Youth," "Strayed Revellers," "Whatever We Do," and "Dancers in the Wind"—has written one play, "The Love Prohibitionist," and considerable verse.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

E. A. BARBOUR, SR., attorney and president of the Springfield board of education, left his old home in Wilkesboro, N. Carolina, when he was slightly more than 5 years of age. Yet he so vividly remembered some things about it that when he returned to the town after he was grown he found the house where he had lived and recalled such details of it as the railing about the back porch.

Barbour

Mr. Barbour's father was killed on the last day of the battle at Petersburg during the Civil war. He was buried in the little cemetery at Wilkesboro. Mr. Barbour's mother then brought her children west to Memphis, Tenn., where her parents lived, thence to Van Buren, Ark., where the Springfield man lived until 1865, when he came to this city.

"Wilkesboro had no railroad when we left it, so we drove in a covered wagon to the nearest train," recalled Mr. Barbour. "From Memphis to Van Buren we made the trip by steamboat."

Mr. Barbour returned to Wilkesboro in 1901 for his first visit there. Then last summer he drove with his family to the North Carolina town for a reunion of the Barbour family. There he met cousins and other relatives whom he never had seen before and listened with interest to traditions of his family. The relatives met in the old Christ Episcopal church for a formal program of addresses. This church had been built and donated to the parish 105 years ago by Mr. Barbour's grandfather and grandmother.

"The church was very interesting to me," he said. "The interior had been preserved just as it was originally."

Mr. Barbour was much impressed with the progress of North Carolina.

The development of water power, he found, has brought factories of many kinds there and the state hums with industry.

"North Carolina has a wonderful system of state roads," said Mr. Barbour. "It also has fine school buildings and thriving factories."

"They have developed cheap power there just as we should do here. We have the same sort of water power to be found there. The only difference is that North Carolina has built dams and therefore attracted hundreds of cotton mills, furniture factories, and the like."

SPRINGFIELD BOY HOME TO FINISH LATEST BOOK

Believing that words of old songs about home and wandering are literally true, Allan Updegraff of Paris, France, novelist, magazine writer and poet, returned this week to Springfield, his "old home town," where he will put the finishing touches on his latest novel, "Native Soil."

The novel deals with the theme that people eventually return to their homes, no matter how far or how long they have wandered. He came to Springfield only after writing most of it because, he said, he did not want to appear to be placing local people in it. The story has its setting in the Springfield that Mr. Updegraff knew 30 years ago. It will be published in January.

He is now on the staff of the Literary Digest and returned from France to conduct the straw vote recently completed by that magazine.

While he has confidence in the accuracy of the vote, he believes that Smith will get more southern votes than the straw ballots indicated, because he thinks the Hoover democrats will not find it so easy to bolt their tickets once they get to the polls. He thinks, too, that people are still changing their minds about the way they will vote, and for that reason the straw vote may not have been wholly accurate.

Mr. Updegraff recalls the town that existed when he went to school here. The Frisco station was then in "new town." He and his brother, Lawrence, now on the editorial staff of the New York Times, were members of the class of 1901 and had as their classmates W. W. Hawkins, now business manager of the Scripps-Howard newspaper organization; Ralph and Burgess Snyder, now owners of the Gary (Ind.) Tribune; V. M. Carrington, Atlantic City physician, and Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Anderson and Mrs. Ward Morgan, still of Springfield.

Mr. Updegraff began writing as a columnist on The Springfield Leader, when his wages were the joy of his work and nothing more, and went through Drury college and to Yale. He has been a contributor to Century, Harpers, Colliers, Smart Set and the Saturday Evening Post. His novels already published include "Second Youth," "Strayed Revellers," "Whatever We Do," and "Dance in the Wind." He has also written a play, "The Love Prohibitionist."

BLOOD ON FENDER LEADS TO ARREST IN FATAL MISHAP

Elderly Man Is Dragged 100 Feet To His Death By Speeding Auto Which Raced on After Accident

AUTO MECHANIC TAKEN WITH GIRL NEAR SCENE

Thought He Had Crashed With Another Car, He Says; Witnesses Tell Police No Other Machine Passed Him

WHILE the body of an elderly, unidentified man lies mangled and unclaimed in a downtown morgue, police are holding an automobile mechanic for investigation as the man's slayer.

Within 20 minutes after a speeding motor car had struck the man, apparently a tramp, dragging him 100 feet and killing him instantly, V. L. Rice, 119 North Main Avenue, was arrested by Jewell Windle, coroner, and taken to Central police station for investigation.

The accident occurred shortly before 10 o'clock last night in the east end of the city. The body of the man was found in a ditch near the intersection of Mr. and Mrs. James Motely, negroes, living nearby.

BLOOD ON FENDERS

Windle and a W. L. Starne ambulance were summoned. The man was found to have been instantly killed. A short distance north of where the accident occurred, a roadster was found in the ditch.

Rice, with Miss Freda Mallenowsky, were in the car. Blood was found on the fenders and bumpers. Rice was arrested by Windle and taken to the police station for investigation.

At the police station Rice told officers that he had attempted to evade an approaching motor car that had failed to get on the right side of the road, and that he had drawn to the left.

"As I attempted to pass the car

I heard a crash," Rice said. "I thought that the other car had hit me. Further up the road I went into the ditch, but thought my car had been injured."

DENIES BEING DRUNK

Rice was said by Assistant Chief of Police H. L. Teaff to have been intoxicated when brought to the station. Rice denied he had been drinking.

The negroes, Mr. and Mrs. Motely, declared that they saw but the one car. Mr. and Mrs. Charley Crosse, who live on a farm north of the city, were driving a short distance behind Rice but said they saw only the one machine.

Rice was booked for investigation pending the outcome of a coroner's jury which has been summoned by Coroner Windle for this afternoon in municipal court. He was grilled for three hours by police to no avail. He maintained that he had not hit the man.

Police said that unless the man was proved innocent by the coroner's jury charges of manslaughter would probably be filed.

15 CENTS IN MONEY

The body was taken to Starne's mortuary. Efforts of several persons from the north portion of the city to identify the man were unavailing.

Search of the worn clothing on the man, and a small sack of clothing and groceries, failed to reveal a clue to his identity.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfield
fieldians to Places They've
Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

BUFFALO, the Dallas county town which has furnished a large number of Springfield's distinguished citizens, is the home town of J. W. Brownlow, vice president of the Hermann-Brownlow company and president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Brownlow was born in Gilles county near Pulaski, Tenn., but his parents moved to Buffalo when he was 6 years of age. His mother taught in the school there and his father taught in various districts near the town. W. R. Self is one of the Springfield business men who as a boy went to school to Mr. Brownlow's mother.

The first business venture of Mr. Brownlow was at the age of 10 when he operated a news stand in Buffalo. There he distributed daily papers from cities of Missouri. Mr. Brownlow completed the Buffalo schools and attended school in this city. He then returned to his home town to enter the hardware and harness business, which started him on his present career.

"I enjoy going back to Buffalo for visits," said Mr. Brownlow. "When I left Dallas county 30 years ago I knew everybody there, and many of my old friends still remain."

"As often as I can I attend the annual reunions at Buffalo and visit the persons I have known. The town was a high class citizenship. The settlers of the town were good families, many of them highly educated."

'MYSTERY MAN' KILLED BY CAR; TAKE PRISONER

Absence of Some Toes and Flattened Nose Chief Clues to Victim Here

ARREST SPRINGFIELDIAN

Faces Coroner's Inquest After Vague Explanation of Accident

Outcome of a coroner's inquest at police headquarters late this afternoon will determine whether V. L. Rice, 119 North Main avenue, is to be charged with manslaughter in the death of an unidentified man who was run down by a motor car and killed on North National avenue last night.

The accident victim's flat, broken nose, and the fact that he had no toes on his right foot, today furnished the chief clues to his identity. His body lies at the W. L. Starnes mortuary, unclaimed, and few have visited the morgue to inquire about him. He appeared about 50 years old.

Knight of the Road

The man's clothing indicated plainly that he was a tramp seeking "pick-ups" along the highway. He wore a corduroy suit beneath blue overalls and a jumper, and carried a knapsack and rubber raincoat. Five feet nine inches tall, he was stockily built, weighing about 175 pounds, and marks on the body made it appear that he may have been a pugilist. A flat broken nose and knocked down knuckles on both hands supported this theory. The man's eyes were blue and his hair light brown.

A French harp and 15 cents were found in his pockets. The knapsack contained only a variety of vegetables and some old clothing.

Motorist Found in Damaged Car

The man was found in a damaged motor car on North National avenue last night. He was taken to the police station and booked for investigation pending the coroner's inquest this afternoon, but later was released without bond and ordered to report back for the coroner's investigation.

A motor car speeding in the 2800 block on North National avenue struck the tramp shortly before 10 o'clock last night, apparently killing him instantly and dragging the body 100 feet down the highway. A single scream just before the accident attracted the attention of James Motely and wife, negroes who live nearby.

Motorist Is Arrested

Summoned to the scene, Mr. Windle found a roadster in the ditch a short distance to the north; blood was on the fenders and bumpers, the coroner said, and one headlight, the fender and one side of the car's hood had been damaged. Rice was arrested by Windle and taken to the police station, and officers who saw him there declared he appeared dazed.

Rice told a story after his arrest of trying to avoid hitting an approaching motor car traveling on the wrong side of the highway. As he attempted to pass the car, he said he heard a crash and thought the other car had struck his machine. Then his car went into the ditch, he told officers, and he believed his car had been damaged.

"Home Conflict Found"

Miss Frieda Mallenowsky, employee of a manufacturing firm here, who was found in the car with Rice after the accident, told a similar story, but she insisted Rice was driving on the right side of the street. Blood was found on the right side of the car, Mr. Windle said, and officers declared another machine could not have struck the Rice car on this side unless it came out of a field or both cars were traveling on the wrong side of the highway.

Motely and his wife, the negroes who live nearby, said they saw but one car. Mr. and Mrs. Charley Croase, who live on a farm north of the city, were driving a short distance behind Rice's car, and they also declare they saw no other machine.

MRS. ROY'S RELATIVES MAY BREAK HER WILL

Special to The News and Leader
CARTHAGE, Mo., Nov. 3—Relatives of Mrs. Lizzie Roy of Webb City, who died Tuesday, leaving $8000 to the Jasper county court for the county almshouse and its inmates, are expected to attempt to break the will.

Mrs. Roy, it is said, could neither read nor write, and she refused to pay for her expense at a Webb City sanitarium where she spent several months. She also refused to pay a nurse who was sent to her home to care for her, relatives stated.

It has been hinted that relatives would attempt to have the will set aside on the ground that the woman was insane at the time she made it. The will was drawn on Saturday and she died on Tuesday.

William Cash, residing near Springfield is a brother of Mrs. Roy. She is survived by another brother and two sisters, but leaves no children.

CITY MAN ENDS LIFE IN CELL, FOILING LAW

B. W. Baty, Former Salesman, Quaffs Poi- son After Identification as Pennsboro Robber; Quakingly Denied Guilt

STAKING his life in a gamble for riches, B. W. Baty, middle-aged Springfield business man, found the cards stacked against him.

IDENTIFIED AS PENNSBORO BANDIT

Charged with robbing the Bank of Pennsboro at Pennsboro, Mo., late Friday, Baty was arrested yesterday afternoon by H. L. Teaff, assistant police chief.

As Teaff walked into the Peter Pan Cleaning shop at the corner of Main avenue and Nichols street, which Baty operated, the man walked hurriedly to the rear of the plant and then returned to see the officer.

It is known now that he slipped a bottle of acid into his pocket when he walked to the back of the place—the acid which a few hours later was to end his life.

A short time before the man committed suicide in his cell at the police station at 8:50 o'clock, Assistant Chief Teaff laid all the law's cards on the table before him.

QUAILS BEFORE OFFICERS

The officer frankly told the man of the evidence against him—how his alibis had been checked and beaten down, how he had been identified by the bank official he robbed and how he had been followed after the robbery and the license number of his car taken.

Baty seemed nervous and frightened when Teaff last saw him in his cell.

"What should I do?" he kept asking repeatedly.

"Get a lawyer," was all the advice the officer could give him.

It was only a few minutes later, after Teaff had left the station, that officers on the ground floor of the police station, below the cells, heard sickening moans from Baty's cell.

Half a dozen policemen hurried to the cell, threw it open and found the man lying on the cell cot, his face contorted with pain.

GASPS FINAL WORDS

"I've killed myself," he moaned to the first officer who entered, and that was the last he said.

They dragged him out of the cell and made a pallet for him. ~~W. L. Starnes ambulance could arrive~~ He seemed to lose consciousness before he was placed in the ambulance, and he died soon after reaching the Springfield Baptist hospital.

Apparently, the man had been determined to take his own life if he was caught. Charles Melton, his partner of the Peter Pan Cleaning shop, told officers of finding the bottle of acid at the plant several days ago, and of asking Baty about it. Baty told him gruffly that he had bought it, and the matter was dropped.

CONCEALED IN COAT

From the time of his arrest, and even after he was placed in a cell, Baty wore a heavy overcoat, and it is believed he kept the bottle concealed in a sleeve of the coat. The customary search when he was booked by the desk sergeant did not reveal its presence, and he was visited only by his wife and Gene Diemer, attorney.

Baty, who lived at 894 Normal street, was arrested late in the afternoon by Mr. Teaff at the cleaning plant on North Main avenue.

should kill himself does not seem to them quite so strange. He was of a nervous temperament, they say, and subject to worries and depression. His family background was one of moodiness and nervousness. His father, Abraham Baty, who died about a year ago, is remembered as a nervous man of uncertain temper. His uncle, George Baty, watchman at the baseball park here, committed suicide a few months ago. The only apparent reasons were old age and loneliness, causing depression.

Since his father's death, Mr. Baty has been much worried about his mother, who still lives at Sparta, and has gone to Sparta every Sunday to visit her and to manage her property for her. She is old and in failing health, that worried him.

Mr. Baty was both member and regular attendant at the First Baptist church here, where his wife teaches a Sunday school class.

His wife and daughters, Adrian, 16, and Betty, 10, were called immediately to the hospital after he drank a deadly acid, but he was dead before they arrived. They did not return to their attractive bungalow home at 394 Normal street, but spent last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Witt, east of the city on the Cherry street road. Mr. Witt is the brother of Mr. Baty's first wife, and the two families have always been close friends.

Neither Mrs. Batay nor the girls have been quite able as yet to realize their loss—dry-eyed, they sit numbed by the tragedy.

Besides his wife, daughters, and mother, Mr. Baty is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ruth Nelson of Sparta.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night, but probably will be Monday afternoon with service and burial at Sparta. The Klepper Undertaking company of Ozark is in charge.

Miss Mary Margaret Kerr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Kerr of Crane, Mo., whose engagement to Mr. Seanor Abbott of St. Louis, Mo., has been announced. Miss Kerr is a graduate of Drury college and is well known in this city.

Announcement Is Made

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bowman of Kansas City, Mo., recently announced the marriage of their daughter, Loretta, to Dr. Harry Wilkins of St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Wilkins was formerly a Springfield girl.

Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins will make their home in St. Louis.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Harold Grove sang, "O Promise Me" (De-Koven) and Mr. Francis Brewster sang, "I promise Thee." Both were accompanied by Miss Eunice White of Joplin, who also played Lohengrin's wedding march, as the bridal party entered the room. She also played "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

The single ring service was read by the Reverend G. O. Van Noy of Roberson Avenue Baptist church.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Homer T. Brown, matron of honor, and Miss Dorothy Dennehy as maid of honor. Mr. Kenneth Keltner, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride wore a frock of pale green georgette, embroidered in crystal beads with silver accessories and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Brown wore apricot colored georgette trimmed with silver lace and Miss Dennehy wore orchid taffeta. Mrs. Brown and Miss Dennehy carried bouquets of pink roses.

Miss Pauline Bryant and Miss Dora Ida Nichols were ushers and wore frocks of pink and white georgette.

An informal reception followed the wedding, after which Mr. and Mrs. Simmons left for a short wedding trip to Chicago. They will be at home after November 15 at 789 South Kickapoo avenue.

PIONEER RECALLS HOW KILLER DIED AT HANDS OF MOB

Residents' Anger Inflamed By Finding of Woman's Nude Body In Shaft After Man's Second Marriage

By A. M. HASWELL

IN A former sketch I have told of the trial, conviction and sentencing to death of a little boy on a murder charge, and of his acquittal at a second trial, due to the eloquence of the late O. H. Travers.

Eighteen years after that boy's trial, there occurred one of the most brutal murders in the history of the southwest, followed by swift vengeance on the murderer, and then by a long trial of two women, friends of the murderer, who were accused of being accomplices after the fact. A trial, which owing to the prominence of one of the accused women, attracted nationwide attention.

During the winter of 1894-1895 the First Congregational church of Springfield invited a celebrated woman evangelist, Mrs. Emma Molloy, to hold a series of revival services with the church. The call was accepted, and she conducted a long and successful revival. Mrs. Malloy was a remarkable woman. Besides her renown as a pulpit orator she acquired fame and wealth by taking hold of a struggling temperance paper, which she had built up to an immense circulation. As a temperance speaker, and as an evangelist her reputation was international.

GRIM CRIME DISCLOSED

On the platform few men or women of her generation even approached her in eloquence or power over an audience. With Mrs. Molloy there came to Springfield her adopted daughter, Cora Lee. Soon there also came George Graham, the business manager of Mrs. Molloy's paper, "The Morning and Day of Reform." Evidently he was a well educated and capable business man. He was also an ardent suitor of Cora Lee's.

After holding meetings in both old and new town, Mrs. Molloy bought a small farm a few miles east of the little town of Brookline, and there

Cora Lee and George Graham were married. A short time after the wedding a lady arrived in Springfield, who announced herself as the sister of Graham's first and lawful wife. The newcomer declared that there had been no divorce, and that in marrying Cora Lee, Graham had committed bigamy.

The authorities examined the case, found the charge well founded, and Graham was arrested and placed in the old county jail, which stood in the rear of the court house. Meanwhile the neighbors around the Molloy farm, and the people of Brookline, were searching for Graham's legal wife. Her sister, who had proved the nemesis of Graham, felt sure that the wife had been made away with, and as the days passed that idea became generally adopted.

COUNTY JAIL STORMED

One morning a group of men from Brookline visited the Molloy farm determined to give the place a thorough search, for many people believed that the wife had been killed there. In a corner of the farm they found an old shaft started years before in search of lead ore. The shaft had come down onto solid limestone rock, and had been abandoned.

Into this old shaft one of the searchers, Isaac Hise, was lowered, and in an opening of the rock at the bottom he found the nude body of George Graham's murdered wife. The news spread on the wings of the wind; never in Greene county history had any deed of violence fired such a flame of indignation. Quickly it was found that on the very night before the wedding of Cora Lee and Graham, that cold blooded villain had left the Frisco passenger train at Dorchester (now Haseltine) station, five miles west of Springfield, accompanied by the same little woman whose dead body was afterwards found in the old shaft.

Meanwhile Graham had employed the late Thomas J. Delaney, one of the brightest criminal lawyers who ever practiced at the Springfield bar. Delaney's aim was to get Graham out of jail by a writ of habeas corpus. Of course nothing was yet known of the murder when Delaney brought application for that writ. Probably the bringing of that plea for a writ to let Graham out of jail, was what brought matters to a swift climax. To those grim and indignant men who had found that poor nude body it looked as if the door was opening to let the murderer escape; and any such escape was not in their program.

HANGED BY MOB

That very night a small but determined band of men called at the jail. The sheriff, F. M. Donnell, heard the knocking and, as he had done many times before in the ordinary course of business, opened the door, and instantly found himself facing half a dozen revolvers in the hands of determined men who demanded instant possession of the jail keys. Donnell was an old soldier of the Civil war, and as brave as the bravest, but he knew when men meant business and he handed over the keys.

It took but a few minutes to unlock the cell and drag forth the trembling, shrieking wretch, bind him hand and foot, and throw him into a wagon. Men said later that when he first realized that he was doomed, he gave one unearthly cry and thrust something into his mouth which rendered him insensible before he reached the door of the jail.

Be that as it may, he was quickly hauled to a grove which then stood in what is now the north edge of Grant Beach park, and there he was "strung up" to a little post oak tree. It is a strange fact that in less than a month after serving as a gallows, that tree was withered and dead.

Mrs. Molloy and Cora Lee were indicted as accomplices to the murder, after the fact. Cora Lee was brought to trial first, and after a long and dramatic trial was acquitted. The case against her being much the strongest, the state never brought Mrs. Molloy to trial. Mr. Travers, the same brilliant lawyer who cleared the orphan lad, was the counsel for Cora Lee. Only a few years ago the plea made by Travers in the Cora Lee defense was still quoted as one of the most eloquent and effective ever heard in the Greene circuit court.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

PERRY T. ALLEN, Springfield attorney, lived near Carlyle, Clinton county, Ill., the first 19 years of his life, but it is to Bolivar, Mo., that he refers as his "home town."

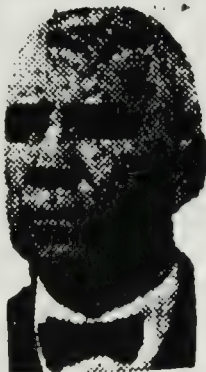

Mr. Allen was born in the Illinois community to which his forefathers came from Georgia in 1814. After the death of his parents he came to Bolivar with an uncle and aunt. He already had completed one year of college work in the State Normal school at Carbondale, Ill., and he entered the Southwest Baptist college at Bolivar from which he was graduated in 1887. Professor J. R. Maupin, founder of the college, was president of it at that time.

After finishing school Mr. Allen read law one year in the office of Hamlin and Neville at Bolivar, then two years in the office of Judge Arthur Fuller at Girard, Kan. He also served as deputy clerk of the district court at Girard and was admitted to the bar there in 1889. He then returned to Bolivar, was admitted to the bar of this state, and came to Springfield the same year.

Mr. Allen has made several visits to Carlyle, Ill., since he left there as a boy, but he finds relatives and friends he used to know are gone. He returns to Bolivar two or three times a week. He and Mrs. Allen each have a sister living in the Polk county town and many friends.

"I can't remember the time when I didn't intend to be a lawyer," says Mr. Allen. "The prominent attorneys I knew in Bolivar were my ideals in those days."

In addition to C. W. Hamlin and former Judge James T. Neville, in whose office he read law, Mr. Allen knew such prominent attorneys as Joseph B. Upton, John W. Ross, Judge John D. Abbe and T. G.

Allen

Rechow, all of his home town. One of the big events he recalls in his life in Bolivar was his meeting with Judge Burr Emmerson, a pioneer judge of Missouri who died shortly after Mr. Allen went to the Missouri town.

As a young man interested in law and lawyers, Mr. Allen also counted the days eventful when prominent visiting attorneys came to court in Polk county. Among those who frequently were heard in cases there were John H. Lucas, of Kansas City; Amos Smith, of Buffalo; Judge James H. Baker, Colonel "Pony" Boyd, James R. Vaughan, Major Jerry Cravens and Judge R. L. Goode, of Springfield.

CHILD IS FATALLY BURNED BY BLAST INJURING MOTHER

Kerosene Can Explodes in Miller Farm House, Spraying Fire on Infant Playing on Floor

Special Dispatch to The News

MILLER, Mo., Nov. 3.—A 14-months-old child is dead and its mother is in a critical condition as a result of burns received when a kerosene can exploded at a farm here late yesterday afternoon.

The child was the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Johnson, who live six miles northeast of here.

FLAMES ENVELOP CHILD

Mrs. Johnson started to kindle a fire in the kitchen stove when the oil can caught fire and exploded in her hands, sending flaming oil over the room and onto the clothing of the child, who was playing on the floor.

Mr. Johnson was working in a barn near the home when he heard his wife's screams. Before he could put out the flames both were badly burned. Dr. W. S. Burney of Miller was summoned, but the child died a few hours later.

MOTHER MAY LIVE

Mrs. Johnson was rushed to the hospital here. She was severely burned about the face, arms and body. Doctors think, however, that she will recover.

Funeral services were held here this afternoon for the child.

Reckless Driving Blamed For Death of Aged Man

A coroner's jury today blamed V. L. Rice, chief mechanic of a motor car company here, for the death of a middle-aged unidentified tramp who was run down by a motor car and instantly killed late Friday night on North National avenue.

After hearing testimony from half a dozen witnesses, the jury summoned by Coroner Jewell E. Windle returned a verdict blaming Rice and charging that the accident was due to fast driving and recklessness. The jury had heard Tony Oliver, city detective, testify that Rice was intoxicated when brought to the Central police station by Mr. Windle following the tragedy.

Municipal Judge C. A. Hubbard expected that a charge, possibly of manslaughter, would be filed in his court against Rice. Nat Benton, assistant prosecuting attorney, attended a part of the coroner's inquest, but left before the verdict was returned. The state has taken no action in the case as yet, and Rice still is at liberty, though booked at police headquarters for investigation.

The jury's verdict fixing blame for the tramp's death upon Rice came largely as the result of testimony by Charles E. Krasser, farmer who lives a short distance north of the city.

Krasser declared he was driving behind Rice at the time of the accident, saw the mechanic's car strike something on the wrong side of the highway and then go into a ditch several hundred feet from the scene of the accident. Rice's machine was traveling north at the time, he said, and he denied that any car passed to the south as Rice had claimed. The mechanic, soon after his arrest by Mr. Windle, told police his machine had been struck by another car and badly damaged. He was found in his ditched car with Miss Freda Dallenowsky soon after the accident.

The body of the accident victim still lies unclaimed at the W. L. Starne mortuary.

Lake Gibson, employe of the Oliver Motor company, where Rice is employed, testified before the coroner's jury that he had known Rice for two years and that during that time he had had an excellent reputation for honesty, good character and reliability.

John Mack Expires Suddenly at Home; Funeral Wednesday

Mack, 57, member of the auto theft bureau of the Springfield police department, who was fatally stricken at his home, 756 South Grant avenue, as he sat down to breakfast Sunday morning.

Before being appointed to the auto theft bureau shortly after Mayor Thomas H. Odeon took office eight months ago, Mr. Mack spent seven years as an inspector for the state automobile license bureau under Charles U. Becker, secretary of state. After being in charge of the auto registration bureau here a short time last winter he resigned to take up his duties with the police department.

Mr. Mack was well known in Springfield and Greene county, having lived here almost his entire life.

An honorary police escort will attend the funeral services. Chief of Police G. C. Pike announced. Burial will be made in Hazelwood cemetery under the direction of the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral home.

BLAME FOR DEATH OF TRAMP PLACED ON RACING DRIVER

Coroner's Jury Hears Testimony Mechanic Was Speeding; Pauper's Grave Yawns For Victim

A CORONER'S jury yesterday afternoon blamed V. L. Rice, a mechanic, with the death of a middle-aged and unidentified man Friday night. When the court house closed yesterday afternoon, no charges had been filed against Rice by the county attorney's office.

The body of the victim, mangled and unclaimed, lies at Starnes mortuary. Description of the victim has been broadcasted to no avail.

His identity—his life, perhaps—will always be a mystery. All that is known of him is that he apparently was a tramp. This was deduced from his worn wearing apparel—a crude sack of rags and provisions which he carried with him when he was struck to death by a speeding motor car.

PHYSIQUE HINTS AT RING

His muscular body hints he was once a pugilist. A broken nose upholds the speculation.

Few have viewed the body. Attendants said at Starnes mortuary last night that it probably would be buried in the potter field.

A half dozen witnesses yesterday testified before the coroner's jury, which was summoned by Jewell Windle, Greene county coroner. After the jury had heard the evidence they returned a verdict that Rice was to blame for the man's death.

DRIVING RECKLESSLY, CLAIM

The witnesses testified that Rice was driving in a reckless manner and at considerable speed. The jury heard Tony Oliver, detective, tell that Rice was intoxicated when he was brought to the police station by Windle, who arrested him on an investigation charge after the tragedy.

Nat Benton, assistant prosecuting attorney, attended only a portion of the hearing, but left before it was over and before the verdict had been returned.

Lake Gibson, a fellow employe of Rice, testified that Rice was of good character, had an excellent reputation, and was considered reliable.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

M. T. FULLINGTON, general chairman of the Frisco system, division No. 32, the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, claims an

Fullington

"old home county" instead of an old home town. If he had to designate one town that would be difficult, for there are three in Webster county that have a very definite claim upon his affections.

Mr. Fullington was born on a farm near Seymour, the town where his father now lives. He lived two years, when he was 7 or 8 years of age, at Duncan. And he attended high school and learned his profession at Marshfield.

"I remember when I lived at Duncan we didn't have any school closer than three miles," said Mr. Fullington. "Each morning I walked to the little log school with my teacher, Ernest Landers, who now lives at Rock Bridge, Mo.

"We walked fast, too, and always made the three-mile walk in 30 minutes. I think that is when I learned to like fast walking and to this day people who are with me complain that I walk too fast.

"I learned telegraphy at the railroad station in Marshfield. C. M. Walker, who now is working for the Santa Fe at Amboy, Cal., was agent there.

"The two telegraphers were G. E. Wise, now telegrapher in the superintendent of terminals office at Springfield, and W. B. Musgrave, railroad agent at Strafford. The three of them taught me telegraphy. I began work at Marshfield September 30, 1901."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

HILLSBORO, ILL., is the old home town of F. M. McDavid, Springfield attorney, a trustee of the Missouri University and former state senator.

McDavid

Mr. McDavid spent his youth on a farm six and one half miles from Hillsboro. This was the same farm where his father also was born and where Mr. McDavid's grandfather and grandmother settled when they came from Tennessee after first having left Virginia to start westward as the spirit of youth led them in those days.

"The farm was entered by my grandfather, William McDavid, in 1818," said Mr. McDavid. "The story is that he and my grandmother, a young couple then, passed splendid land near St. Louis searching for water. They came upon a deer trail, followed it down the hill to a large spring and there found the land they entered as a homestead."

Mr. McDavid returns once each year, usually in August, to visit his old home. He and his brothers and sisters still own the farm. The old spring which endeared the land to his grandfather in 1818 still gushes from the hillside. The old swimming hole in McDavid's branch, about 200 yards from the farm home, still sparkles clear and cool—but Mr. McDavid is quite certain it is not nearly so large as when he was a boy. He wonders also, he says, why Main street at Hillsboro is only about a fourth the length the remembers it from his youth. Then too the court house in his old home town turns out on his yearly visits there now to be like many other court houses, but during his high school days in Hillsboro he knew it as a magnificent and compelling edifice.

The little rural school, one-fourth mile from his old home and known as McDavid's point, still stands and the Springfield attorney finds pleasure in seeing it again upon his visits there.

Mr. McDavid has been in Springfield since 1889 but he never has forgotten his friends and relatives in the old home town, nor lost his interest in the place which holds so much interest in the pioneer history of his family.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

PRINCETON, MASS., about which center picturesque legends and associations, was the home town of Dean T. Stanley Skinner, head of the conservatory of music at Drury college.

Ancestors of Dean Skinner came to the town in 1760 and his old home, which still is standing was built in 1786. The historic place was owned by his parents until they sold it a few years ago to move to the state of Washington.

It was in Dr. Skinner Princeton that Dean Skinner first took up his music study. His father for almost 40 years was organist at the Congregational church in the Massachusetts town. Dean Skinner frequently returns to his old home for visits. He was there two years ago when he was studying in Boston during the summer. He first left Princeton when at 19 years of age when he entered Oberlin college.

"Princeton is rich in Indian traditions and is a very interesting place," said Dean Skinner.

"Our home was at the foot of Mount Wachusett, about which the poet, Whittier, wrote. Many poets and other writers came to the town during the summer for it used to be principally a summer resort. Helen Hunt Jackson once visited in our home.

"One of the interesting traditions of the town is that concerning Redemption rock, a place visited by all tourists to the town. It was at this rock on the side of Mount Wachusett that a great aunt of mine, Mrs. Rowlandson, was redeemed from the Indians after having been held for ransom, and King Philip was present at the meeting."

Hit With Inkstand

ROMANCE of a young Springfield couple, who were married Monday, yesterday turned to discord when charges of felonious assault were filed in municipal court after the bride's mother had seriously injured the young bridegroom following an argument.

The injured youth, James Reed, active worker in the Farnsworth chapter, Order of DeMolay, and state president of DeMolay, is seriously ill at his home, suffering from scalp and skull wounds suffered when his bride's mother, Mrs. J. P. McCaffrey, 1628 Sherman street, hurled a heavy inkstand at him.

Reed, who is the son of C. H. Reed, assistant city clerk, was married to Isabelle McCaffrey, former popular Senior High school student.

When the girl's mother learned of the ceremony, she refused to recognize it because Reed was of a different religious faith than her daughter, and because the ceremony was performed by a Justice of the peace.

Yesterday morning young Reed and his father went to the McCaffrey home where they hoped to come to a peaceful settlement of the differences. An argument followed and Mrs. McCaffrey, becoming excited, hurled an ink stand at young Reed. It struck him in the head, rendering him unconscious.

He was taken to his home, where it was said last night that he was confined to his bed.

The father, who was a candidate for mayor here last spring, appeared before Judge C. A. Hubbard in municipal court yesterday afternoon and swore out two warrants against his son's mother-in-law. He charged her with felonious assault and disturbing the peace.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

"THE gem of the Ozarks—the best inland town in America," is the distinction Lieutenant Governor

Phil A. Bennett claims for his old home town, Buffalo, Mo.

Mr. Bennett was reared on a farm southeast of Buffalo. His grandparents were early settlers in Southwest Missouri. His maternal grandparents, John and Nancy Proctor O'Bannon, came Bennett from Kentucky in an ox wagon in 1838. Finding a nice spring on a beautiful prairie, they camped nearby until logs could be cut and a house built. The nearest settlers were eight miles distant. Wild game of all kinds was plentiful and dangerous beasts were common. Mr. O'Bannon became the owner of several sections of fine land and the prairie where he settled is still known as the O'Bannon prairie.

Governor Bennett's paternal grand-parents, Phillip and Anna Marrs Bennett, were also early settlers of Dallas county coming from Clark county, Ill., in 1855. They settled one mile south of Buffalo. The lone chimney of their cabin now stands in a beautiful meadow and attracts attention of these passing over U. S. highway 65.

For 17 years Mr. Bennett owned and edited the Buffalo Reflex. He not only comes from a family of pioneers but it has been said of him that he is somewhat of a pioneer himself having brought the first cylinder press, first folding machine, first linotype, first picture show and first automobile to his native county.

"Dallas county is progressive; the people are law abiding, industrious and God fearing," said Mr. Bennett

"On the Buffalo Reflex, I had subscribers—former Dallas county residents—in every state of the union except Maine. Among the boys from home on my subscription list were: Judge White of the supreme court of Colorado; W. A. Wilkinson, well known professor of Columbia university, N. Y., Louis Brownlow, then commissioner of the District of Columbia. Dr. W. R. Bennett of San Antonio, Texas. Dr. John Fowler, one of the best known surgeons of Chicago; the Reverend George Watkins of Indianapolis (father of Miss Maurine Watkins, the writer).

"Old friends are dear and none are more enjoyed than comrades of my father who served in Company I, 16th Missouri volunteer cavalry during the Civil war. Among survivors of this company are: N. L. Bennett, aged 94; J. W. Means, 93; and David Olinger who is about 10 years younger.

Mr. Bennett and family located in Springfield in the summer of 1923. He says that while Springfield is the best place in the world to live, he doubts whether he and Mrs. Bennett will ever quit saying, "down home" in referring to Buffalo. His interests there are not confined entirely to sentiment. He is a director in the county's largest bank, O'Bannon Banking company.

Trappings of Royalty Gone But Mrs. Kentling Is Happy

Springfield Woman, Now 92, Accompanied Maxi- milian Expedition Into Old Mexico

By CELIA RAY

GONE from the capital of Mexico are the trappings of royalty. The pages of history have closed upon the sad and handsome emperor, Maximilian, and his beautiful bride, Carlotta.

Yet in the mind and stories of a Springfield woman, Mrs. Katie Kentling, there linger vividly the tragic days that shattered the golden hopes of the young royal couple. She was a member of the household of Maximilian and Carlotta when grief fell upon them.

Mrs. Kentling, who looks much younger than her 92 years despite a life crammed with perilous adventure, lives at the home of her daughter Mrs. A. B. Forrester, 735 West Walnut street. With a colorful flower pinned in her soft gray hair, speaking with an attractive accent and cordial manner, Mrs. Kentling recounts stories as thrilling as those that spring from the most heroic pages of history.

BORN IN HUNGARY

Born in Hungary, Mrs. Kentling went to Vienna, Austria, to live at the age of twelve. It was in that country that she married William Kentling, a Hungarian nobleman. When the ill-fated young man was sent by Napoleon III of France to become emperor of Mexico, she went with her young husband and was lady in waiting for Carlotta.

The world was bright and beautiful to the young folk as they set out on the great adventure, attached to a new royal house in a new world. But tragedy struck when Maximilian lost his military support and in June 1867 native Mexican troops under Don Benito Juarez marched into Mexico City and made Maximilian prisoner. The story of how the young ruler was tried, convicted and shot and of how his lovely wife, her mind broken, lived on 60 years only to die last January, long since has been inscribed in the pages of history.

HUSBAND BANDMASTER

Royal Bandmaster Heldie and his bride were among the six court followers who reached the United States in safety. He, however, was very ill, and when the steamer which brought them to this country had touched New Orleans his young wife hurriedly arranged to travel up the Mississippi to St. Louis that there might be no danger of his contracting yellow fever which then was raging. But her efforts to save her husband's life were futile and the young bandmaster died soon after reaching the Missouri city.

Three years later the girl who had Frank Kentling and with the high hearted courage of a pioneer came to a sparsely settled region of the Ozarks to establish the first general store at Highlandville.

"The country was very, very wild in those days—almost sad," recalls Mrs. Kentling, of her early residence in Highlandville 59 years ago.

"It was woods from Highlandville to the square in Springfield. We had no bridges across the streams, and sometimes when the boys came here for goods for the store they had to wait a week before they could get back."

But this did not daunt the courage of the brave young woman to whom life had been one series of adventures. Although she spends much of her time with her daughters here, she still calls Highlandville home and frequently visits her sons there. She is the mother of nine children, eight of whom are living.

GETS MANY LETTERS

Many letters come to her from all parts of the country asking for information about her eventful life in Mexico. There are friendly, cheering letters and there also sometimes are irritating, absurd questions. For instance there is the woman who wrote to ask if it were true that Carlotta had a child, who when the revolution flamed in the country was placed in a balloon and sent safely in the United States. Another wrote to know all the details about Carlotta's fondness for Chihuahua dogs, the tiny spindly-legged animals known as the smallest dogs in the world, and Mrs Kentling considers it preposterous that anyone should imagine Carlotta laboring tirelessly, part of the time in countries across the water, to obtain military support for her husband. No one has had time to take an interest in dogs.

Mrs. Kentling enjoys excellent health for one of her age. Rheumatism sometimes make it difficult for her and friends as much as she would like, but she takes a lively interest in everything about her. Each morning she pins a lovely flower in her hair and when the weather is fair her daughter takes her for a short walk during the day. She is very fond of flowers, it makes no difference of what variety, and often she not only adorns her hair with a bright posy but also wears a colorful bouquet.

He is survived by his parents, a sister, Martha Ann, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. H. E. Setton.

Following the wedding the bridal party had dinner at the Colonial hotel.

TWO home towns are claimed by M. A. O'Rear, director of the Greenwood training school at State Teachers college.

O'Rear enter the Missouri university where he received two degrees.

These towns are Centralia and Columbia, Mo.

Mr. O'Rear was born on a farm seven miles from Columbia. When he was 15 years of age he went to Centralia to live. It was there he was graduated from high school. He then returned to Columbia to Begining his career as a pupil in a rural school, Mr. O'Rear had opportunity to study at first hand all types of educational facilities Missouri had to offer. But it was not so much this as an inherent tendency toward educational work that caused him to become a teacher, he thinks.

"My father was a teacher," he explained, "and several of my great uncles were teachers. Educational work seemed to run in the O'Rear family."

Mr. O'Rear taught in Centralia and also in Columbia. He also served as superintendent of schools at Boonville for 10 years. He taught in Teachers college the summer of 1912, then accepted a regular position and moved his family here May 24, 1913.

It is only infrequently that Mr. O'Rear visits either of his old home towns. Educational interests sometimes take him to Columbia, but he finds that most of his old friends there are gone and the same is true of Centralia.

PIONEERS' EARLY BATTLES TO LAND RAILROAD IS TOLD

How Handful of Citizens Raised $20,000 to Bring Tracks Here Is Recalled By A. M. Haswell

FINANCIERS TOOK MONEY, NEVER FULFILLED PLEDGE

Panic of 1852 and Bitter Civil War Days Played Roles in Shaping Destiny of Southwest Missouri

By A. M. HASWELL

THE history of the early efforts of Springfield and Greene county to gain railroad communication with the outer world furnish several interesting chapters. The old records of the county court show that as early as 1851, when the first railroads were barely beginning to creep across the Mississippi, a petition was presented to the court asking that a special election be called to authorize the court to subscribe $100,000 for stock in the "southwest branch of the Pacific railroad." At that date the road had no existence, except a tentative survey running in this direction.

The election was called and the proposition carried. The census of 1850 in the county, when several times larger than now, was 12,765, of whom 1230 were negro slaves. The total county revenue for 1850 was $2472.97. Thus the interest on the $100,000 at 6 percent would call for more than twice the county income!

PLUNGE INTO DEBT

But the end was not yet, for in 1854, no railroad being yet within 150 miles of Springfield, the rumor circulated that, because the counties along the line were so slow in subscribing stock, the whole enterprise was about to be abandoned. There were tricky financiers in those days, as well as in our times! But the scare worked, and the people of Greene county, panic stricken for fear they were not to get the railroad, petitioned for another special election, which was called, and a second $100,000 subscribed for! So the little frontier community of less than 1500 white people had saddled themselves with a debt of $200,000!

In July, 1855, the court ordered a special levy of one and a half percent, "to provide $20,000, the first installment due on the county's subscription to the stock of the southwest branch of the Pacific railroad." That $20,000 was raised in cash and paid; somebody got it, but Greene county did not get the railroad! As far as can be found now, no further payments were made on those great subscriptions. The panic of 1852 had put a stop to all railroad building, and soon the Civil war came up, and quickly wiped out that and thousands of other debts.

ROAD RUMORS TO LIFE

With the great war in the past, the country began to rise from the ashes, and again the air was full of all sorts of railroad rumors. Then when it was finally settled in 1868 that the railroad which was being built would miss the limits of Springfield entirely, and establish a rival town to the north, many business men of the older town felt that it was almost a matter of life and death that Springfield proper should have a railroad convenient to its business center.

At that time there was what might be called an epidemic all through southwest Missouri for subscribing for stock in railroads which never existed on anything but paper. Laclede, Dallas, Polk and a score other Ozarks counties blithely voted bonds, running the aggregate into millions of dollars. More or less of the bonds were sold but the roads were never built; the counties refused to pay for roads they never got, and were involved in litigation which, in some cases like those of Dallas and St. Clair counties, lasted until recent times, when, under repeated adverse decisions of the supreme court of the United States, they were finally compromised and paid.

Thus it seemed to old town leaders the most natural thing in the world that Greene county should join the procession, issue bonds, build a railroad, and get one that would compete with the road that had not won their love by leaving their town on the outside.

IGNORED PETITIONS

So petitions were circulated and the county court ordered that a proposition be submitted at the November election in 1870, that the county subscribe for $300,000, stock to be divided between the Fort Scott, Springfield & Memphis, and the Kansas City, Springfield & Memphis roads. The proposition was hardly noticed by the voters, for it was defeated by the insignificant vote of 368 for and 486 against it. That was not half the vote of Springfield alone! But the defect did not put an end to the matter, for at once new petitions circulated and were numerously signed, asking for a special election on the proposition.

But the county court did not call that election; it had been persuaded to take revolutionary action, to get the bonds issued. With the petition came the written opinion of a competent attorney that the court had the authority to comply with the prayer of the petitioners without calling any election on the matter. The court consisted of Ralph Walker, presiding justice, who was a merchant in Ash Grove. Afterwards he was for many years an honored citizen of Springfield and held, what is still the record, of four terms as mayor of the city. With him was Benjamin Kite, first district, and R. F. Matthews from the second district. Walker and Matthews voted to issue $400,000 of bonds, with which to purchase stock. Kite protested vigorously against it, but the vote of the majority stood.

ANGER FLAMES

At first the people seemed almost stunned, and it was some time before there was any organized opposition, and by that time $200,000 of the bonds had been rushed onto the market and sold at a big discount, and were in the hands of "innocent purchasers." That was a term Greene county was to hear hundreds of times in the years during which the bonds were being fought from court to court. At about the same time the county court of Cass county had followed the same procedure, and subscribed heavily for bonds of a paper railroad. One morning the train on which the judges were known to be passengers, was flagged by a mob of farmers, and the court was taken out and shot! The opposition in Greene did not adopt such drastic measures, but it is certain that Judge Walker and Matthews carefully abstained for two or three years from visiting the region in and around Republic, where the opposition was strongest, and where threats of lynch law were common. The fight went on until at last the supreme court of the United States said the bonds were in the hands of "innocent purchasers" and must be paid.

HAD ENOUGH FIGHTING

The morning when the news of that decision reached Springfield, there was a group of farmers in the Frisco land office in North Springfield, where I was agent. One of the men, a fiery youngster, said: "We will never pay the d—d things! Greene county will fight first!" Then an old gray bearded Confederate veteran spoke up: "Well, if nothing else won't do you young fellers except to fight Uncle Sam, I reckon you'll have to fight. But not me! No, sir! I tried that once and I got a bellyful!" Meanwhile grading was pushed all the way from Springfield to the county line beyond Ash Grove. And those cuts and fills lay for years wasting away under action of the elements.

But after all the old investment in repudiated bonds was to prove a grand thing, for in 1877 a group of determined Springfield business men decided that they had waited long enough for a railroad. They organized the "Western Missouri Railroad company," put in thousands of dollars of their own money, held meetings and raised $35,000 from other citizens and laid the rails to Ash Grove. They hired an engine, an old combination passenger and express car, and a freight car or two from the Frisco and ran a daily train each way. Springfield never had a wilder celebration than on that day in May, 1878, when the dingy first train of her first railroad pulled into the town. And that was by no means the last good derived from the old bonds; for that 20 miles of railroad was the bait which in three years sufficed to bring the Fort Scott, Springfield & Memphis into Springfield. And that was the beginning of a progress that has not ceased from that day to this.

Springfield certainly owes a monument to the seven men who, at great personal financial risk, built that 20 miles of railway. Their names were: L. H. Murray, L. A. D. Crenshaw, Charles H. Heer, J. W. McDaniel, Charles Sheppard, Ralph Walker and Harrison Havens.

They all have gone over to the majority, but it can truthfully be said that "their works do follow them."

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

NEVADA, Mo., is the town W. Y. Foster, instructor in the education department at State Teachers college, calls his old home town, but he has lived in many other communities of this state.

Mr. Foster was born in Allenton, St. Louis county. His mother died when he was 10 months of age and his family moved to St. Louis for one year. Then his two brothers and sister and himself went to live on his grandfather's farm in Johnson county near Warrensburg where he lived three years. There followed a year in Pleasant Hill, two years in Carthage and ten years in Kansas City where he finished the elementary schools.

Thrown upon his own resources at 17 and having just finished the eighth grade, Mr. Foster began teaching a rural school in Cedar county. Each summer he attended the Warrensburg State Normal school and continued to teach during the winter, three years in Cedar county followed by three years in Vernon county. Then he became principal of schools at Walker, Mo., and the following year was made head of the English department in the Nevada High school. This began his ten years' residence in Nevada for after two years in the high school, followed by one year as superintendent of schools in Schell City, he was elected superintendent of schools in Vernon county for three successive terms. It was after that that in 1916 he came to Springfield as a member of the faculty of State Teachers college. Most of his high school and college work was done at Warrensburg, but he received his bachelor's degree from Springfield Teachers college in 1916 and later his master's degree from Peabody college.

Only Saturday Mr. Foster was back in his old home town of Nevada, shaking hands with some of his old friends. He is doing extension work for the Teachers college at Eldorado Springs and drove through Nevada for a brief visit. Last year he had an extension class at Nevada and so was there many times during the year.

"I have kept in close touch with the people of Nevada and Vernon county," he says. "When I left I knew everyone in the county, but of course there have been some changes. I read regularly the Weekly Southwest Mail, published at Nevada."

Mr. Foster had the distinction of presenting more than 1000 diplomas to graduates of the eighth grade in rural schools of Vernon county while he was county superintendent. He organized the first township commencement, a custom which has been followed in the county since that time.

WOMAN LEAVES ESTATE TO CARE OF HER 17 DOGS

The strangest will on record in Greene county was filed for probate today before Judge John H. Fairman at the courthouse.

The will left the estate of Mrs. Dell J. Gibbons, 56-year-old Springfield recluse, who died Sunday, to the care of her 17 dogs "for the rest of their natural lives."

After the death of the 17 dogs, the will specifies, all of the aged woman's estate shall go to her friend, Mrs. Pearl Pinochi, 460 West Commercial street, who as executrix of the will is appointed to care for and feed the beloved dogs so long as they live.

The will orders that Mrs. Pinochi, who cared for Mrs. Gibbons during the two weeks' illness which ended in her death, first pay all of Mrs. Gibbons' "just debts" and the expenses of her funeral. The woman is ordered also to provide a $500 vault at the grave in the Peirce City cemetery, where Mrs. Gibbons probably will be buried tomorrow, under the direction of the Klingner Funeral home.

Mrs. Gibbons, a widow, had lived alone for several years in a tiny house at 1103 North Street, near Zoo park. She began raising fine dogs with the idea of selling them, but became so attached to them that she would not let them go. She realized last Wednesday that she was near death, summoned Fred Moon, Springfield attorney, and dictated the will which was filed today.

There are no known heirs to the estate, which includes real estate in Springfield and Monett.

Mr. Fox was born in the county of Longford, Ireland and educated in the public schools there. Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've

By CELIA RAY
JACKSON, MICH., is the home town of Will T. Kennedy, secretary of the Kelly Coal and Material company and president of the Springfield Kiwanis club.

Mr. Kennedy completed the schools at Jackson and then attended Michigan University, leaving his home town permanently when at the age of 22 he came to Springfield to visit his brother and liked the city so well he decided to stay.

Mr. Kennedy
 Mr. Kennedy's father was in the lumber business and so traveled through southern Michigan where the large tracts of timber were being sold. Frequently Mr. Kennedy accompanied his father on visits to the lumber camps and found this an enjoyable and unusual experience.

"The lumber business was the large industry of southern Michigan, when I was a boy," said Mr. Kennedy. "Now the timber almost all has been cut in that section and the land is devoted to agriculture. The lumber industry, accordingly, has been moved further north."

Mr. Kennedy visits his old home town almost every year. His parents have moved to Detroit but he has a brother and many friends in Jackson, so he visits the two cities on a yearly trip to Michigan.

C. P. Kinsey, head of the music department at State Teachers college, was born in Henry county, Ill.,

but his parents moved to Clarinda, Iowa, when he was three years of age and to it he refers as the "old home town."

Clarinda is located in Page county in one of the richest agricultural centers of the United States. The county has been featured in magazines as that having the best rural school system in the country. Mr. Kinsey as a boy sang in a church choir in the town and took part in other musical activities.

"My first interest in music came when I was a very small boy," he recalls. "One stormy, rainy evening a man who was driving over the country trying to sell an organ stopped at our home and asked to leave it because of the weather.

"He did not come back for several days and in the meantime I learned to play a few pieces on it. I begged father to buy it, but he said he preferred to buy a piano when he got a musical instrument. However, he agreed to rent the organ. I started taking lessons immediately. Later we got the piano and I began teaching music in five nearby towns, driving to them to give the lessons."

From Clarinda Mr. Kinsey went to Chicago to live. It was from there he went to Northwestern university, to Germany and other places where he continued his musical education.

Mr. Kinsey returns occasionally to Clarinda for visits. He still has relatives and friends there and takes an interest in the town where he received the inspiration for his career.

The Waste Basket

Into Which Are Often Tossed Scraps Well Worth While

A rather interesting war story comes from St. Joseph, especially to Springfield where both Col. Elijah Gates and his son, Joel E. Gates were well known.

A ring worn by Col. Elijah Gates of the Confederate army when his arm was amputated because of bullet wounds received in the battle of Franklin, Tenn., in 1864, has been finally traced to Joel E. Gates of St. Joseph, son of the colonel.

Recently, Mr. Gates, who is a city assessor, accompanied Mayor Stigall on a speaking tour through northwest Missouri. At Mexico, Mo., he was given the name of a man who was said to know the history of the ring, and this week Mr. Gates was able to get in touch with him.

During the battle of Franklin, Colonel Gates led his troops within 100 yards of the union lines. The colonel's arms were both pierced by bullets at the first volley, and his horse galloped back to the Confederate lines, carrying the colonel. Winn, a Confederate soldier, helped the colonel away from the battlefield, and sat at his side as one of the wounded arms was amputated.

As a token of remembrance the colonel gave Winn a plain gold ring which he had worn on the hand which was amputated. After the death of the colonel the Gates family did not hear of either Winn or the ring.

R. W. Winn, a theater operator at Mexico, Mo., wrote to Mr. Gates stating that he was the son of Ben Winn, and said that his father had worn the ring up to the time of his death a number of years ago. The ring then became the property of the widow, and was highly treasured by her, so much that it was buried with her after her death a few years ago.

Col. Gates, with one sleeve pinned to his coat, was a familiar figure in Springfield back in the 50s when he was United States marshal of this district. He opened the first term of federal court ever held in Springfield with his "O, yez, O, yez." He was appointed in Cleveland's first administration. In the second administration of Cleveland, Gen. Shelby was appointed marshal. He made Joel E. Gates deputy marshal and Gates did considerable work around Springfield. When here one day a telegram came to him announcing the death of a friend. Through error, newspapers announced that his father, Col. Gates, had died. Col. Gates used to enjoy reading his own obituary.

'FINIS' WRITTEN TO WAR ROMANCE

Ash Grove Physician Divorces French War Bride He Met In Brest, France

Dr. Charles H. McHaffie, prominent physician of Ash Grove, was granted a divorce decree from Mrs. Gabriella McHaffie, pretty French girl whom he married seven years ago at Brest, France, in Judge Guy D. Kirby's division of the circuit court yesterday.

Mrs. McHaffie was not present to contest the suit. She is at her home in Brest. Several defense witnesses attended. Elmer G. Wadlow, attorney for the wife, after conferring with counsel for Mr. McHaffie, decided not to place them on the stand.

DOCTOR'S THIRD DIVORCE

It was the third divorce granted Doctor McHaffie. During the world war he served in France as an army physician and met the girl who later became his third wife. He returned to America, obtained a divorce from his second wife, and went back to Brest and married Gabriella. They returned to Ash Grove, established a home and lived together seven years.

Then suddenly they separated and Mrs. McHaffie returned to France in June, 1927. It was revealed during the hearing that Mrs. McHaffie obtained a $1000 property settlement before she departed.

JEALOUS, HE SAYS

Doctor McHaffie filed suit for divorce several months ago, and his wife, on hearing of the petition, wrote to Mr. Wadlow at Ash Grove, asking him to contest the suit.

She charged in her answer that she had in her possession letters received by her husband from other women, in which endearing terms were used. Dr. McHaffie had charged in his petition that his wife was insanely jealous of his professional association with women patients.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glances By Springfieldians to Places They've

By CELIA RAY

WHEN he was a boy, living on a farm in Pike county, John R. Ferguson, Sr., pioneer resident of Springfield, frequently made the trip to Louisiana, the nearest town, to take products to market. He lived on the farm until he was 19 and always has referred to Louisiana as the "old home town."

Mr. Ferguson learned the three Rs' in a log school house, then went to an adjoining district, to attend a country academy. The Civil war, however, broke out about that time and he quit school to volunteer in the Union army.

Mr. Ferguson was left an orphan at the age of 10 and he worked at all the usual farm jobs in the neighborhood. His pay was $3 to $15 a month and he attended school while paying his way.

He remembers going occasionally to Louisiana on horseback to market poultry, eggs and other products.

"The hardest job was carrying a sack of corn or wheat to the custom mill to be ground for bread," he recalls. "The sack sometimes fell off the horse and the rider with it."

After the war Mr. Ferguson returned to visit his relatives at his home. He then went to Jefferson City for four years in the state department. There he married a Springfield girl and with her he came here in 1869.

"Since that time I have lived in this Queen of the beautiful cities," he says, "and never have regretted my choice of home."

"However, the following stanzas voice my love for the home of my youth—

"How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,

When fond recollections present them to view—

The orchard, the meadow, the deep tangled wildwood,

And all the loved spots that my infancy knew."

DEAN CARL B. SWIFT of the Bible department of Drury college was born in Billings, Mo., and still retains a decided interest in the old home town.

The Fourth of July celebration in Billings when old fashioned cannons were fired was a big event of the year to Dean Swift as a boy and he vividly recalls it now.

Dean Swift left Billings to continue his education at the Marionville academy and later at other colleges and universities, including Yale. It was at the Marionville academy that he got his inspiration for religious educational work to which he has devoted his life.

While most of the comrades he knew as a boy have left the old home town, Dean Swift still has many friends and some relatives there. When he decided to invest in a fruit farm in the Ozarks he bought one two miles west of Billings, so frequently returns there on business as well as pleasure trips.

On this farm Dean Swift is raising apples, strawberries and grapes, which have been produced so abundantly in the district near Billings during recent years. He also has a herd of Jersey cows on the farm.

"Fruit raising and dairying are developing in a fine way in the Ozarks," he believes.

'MY HOME TOWN'

Backward Glimpses By Springfieldians to Places They've Loved and Still Cherish

By CELIA RAY

A FARM 12 miles from Cuba, Mo., was the birthplace of the Reverend John T. Bacon, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian church, and there he lived until he was 19 years of age.

Doctor Bacon's early home was an old fashioned log house—rather two log houses—with a hallway between them and an attic.

He got his early education in an old log school house one-fourth mile from his home. There he attended until he was 13 years of age after which he went to school in Bourbon, Mo.

"There were many things on the farm to interest me," recalls Doctor Bacon. "There not only was the farm work, but also fishing and hunting and the like.

"I remember I didn't get to see the first circus I ever heard of. It came to a town 10 miles away and cost 50 cents admission. I didn't have money enough to go and hadn't heard about boys paying their way in by carrying water for the elephants."

When Doctor Bacon was 16 his father died and three years later the Springfield minister entered Missouri Valley college to study for his chosen career. After completing the course there he was graduated from the theological college of Cumberland university. He then became pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Springfield, where he served 28 years before retiring because of ill health to become pastor emeritus of the church.

There is a large number of prominent Springfield men who lived in Crawford county at the same time Doctor Bacon was there. John T. Woodruff went to rural school in an adjoining district with him. John McCormack, Courtney W. Hamlin and Frank McAtee all are former residents of Crawford county. Doctor Bacon knew as a boy

"I go back occasionally for a visit," said Doctor Bacon. "There are many ties that still hold my interest in the old home community."

Future Mate Signs Away Claims to Wife's Wealth

Pre-Nuptial Contract Denies Husband Any Voice in Widow's Affairs; Signatures Affixed Before Wedding

"IT'S better to reach an agreement and put it down in writing before one marries," declared Minnie M. Goodwin, 39, well-to-do Fair Grove woman, when she and Grover Dardin, 43, of Olive, Mo., applied for a marriage license at the office of recorder of deeds yesterday.

The couple came to Springfield yesterday to get a marriage license. But before going to the courthouse, they went to the office of a notary public and had a marriage contract drawn up. Both then signed it.

They then went to the recorder's office and turned the contract over to that official to be recorded as a regular contract. Then they purchased the license and departed for Fair Grove, where the ceremony was performed at the bride's home last night.

The wife, according to the terms of the contract, is to hold all the property which she now owns in her own name as "absolutely as if she had remained single and unmarried."

GETS WHAT THEY MAKE

The contract further stipulates that she is to have "full control and management of all the property which she now owns and which may be accumulated, purchased or acquired in any other way by her and her husband jointly during her life time." She is also given the right to dispose of the property as her "will and pleasure" might dictate. It is her desire, however, that the property should descend to her children.

Mr. Darden, in signing the contract, relinquishes all right to the wife's property as well as to that which they may acquire during the term of the marriage.

JAKE MARX DEAD: SEIZED BY HEART ATTACK IN OFFICE

Pioneer Merchant and Insurance Broker Dies in Downtown Building; Asked Friends to Watch Him

JAKE MARX, 78, pioneer Springfield merchant and insurance man, died yesterday afternoon at his office in the Woodruff building less than an hour after he was stricken with heart disease.

Active in several Springfield fraternal orders, in business here since 1877, president of the Jewish congregation in Springfield for several years, somewhat of a philanthropist, Mr. Marx was known over the city by hundreds of persons in all walks of life.

When Mr. Marx went to his insurance office yesterday morning he told friends in an adjoining office to "look in occasionally today, I do not feel so well." It was obeying this caution that a friend found him dying, where he had fallen to the floor while walking across his office.

Mrs. Marx was called to the office at once and was with her husband at the time of his death.

Mr. Marx was born in Germany in 1867. When only 17 years old he came to America, alone, to make his home. Soon after his arrival in the States he went to Paducah, Ky. There he worked in a clothing store and learned the principles of American business.

He stayed in Paducah 10 years amassed enough funds to buy his own store and get started. In 1877 he came to Springfield and established the Oak Hall clothing company, on the site where the Nathan Clothing company now stands.

Twenty years ago he sold his business and became an insurance broker. He was active in the insurance business until the day of his death.

For many years Mr. Marx represented Springfield at the national convention of B'Nai Brith. He was active in several Masonic bodies in Springfield. The Masonic lodges will conduct services at his funeral, arrangements for which will be in charge of the Alma Lohmeyer funeral home. Mr. Marx is survived by his wife; a brother, Gus Marx, and two nephews, Mennie Marx and Arthur Marx.

Mr. and Mrs. Marx celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Springfield a year ago. Mrs. Marx suffered a relapse following her husband's death yesterday and was unable to see anyone last night at her home in the Inglenook apartments.

Mr. Marx was considered in excellent health. He was described by friends as "old only in years, but young and interested in modern day issues and the younger generation."

Mrs. Harriet Grubbs, who would have been 98 years of age Thanksgiving day, died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Elton Murray, 820 East Walnut street, this noon after a brief illness.

Mrs. Grubbs was a pioneer resident of Springfield. She was born in Springfield, Ill., and came here 81 years ago. She was the widow of H. S. Grubbs, a pioneer hotel man of Springfield. He died 41 years ago.

He was owner of the Metropolitan hotel at the time of his death. Mrs. Grubbs was one of the charter members of the Grace M. E. church.

There were five generations in Mrs. Grubbs' family. She is survived by her son, three granddaughters, Mrs. Otis Patterson and Mrs. Murray of Springfield, and Mrs. Lee Grubbs of Mankato, seven great-grandchildren. Her husband was a hotel man.

Funeral services will be held at the Herman Lohmeyer Funeral home Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Maplepark cemetery.

MARX FUNERAL SET FOR FRIDAY

Heart Attack Proves Fatal to Pioneer Merchant and Insurance Man

Funeral services for Jake Marx, 78, pioneer Springfield merchant and insurance man, who died suddenly yesterday afternoon in his office in the Woodruff building, will be conducted at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral chapel. Burial will be in the Jewish cemetery adjoining Hazelwood.

Mr. Marx told friends in an adjoining office yesterday morning when he went to work that he wanted them "to look in occasionally today. I do not feel so well." Obeying this caution, a friend found him dying, where he had fallen to the floor while walking across his office about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as the result of a heart attack.

Wife at Bedside

Mrs. Marx was called and was with her husband at the time of his death less than an hour after the attack.

He had been active in several Springfield fraternal orders in business here since 1877, president of the Jewish congregation in Springfield for several years. He was born in Germany in 1867 coming to America, alone, when he was 17.

He soon afterwards went to work in a Paducah, Ky., clothing store. After 10 years there he came to Springfield and established the Oak Hall Clothing company on the site where the Nathan Clothing company now stands.

Mr. Marx became an insurance broker when he sold his business 20 years ago and was active in the business until his death.

He is survived by his wife; a brother, Gus Marx, and two nephews, Manile Marx and Arthur Marx.

SHADOWS LURK BEHIND SCENES IN ODD SUICIDE

Ghosts of Ancestors, Years in Postoffice Complicating Factors

HURLS SELF TO DEATH

Falling With Poison, Homer Leeper Dies Under Fast Train

Yesterday afternoon a man was crushed to death under a railroad train on a trestle where he apparently had dropped in a second attempt to end his life. The man was Homer J. Leeper, who lived with his evidently happy family of three in a modest but attractive home at 626 East Normal street.

Nothing in his life except the dark memory of several relatives on his father's side, who had taken their own lives, is left to indicate the reasons for the deed. On the contrary there was every reason for him to have wanted to live. Here was a sunny, economical little wife who undoubtedly had made a good home, a daughter and son, Maurine, 17, and Leon, 18, who were just blossoming forth into the fullness of life.

24 Years in Post Office

Mr. Leeper had an honorable position which he had filled with entire satisfaction for 24 years at the post office. He had the record of having been "called on the carpet" only twice in all that time. There were fancied financial troubles, but those could not be very severe with a man worth about $8000. His salary of $2100 a year, not an inconsiderable sum.

There were other things to hold him to this earth. Twenty years Mr. Leeper had been interested in the

of his daily work which sent him to death—standing all day at a window passing out checks, taking in change, accepting parcels. It is possible there is a much deeper psychological reason for his act.

Leeper always presented a smiling, attractive countenance to postoffice patrons, but he had practically nothing to do with his brother clerks. Once upon a time he had a few close friends there but of late years he had gone elsewhere for companionship. There was no reason given for this change.

According to P. J. Payne, assistant postmaster, Leeper was morbid and despondent at regular intervals. He had a few "spats" with other clerks over trifling matters. He rarely spoke to them.

A Practical Joker

But peculiarly, Leeper was a confirmed practical joker. The day before he died he extracted the powder and shot from an entire box of shotgun shells belonging to a friend who was preparing to go hunting, and permitted that friend to make the trip only to find he had no ammunition but merely "duds."

Freud probably would call this the case of a man with an inferiority complex, repressed desires for comradeship and an urge to force attention from others. The periods of despondency according to alienists are characteristic of such temperaments.

At any rate it was made clear that Leeper sought to take his life. He had election day, returned home with his wife and went to his garage where he took poison. Since that date he had not been able to work.

Last Sunday forenoon was his first time back at work. He completed the "trick" but was unable to return Monday because of weakness. He then asked for a 30-day leave of absence.

Tuesday afternoon he slipped out of his home without comment and took a long walk lasting two hours. Mrs. Leeper asked him to inform her again when he went out. He made no rejoinder as to where he had been. It was just such a walk which started Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock that ended in his death at 3:15 in the afternoon under train No. 103, fast southbound Frisco passenger, on the James river trestle near Turner.

Wife Tries Desperately

Increasingly, of late, according to Mr. Payne, it had become apparent that Leeper was very nervous. Sunday he made several minor mistakes that he would not ordinarily have made week or so.

She had made desperate efforts to ward off the evil she felt hanging over their household. She attempted to interest her husband in buying a small piece of farm land and putting a filling station on it. She had figured that Leon could operate the station and Leeper could take care of chickens and do small chores that would help him to regain his health and mental well-being.

"Leeper did not keep interest in the project," Mr. Payne said today.

He called up a friend, Frank Wheeler, who operates a filling station on the Glenstone road, and asked him many questions about it. That was only Tuesday, the day before his death. Mrs. Leeper felt that at last she had struck the thing to take his mind off his more or less imaginary troubles.

But it was not. When Leeper left his home early yesterday his wife feared for his health because he had not taken an overcoat. His throat, seared by acid, she felt might be affected by cold. It was only later when hours had passed that she became sure something terrible was running through his mind and hired bloodhounds from the Wyatt-Springfield kennels to follow his trail. They finally lost the trail only a mile from where Leeper was found.

Leeper was 47 years old, having been born December 12, 1881.

Deny Financial Troubles

He had few close friends, the only two known offhand by those familiar with his personal habits being L. Sherwood, automobile dealer of 211 Olive street, and James W. Slavens, grocer, of 1103 North Grant avenue. These were unwilling to comment on the psychopathical side of Leeper's act, but did say his trouble was not financial.

Coroner Windle plans to question Engineer Phil Trustler, Fireman Tom

Turner, Conductor Biggers, all of train 103, and others. It is not certain whether an inquest will be held.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the South Street Christian church, with the Reverend E. C. Sechler officiating.

The Solomon Lodge, A. F. and A. M. will have charge of the services and burial will be in John's Chapel, four miles west of Bois D'Arc, under direction of the Alma Lohmeyer funeral home.

The Leeper home is dark with sorrow for the entire family, including Mrs. brother, Charles Leeper of Ash Grove, being prostrated.

PIONEER WOMAN SUCCUMBS ON EVE OF HER BIRTHDAY

Nearing 98, Mrs. Harriet Grubbs, Who Was Well Acquainted With Lincoln, Dies Of Double Pneumonia

SPRINGFIELD lost one of its oldest and most interesting pioneer citizens with the death yesterday noon of Mrs. Harriet Grubbs, who would have been 98 years old had she lived one week longer, until Thanksgiving day. The aged woman died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Elton Murray, 520 East Walnut street, following a short illness of double pneumonia.

Mrs. Grubbs was one of the few persons still living who had been well acquainted with Abraham Lincoln. The man who later was to become president of the United States and known to posterity as "The Great Emancipator," worked during his twelfth year in the law office of Mrs. Grubbs' father, Thomas Neale, at Springfield, Ill. She described him to her friends as "the ugliest man she ever saw."

WIDOW OF HOTEL MANAGER

Because of her early association, she was an honored guest at a Lincoln birthday anniversary banquet in Muskogee last February.

Last year Mrs. Grubbs had the distinction of being one of only 11 widows of veterans of the Mexican war. At that time only two men were still living who had fought for the United States in the war of 1846.

Mrs. Grubbs was born in Springfield, Ill., and was one of eight children in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neale. She was married to H. B. Grubbs in that city in 1849. They later moved to Carlinville, Ill., where Mr. Grubbs was in the hotel business. Their next move was to this city in 1867.

During their early years in this city Mr. Grubbs owned and operated a large brick kiln located on the tract now occupied by Grant Beach public park. Later he entered the hotel business and was proprietor of the Metropolitan hotel when he died in 1887.

RESIDENT SINCE 1867

Mrs. Grubbs was one of the charter members of the Grace M. E. church.

With the exception of the past two years, when she has lived with her son, H. B. Grubbs, in Muskogee, Okla., Mrs. Grubbs had been a resident of Springfield since 1867.

She came here two weeks ago by automobile with her son and grandson, Lee Grubbs, for a visit with Mrs. Murray, but it was not until last Saturday that she was overtaken by the illness which proved fatal. Despite her many years, she showed no ill effects from the overland trip of 287 miles.

The aged woman had been active, even at advanced years. She was exceedingly fond of young people and had dozens of friends among the younger generation here.

FUNERAL TODAY

Before her death there were five living generations in her family. She is survived by her son; two granddaughters, Mrs. Otis Patterson and Mrs. Murray of Springfield; one grandson, Lee Grubbs of Muskogee; seven great grandchildren, Neale Patterson, Ned Patterson, John Patterson, Booth Murray, Robert Murray, Mrs. William Hardesty and Boone Miller, and one great-great-grandchild, Murray Francis Hardesty.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Herman Lohmeyer Funeral home by the Reverend C. Fox, pastor of the Christ Episcopal church, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in Maple Park cemetery.

JAKE MARX

Funeral services for Jake Marx, 78, pioneer Springfield merchant and insurance broker, will be conducted at 3 o'clock today at Alma Lohmeyer Funeral chapel. # PASTOR'S NOTE AFTER SUICIDE STARTS 'LIBEL'

Minister Sued by Husband of Nurse After Letter Charges His Intemperance Drove Her to Kill Self in Howell County Home

An article written by the Reverend P. L. Pike, pastor of the church of the Brethren of Peace Valley, and published October 25 in the West Plains Journal, more or less plainly placing the blame for a wife's death on her husband's alleged intemperance, is the basis for a $5000 libel suit filed by I. W. Cavander, Peace Valley farmer, against the preacher.

The action was started in the Howell county circuit court. It involves the death by gunshot wound of Cavander's wife, a trained nurse who formerly was in the Pomona hospital and was a graduate of a St. Joseph, Mo., hospital. Mrs. Cavander is supposed to have killed herself, October 13, at her home. A neighbor found Cavander asleep in his car on a road.

The petition charges that the article was defamatory and libelous because everyone who read it understood it to mean that Cavander was criminally responsible. The article in question, in the form of a letter to the editor, was short but plain. It follows:

"I am writing an obituary of Virginia Cavander, who came to the Peace Valley neighborhood with her husband I. W. Cavander about five years ago. She came as a trained nurse and had been in many of our homes during sickness and death and had become a friend in time of need.

"October 13, 1928, there was a report of a gun at their home and report says she shot herself during the night, some one going along the road found Mr. Cavander along the road in his car asleep.

"A young man awoke him and he told him that his wife had shot herself.

"If she shot herself, it is supposed she did it to get rid of abuse from a drunken husband. Her age was 35 years, three months and 12 days.

"So one more life has gone out because of the sin of intemperance.

"Her funeral was preached by the writer October 16. Who is responsible for the crime? Will not some of us who claim whisky don't hurt us, we can let it alone, be responsible to an extent? Will it not be the duty of every good citizen to come out and vote on Nov. 6 for Hoover, not because he is a republican, but because he is a sober man. Drunkenness, sorrow, death, are brought about by alcohol and if Smith is elected there will be many homes brought to shame and disgrace.

"I would like to say cast your vote for dry men and don't vote for a man who would vote for a wet. I feel it our Christian duty. —P. L. PIKE."

Mr. and Mrs. Cavander moved to Howell county from St. Joseph, Mo., about five years ago. Cavander is represented by J. N. Burroughs and George Humphries, West Plains attorneys.

Attempt to 'Scare' Youth Ends in Galena Murder

17-Year-Old Farm Youth Held in Stone County Jail Following Death of Young Cousin

A 17-YEAR-OLD farm youth is held at the Stone county jail at Galena for the slaying of his cousin, Charley Helton, 8 years old, after an attempt to "scare" the youth turned to tragedy.

The youth, Lester Eustler, was arrested at the home of Guy Sharp, a Baptist evangelist, and cousin of both boys, after he acknowledged a shot gun with which he attempted to frighten the Helton boy, discharged and killed the lad.

LIVES WITH GRANDPARENTS

The Helton boy and the Eustler youth both are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Maples, farmers of near Cave Springs. The Helton child made his home with the grandparents, but had gone to the Sharp home to spend the night.

Eustler had been to his grandparents' home and was returning to his home when he decided to stop at Sharp's and have "some fun" with the children.

When the youth entered the house, he saw the children and decided to scare them. He took the shotgun and pointed it at the children.

When he pulled the trigger, his finger slipped and the load of the shotgun riddled the small boy's face and chest, killing him almost instantly.

Eustler said he rushed inside the house and found the boy apparently dying. He ran to a neighbor's for help while one of the Sharp children went three and one-half miles to Galena for their father, who was conducting a meeting there. The child died 10 minutes after he was shot.

Eustler was arrested by Sheriff

John Parker and lodged in the county jail at Galena. Because of the illness of the prosecuting attorney, formal charges have not been made against the slayer. He is held without bond.

The Helton boy's mother, Mrs. Agnes Helton, formerly of Crane, is employed at Chelsea, Okla. Funeral services for the boy will be conducted at Crane with burial in South Town cemetery.

OBITUARY LIBELS HIM, MATE AVERS

Denies Pastor's Accusations He Drove Wife to Com- mit Suicide

Charging defamation and libel in an article signed by the Reverend P. L. Pike, of Peace Valley, published in the West Plains Journal on October 25, I. W. Cavander, Peace Valley farmer, has filed suit against the minister for damages of $5000.

'Driven to Suicide'

Mr. Pike's statement, Cavander claims, plainly intimates that his drinking was responsible for his wife's suicide by shooting on October 13. Mr. Pike preached the funeral sermon. Later, writing her obituary for the paper, he said, "If she shot herself, it is supposed she did it to get rid of abuse from a drunken husband. . . ."

Former Trained Nurse

"So one more life has gone out because of sin and intemperance."

Mrs. Cavander had been a trained nurse, and was a graduate of a hospital at St. Joseph, Mo. With her husband, she moved to Howell county about five years ago.

Farmer Kills Self After Family Spat; Neighbor Finds Him

Special to The Leader

AURORA, Mo., Nov. 24.—Herman Utke, prosperous retired farmer, found that he could not get along with his wife, and could not get along without her, it is believed, and so killed himself at his home here. A neighbor, Otto Werdine, discovered the body when he went to the house at the request of neighbors who were anxious because Utke had not arisen.

A shotgun with the barrels discharged was found near the body. A coroner's jury pronounced it suicide. Utke formerly lived at Billings, where he lived alone. He is survived by his wife and three sons. Funeral services were to be conducted at 1:30 today at the King Funeral home of this city.

Two Springfieldians Profit By Outcome Of Suit Over Will

Good fortune has come to two Springfield residents through a $78,000 judgment rendered in the circuit court at Marshall, Mo., in a will case. The Springfieldians are Miss Louise Stanford and Harold Buckner, both living on South Holland avenue, just outside the city. There are several other heirs scattered over the country. W. D. Tatlow, of Tatlow & Schwab, Holland building, was their attorney and won the case on a technical legal point involving the statute of limitations.

The estate was that of the late Mason G. Brown, president of the Bank of Sweet Springs, who died in 1917. His widow, Mary E. Brown, was administratrix of his $180,000 estate. There were no direct heirs. She accounted for only about half of the estate in inventory and died in 1927.

The heirs brought suit in Saline county at Marshall against Mrs. Brown's second husband, J. P. Elaner of Sweet Springs, who was her administrator. Mr. Tatlow based his case on the claim that the statute of limitations set a limit of 10 years, whereas the defense held that it was five years. The 10-year claim, which was upheld just enabled the heirs to win, as the period had about expired.

Other heirs are Frank Raney, Neosho, Mo.; Perry W. Wilson, Wichita Falls, Tex.; J. L. Bucker, Sr., Chicago; Mrs. Anna W. Root, Monroe, Mich.; Mrs. Mary B. Brown, Fulton, Mo.; A. C. Penniman & Son Hardware company, Fort Scott, Kas.; Miss Nellie Smith, Hollywood, Cal.; Ed H. Buckner, Jackson, Miss., and Margaret C. Brown, Ames, Ia.

PRANK IS FATAL; KILLER TO JAIL

Youth Held for Murder After Cousin, 8, Is Fatally Wounded

A 17-year-old youth is in the Stone county jail at Osage, charged with murder in the first degree in connection with the slaying of his eight-year-old cousin. Date for the preliminary hearing has been set as November 26.

The boy now under arrest, Lester Eustler, has acknowledged that a shotgun with which he attempted to frighten the cousin, Charley Helton, discharged and killed the lad.

Eustler was arrested at the home of Guy Sharp, a Baptist evangelist, and cousin of both boys. The Helton boy, who was killed, and Eustler both are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Maples, farmers of near Cave Springs, with whom the Helton child lived.

He had gone to the Sharp home to spend the night and Eustler had been to his grandparents' home and was returning to his own home when he decided to stop at Sharp's and have "some fun" with the children according to the story told officers.

He declared one of the barrels of the gun was unloaded, and that he scratched on the screen, attracting his young cousin's attention.

Eustler said he then thought he would pull the trigger on the empty barrel to make the "scare" more realistic, but his finger slipped and the load of the shotgun riddled the small boy's face and chest, killing him almost instantly.

Eustler ran to one of the neighbors for help while one of the Sharp children went three and one-half miles to Osage for their father who was conducting a meeting there.

Funeral services for the Helton youth were conducted at Crane Thursday with burial in South Town cemetery.

BOY PAUL REVERE OF OZARKS SAVED BAND OF SOLDIERS

12-Year-Old Matches His Wit
And Daring Against Confederates and Wins; Feat Frees
Union Captives

GIVEN FLEETING NOTICE
IN THOSE HECTIC DAYS

Pioneer Recalls How Gallant
Southerner Saved Union Major's Life and How Officer Repaid His Enemy

By A. M. HASWELL

THE historic and spectacular charge of Fremont's bodyguard at Springfield, took place on the afternoon of October 28, 1861. On the night following occurred an incident, which in the rush of more important matters received scant attention at the time, and if mentioned in any history of the Civil war, was dismissed with but a line or two. Yet that incident is well worthy of being told and remembered.

Forming the rear of the little column of cavalry, of which the bodyguard was the larger part, were two companies of horsemen who called themselves the "Prairie Scouts." Representatives of many such bodies which gathered at the north with the first note of war, and rode gaily away to a "ninety-day picnic!" They were as yet not half trained, but they had been incorporated into the main army, and were now known as companies "O" and "L" of the first Missouri cavalry volunteers. In his bombastic dispatch to Fremont, telling of the charge, Major Zagonyi, commander of the bodyguard, only mentions the Prairie Scouts to say that they took no part in the engagement. As they lost many, it would seem that the fiery little Hungarian major was jealous, lest any other should share in the glory of his exploit.

MAJOR IS CAPTURED

But it is not of the charge that I am to tell, but of something that followed a few hours later. The Prairie Scouts were commanded by Major Frank J. White, who had left a sick bed and who was unable to sit in his saddle. Determined not to be left behind, the major followed the column in a buggy with three or four cavalymen as an escort.

Some miles north of Springfield Zagonyi left the Bolivar road which he had been following, and swung off to the west and southwest, so as to ~~cut off the Confederate escape from the rear.~~ ~~It is perhaps~~ ~~substantially~~ ~~the~~ ~~fact~~ ~~was~~ sent Major White of this change of the route, and so it was that somewhere about where West Eight street intersects the line of the old Bolivar road, at present, a squad of Confederate scouts rose out of the brush and took White and his men prisoners.

The captives were taken into Springfield, and it gives a sidelight on the times to know that many of the Confederates were in favor of shooting their prisoners then and there. But a gallant southerner, Major Wroton, leaped in front of White, revolver in hand, and swore to kill the first man raising a hand against him. When the news came into Springfield that a strong federal force was about to attack the place, Major Wroton was ordered to take Major White, and the other prisoners to the camp of General Price, many miles away to the south.

ENTERED BOY HERO

Night overtook them some eight or ten miles on their way, and they quartered themselves in the home of D. A. Dryden, in the northern edge of Christian county. Dryden was a stalwart Union man, a member of Colonel Phelps' regiment of home guards, and already had had part in some lively fighting, but after the battle of Wilson Creek, and the retreat of the federal forces, he, and many of his neighbors of the same persuasion, had quietly remained at their homes. With a dozen armed Confederates quartered upon him, Mr. Dryden naturally did not have much to say concerning his politics! But at the same time a plot was hatching to burn the tables on the unwelcome guests, and release their prisoners.

And here enters the "Modern Paul Revere;" Dryden's son, Tom. The boy was only about 12 years of age, but, like most backwoods Ozarks lads, he was a fearless little fellow, a good shot with his squirrel rifle, a reckless horseman, and an ardent Unionist. Tom had helped to stable and feed the horses of the invaders, and while he was so doing his active young brain hatched a scheme to bring those invaders to grief, and watching his chance he whispered it to his father. That gentleman at once recognized the plan to be feasible, and told the little fellow to go ahead with it.

ON WINGED HOOPS

So late that night, when the squad of Confederates, with the exception of a guard, lay stretched on the floor in front of the fireplace asleep, Tom slipped quietly out of the back door, bare-headed and bare-footed. Up on the hill he could hear the tinkle of the bell worn by his own particular colt, and he made his way through the thick underbrush as fast as he could, towards the bell. He had not dared go to the barn after a bridle, but had picked up a rope halter on the back porch, and slipping the bell off, he put the rope around the colt's neck, then sprang onto the animal's back, and fled away into the night. The colt was young, only half broken, and wild with the excitement quickly caught from his rider, and even a much older and more experienced horseman than Tom Dryden might have been excused if he declined such a ride, with such a steed, and such equipment. Not so Tom, for he had ridden that colt many times without even a rope to guide it; he had trained the animal to turn at a touch of a hand on its neck, or the pressure of a knee, and the sure-footed little brute flew through the pathless woods as if on a modern highway.

KNEW NO FEAR

Nevertheless this was no pleasure jaunt that the boy was taking. When the federal defeat at Wilson Creek had been followed by the retreat of the Union forces, Southwest Missouri had been left open to the raids of the "Bushwhackers," who, caring not a rap for the principles involved in the fight, roamed the country, robbing, ravaging, and murdering at will. Tom knew that such bands were in the neighborhood, and that at any turn of the road, he was liable to ride into a group of these human tigers, who would not hesitate a moment to kill him and take his horse. But this was a boy of the hills; in his veins ran the blood of generations of ancestors who had been in the forefront of the march of civilization from Tide-water Virginia, even to the Ozarks; men and women who had fought Indian redcoats, Tories, frontier outlaws, and red Indians, and fear was not in their blood.

First Tom dashed up to the house of Ananias West, (odd how many of one used to run across that name "Ananias," among the pioneers!) But this Ananias was true blue and he instantly agreed to be at a certain cross roads to join with his neighbors yet to be summoned. The little log homes were scattered far apart, and although the boy rode hard it was nearly daylight before some 20 determined men were at the rendezvous. Then riding until within a quarter of a mile of the Dryden home, they tied their horses in the woods, and with West leading, and Tom at his side with his father's big navy revolver in hand, the little band advanced until they had drawn a cordon around the house, having first quieted the drowsy guard by a tap on the head.

MAJOR PROTECTS 'REBEL'

Suddenly the doors, front and rear, were flung wide, and the startled sleepers woke to find themselves looking into the muzzles of various businesslike muskets and rifles. Resistance was useless. Wroton and his men at once surrendered, and Major White, still sick in bed, found himself among friends. Soon after daylight came the news of the fight at Springfield the day before, and that the federals held the town, so the farmers mounted their prisoners on horseback, and took them in.

By what a slender force the Union held the town and how they did it, may serve to be told later in these hit-or-miss sketches. But it is worthwhile telling here that, even as the Confederate major had, the day before, prevented the murder of Major White, so now, when a frenzied Union soldier swore to kill Wroton, White stepped in front of him, revolver in hand, and declared that he would shoot dead the first man who raised his hand against the prisoner.

And Tom? Why Tom never conceived himself to be a hero; and was only too glad that he had helped to capture "a bunch of rebels," and free some Union soldiers.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Man Who Drove First Motor Car in Springfield Returns to Face Difficult Parking Problem

J. Frank Pickering of Chicago, writer, lecturer and traveler, exponent of visual education in schools, this morning drove around a block in downtown Springfield four times before he found a parking space.

That, Mr. Pickering admits, would not be an item of interest if he could not so vividly recall his last visit here when he had the only automobile in Springfield and people invited him to park it on their front lawns that they might "look it over." Times do change, he concedes.

Carried Auto on Train

It was just 31 years ago that Mr. Pickering, as traveling advertising manager of a big Chicago mail order house, was touring southern Missouri with two railway cars on which his auto was carried. A freight train collided with the train to which he was attached, badly damaging his cars, which were brought to the Springfield Frisco shops for repair.

His automobile also was brought here.

"One bright morning business men and shoppers around the square were astonished to see a vehicle, with no visible power, dash from an alley and make several runs around the square," Mr. Pickering recalled this morning.

Lectures for 30 Years

"The newspaper offices were visited then and representatives taken in the 'electrical horseless carriage.' The vehicle was of the 'brake' style with high hub wheels, seated four passengers, was easy to control and could speed 15 miles an hour. It weighed about a ton and cost $3800."

When automobiles ceased to be a novelty Mr. Pickering entered the lecture business and during the 30 years he and his wife have visited every state in the Union, obtaining unusual pictures which he has presented in his illustrated lectures to more than five million persons. Recently his work has been largely in schools and colleges and his topics are the national parks of the west.

Yellowstone, Yosemite, Grand Canyon of Arizona, Mesa Verde, Zion and others.

Mr. Pickering yesterday called upon L. H. Coward, superintendent of county schools, and later he and Mrs. Pickering visited schools at East D'Arc and Ash Grove. Today they are visiting Republic and other schools. The party may remain here the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Waste Basket

into Which Are Often Tossed Scraps Well Worth While

Many of the old-time citizens will miss Jake Marx. He belonged almost to the pioneer class and was in Springfield when it was a small town and had no daily newspapers. For a long time he ran a clothing store at the Nathan corner and called it the Oak Hall clothing house. He bought out Cohn Brothers, who ran the store for years before. The oldest inhabitant says there was never anything else on the Nathan corner but a clothing store. After the Cohns sold out to Marx they went to Cincinnati and started a wholesale clothing house. Being friendly to Marx they sold him a tremendous order. Marx probably bought on account of the close friendship, but disaster came. The Cohns failed and the receiver demanded an immediate settlement which forced Marx to make an assignment. He did not go back into the clothing business, but continued active in work until the hour of his death. He was a square man, sincere and honorable.

In its 40 years ago column the Carthage Press has this:

"Colonel J. M. Richardson and granddaughter, Miss Celia Wilbur, left for Tucson, Ariz., to spend the winter. Mrs. J. C. Lyeth, who had been with her father, Colonel Richardson, left for her home in Abilene, Kan. She was accompanied by Miss Ruby Wilbur, who was to make her home with her during the winter."

At the close of the Civil war Colonel Richardson became a Union democrat. He was in the federal army, but like Frank P. Blair, B. Gratz Brown, Captain C. B. McAfee and others he became a democrat, although most of the soldiers were republicans. A democratic newspaper was published in Springfield in the name of Colonel Richardson, although the paper was owned by a confederate soldier. It was considered bad politics to let it be known that a Confederate was running the paper.

In loving memory of Mildred A. (Sue) Burroughs, who passed away one year ago today.

Just beyond the majestic river,

In a City wondrous fair,

Dear Sue has gone to meet her brother, who waited her Over There—

Sweetly gentle always cheerful,

Gracious, kind, noble, true

Symbol of a pure white lily—

Was the life of our Dear Sue.

We miss her oh so sadly,

Since no more her smile we see

And our aching hearts will follow

Her through all eternity,

And at last when life is ended

And we too are going home,

With Loving Arms Dear Sue,

Will greet us and gently lead us to God's throne.

Sadly missed by Mother, Father and Relatives.

DAUGHTER HURD ALSO BY CAR WRECKING AUTO

Reverend L. A. Smith, Elderly
Pastor, 1 Fatally Injured

JAMMED AGAINST POLE

Two Machines Collide and Bumper of One Leads to Tragedy

Driven by Another Smith

Colliding with another machine driven by J. L. Smith of 422 West Page street, the Reverend Smith's car was whirled about and sent crashing into a telephone pole. The minister was hurled in a Herman Lotzmer ambulance to the hospital where he was taken immediately to the operating room for an X-ray examination which showed the condition of his skull.

An attendant at the hospital, telling a reporter of the minister's critical condition, said he came to her that he was seriously injured. It was little more than an hour after the accident.

In the hospital, a severe smashup in which the Reverend Smith's car was driven into a telephone pole, the Reverend Smith was seriously injured.

The accident would have been a minor one if the Reverend Smith's car had not been jammed against a telephone pole. The impact of the collision was not great, but a front bumper of the car driven by J. L. Smith, who is owner of the Fashion cleaning shop at 1021 West State street, caught in a rear wheel of the minister's machine and sent it crashing into the telephone pole.

The Reverend Smith was thrown out of his car. As one of the rear wheels smashed off, the body of the car dropped down and pinned the minister's head beneath it. It was necessary to lift the car to free him.

Occupants of the second automobile escaped uninjured.

In Pastorate 14 Years

The Reverend Smith had been pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, 833 West Madison street, for about 14 years. He also served two different times as president of the conference of his church, a total of 16 years. During part of the time he was head of the conference and of the church here at the same time. He had lived in Springfield 15 years.

Members of the church who have known him many years were grief stricken at the news of his death. They recalled his untiring efforts in behalf of the church and his kindness and thoughtfulness toward his associates. The Reverend Smith had been ill with influenza for about two weeks, but had continued to conduct services on Sunday.

The Reverend Smith is survived by his wife and by five children, all of Springfield. The children are Mrs. Rhodes, W. R. Smith, Mrs. O. R. Brown, Mrs. T. C. Hopkins and Miss Mary Smith.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but are under the direction of the Starne funeral home.

THE home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Simons, 925 South Kimbrough avenue, was the scene of a very pretty home wedding at 8 o'clock last night when Miss Mildred Swift of Chicago, Ill., became the bride of Mr. Herbert W. Kochs, also of Chicago.

Georgia Rafter played "Mid-Summer Night's Dream" and "Venetian Love Song" preceding the ceremony. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played softly as the wedding party approached the altar.

The bride, carrying a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley, and gowned in ivory chiffon velvet fashioned after the Victorian style, with a long tulle veil caught with orchid blossoms, approached the altar on the arm of her father, Mr. A. D. Swift. She was preceded by her sister, Miss Frances Swift, who was maid of honor. She wore a gown of Nile green moire taffeta and carried a lovely bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Swift was met at the altar by the groom and best man, Mr. Alfred Duane Swift, her brother. The ceremony was read by Dr. A. J. McClung before an improvised altar of oak leaves, chrysanthemums, and ivy, the beauty of which was enhanced by tall burning tapers.

After the vows were read a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Swift, 951 South Kimbrough avenue. The table was beautifully decorated, holding in the center a love ship resting on a reflector lined artistically with maiden hair fern and green tulle. The bride's cake and a groom's cake were placed at the end of the table with lighted candelabra adding beauty to the scene.

The out of town guests present at the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Doolin of Warrensburg, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Phurmand of Little Rock, Ark.; Lizzie Jurden of Kansas City, Mo.; Dr. and Mrs. W. Two pioneers of Christian county, both 77 years of age, both sons of prominent settlers, both Civil war veterans and both of the same family, died within a few hours of each other, one in Long Beach, Cal., at 9 o'clock Sunday night and the other at Ozark, Mo., at 1 o'clock this morning.

The two were J. O. Lawing, pioneer of Christian county, who died Sunday night in Long Beach, and W. T. Lawing of Ozark, also a settler of Christian county, who died this morning at Ozark.

J. O. Lawing was a son of Robert D. Lawing and W. T. Lawing was a son of William A. Lawing. The Lawink family is one of the best known in the Ozarks section.

The cousins leave a host of friends and relatives in Springfield, Ozark and many smaller cities of this region, as well as in other states. Both were well known in Springfield.

MERCY ERRAND ENDS FATALLY TO YOUNG MAN

Returning From Sick Call, Caught on Crossing Near Marshfield

VAINLY BROUGHT HERE
Expires Before Physicians
Can Operate; Inquest
Today Planned

An errand of mercy ended in death early last night for Bryan Munday, 21-year-old rural mail carrier of Marshfield.

Returning from a visit to the home of an aged and sick woman friend, Mr. Munday was injured fatally when his Chevrolet coach was struck and demolished on the west outskirts of Marshfield by Frisco train No. 4, fast passenger between Springfield and St. Louis.

Car Dragged 40 Yards
The man's car was dragged 40 yards to the east along the tracks before the big train could be halted, and Munday was tossed out of the wreckage, fearfully injured. Carried into a nearby home, he was conscious only enough to tell his name, and never explained how he failed to see the train which struck his car.

The accident occurred at 8:35 o'clock, when train No. 4 was running fast to make up time. Munday approached the tracks from the south, driving to his home in Marshfield after visiting the old woman who is ill at her home in the country.

Suffers Terrible Fractures

The mail carrier was hurried to Springfield in an ambulance. Ambulance attendants say that he could not move on his own. He died at 11:30 minutes after the arrival at the hospital. His mother, Mrs. Munday, and his father, R. L. Munday, of Kansas City, Mo., had been in Marshfield for the past five years, nursing their son from Kansas City in the interest of his health.

The body will be taken overland to Marshfield today by the Alma Lohmeyer funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Coroner Plans Inquest

Mrs. Munday came to Springfield today to arrange for the funeral. She told how her husband had been interested in the aged friend whom he visited yesterday afternoon, and how he had helped her in every way he could.

Dr. Murray C. Stone, Greene county's new coroner, was making an investigation of the accident today. It is believed there were no witnesses with the exception of the train crew.

An inquest will be conducted by Doctor Stone at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the circuit court of appeals in the Woodruff building.

VETERAN OF WAR DIES AT HIS HOME

Newton Kirk Took Part in Major Engagements During Civil War

An old-time Civil war veteran—one who has made his home in the Ozarks for more than 75 years—and who saw his prosperous business here dwindle with the coming of high-powered motor vehicles, yesterday died at his quiet Springfield home following a lingering illness.

The man was Newton M. Kirk. For more than 30 years he ran a dray business in Springfield until a few years ago when motor trucks caused his faithful steeds to become antiquated and he was forced to leave his vocation because of the more rapid mode of transportation.

Joined Company K

When the Civil war called men from the Ozarks, Kirk was one of the first to enlist with Company K, second regiment of the Missouri light artillery. He fought all over the state.

When General Lyons was killed at Wilson Creek, Private Kirk was being hurried south from Lebanon with his fellow soldiers to the aid of the northerners. Later he was returned to St. Louis, where at the close of the war he was in a hospital there wounded.

His father obtained trace of him and found him, near death, in the hospital. He carried him from the building in his arms. Mr. Kirk was placed in a spring wagon, made as comfortable as possible by his father. Then for many days the two men drove across the rugged Ozarks to Lead Mine, Mo., the old Kirk homestead.

Pioneer Citizen

Mr. Kirk came to Springfield more than 35 years ago. He was active for a number of years in the G. A. R. The last seven years of his life he was confined to his home. At the time of his death he was almost totally blind.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock today at his home, 922 North Missouri avenue. Burial will be in National cemetery—by the side of other comrades who "went west" before him. W. L. Starne, undertaker, will be in charge.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Anna Cardwell, 922 North Missouri avenue, and Mrs. Charles Nelson of Independence, Mo.; a son, William Kirk, of Osceola, Mo.; two sisters, Mrs. Nauervia Harris, of Okemah, Okla., and Mrs. Marger West, of Pawhuska, Okla., and a brother, Sam Kirk, of Okemah, Okla.

CORONER'S JURY FIXES NO BLAME FOR FATAL CRASH

Body of Crossing Victim Taken to Home in Marshfield; Moved to Ozarks Five Years Ago in Quest of Health

A CORONER'S jury yesterday afternoon returned a verdict that Bryan Munday, 31-year-old rural mail carrier of Marshfield, "came to his death when struck by a train," after several Marshfield persons and Frisco railroad employees testified in municipal court here before Coroner M. L. Stone.

Munday died at the Springfield Baptist hospital an hour after the accident.

ON DENEVOLENT ERRAND

Munday had taken two rabbits to the home of an aged and ill friend, the mother of Dr. Guy Calloway of Springfield, who lives near Marshfield, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Calloway had told Mrs. Munday that she would like some rabbit soup very much and it was fulfilling this wish that ended in Mr. Munday's death. He was returning to his home when the train struck his car.

BODY TO MARSHFIELD

The body was taken overland to Marshfield by the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral home, where funeral services probably will be conducted today. He is survived by his wife and his father, R. L. Munday of Kansas City. Mr. and Mrs. Munday moved from Marshfield five years ago from Kansas City hoping that Munday's health would improve in the Ozarks.

BALKED FROM SUICIDE, DIES OF HEART DISEASE

The hectic life of Charles H. Myers, 32, veteran Frisco shops employe here who died strangely in Oklahoma City Monday, will be only a dull memory to a few friends after they bury him in Maple Park cemetery this afternoon.

Less than two weeks ago Mr. Myers is said to have attempted to end his life by throwing himself under a Frisco train near his home, 1400 West Florida street. Policeman Dave Dean, who lives next door to the Myers home, is given credit for saving the man's life then, rushing after him as he started for the railway tracks and preventing the tragedy.

Frequently in Court

Mr. Myers left his old job in the Frisco shops here last Saturday and went Sunday to Oklahoma City, where he went to work in the railway shops Monday. That same day came reports that he had suffered an attack of heart disease while at work and died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

Domestic difficulties and frequent appearances in municipal court had made Mr. Myers' existence miserable for several months. When his wife was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace, he told the court that "she does the cussing and I do the paying." A raid by city police revealed a quantity of home brew in the Myers home, and again the man was before the city court.

Son Notified by Radio

When word of his death was received here, a son who lives in Little Rock, Ark., could not be reached through the customary channels. A friend of Mr. Myers had the news broadcast over the radio, and the son was notified in this way.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Klingner funeral home, and burial was in Maple Park cemetery.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Giles Ollimore, 2300 West Scott street, announce the birth of a daughter, Mary Ellen, December 3.

MEYERS SERVICES

Funeral services for C. H. Meyers were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Klingner Funeral chapel, with interment following in Maple Park cemetery.

Klingner Funeral home will take charge. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Madge; his mother, Mrs. Allie Lane, of Strafford, and four brothers, Joe, of Strafford; James, of New York; John, of El Paso and Tom of Springfield, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Gott, of Springfield.

Young Wives, All Under 21, Recite in Petitions How Husbands Failed Them

It was youth and youth only that brought its troubles into court yesterday and asked to be relieved of marital ties. Three young wives, all under 21, filed suits for divorce and their cases will be heard at the January term of court.

Charging that he abandoned her and refuses to provide for her and their infant child, Geneva Ray asks separation from Lewis A. Ray. Being under 21, she sues in the name of a next friend, Pearl Halley.

They were married February 23, 1928, and separated in May.

'Fibbed' About Age

GRIST OF DIVORCE CASES ARE SUBMITTED IN COURT

Husbands came off second best in divorce court today, three wives asking for degrees on grounds of cruelty and one getting a divorce, but one husband upheld the male sex in his petition against his wife.

Winnie F. Robinson, an 18-year-old girl, charges that Leon Robinson, whom she married in Troy, Kas., August 1, 1927, and from whom she separated March 15, 1928, quit work six weeks after the marriage and has lived either with his parents or her mother ever since, without making an effort to work. She charges that he abandoned her while she was in a hospital and stayed away three months. The girl asks return of her maiden name, Hawkins.

Cruel treatment was charged against George W. Williams by Bertha A. Williams. She said he treated her barbarously, assaulting and striking her, threatening to kill her, encouraging his two daughters by a former marriage to strike and fight her and going out nights to return and boast that he had been with another woman and accuse her of going with men.

They were married June 2, 1919, and separated in September, 1928. Mrs. Williams asked custody of their child, Lienna, 3, and Williams works in the mines and makes $200 a month.

Whitehead on the ground that he quarreled with her and omitted to support her for days, finally leaving her. She said he refused to work and did not support her properly. They were married August 22, 1927, and separated October 1, 1928.

AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES FATAL TO WOMAN HERE

Injured While on Way to Thanksgiving Party; Loses
Ten-day Fight for Life;
Condition at First Not Thought Critical

Death at 10 o'clock this morning ended a 10-day fight to save the life of Mrs. N. G. Rensch, 39, of 749 East Loren street, injured in an automobile smashup early Thanksgiving morning on Highway 66, six miles west of here.

Mrs. Rensch never recovered consciousness after an operation for a fractured skull in a hospital here Tuesday afternoon. Until Monday night it was not known definitely that she had suffered a fracture of the skull and she was allowed to remain at home until then, being conscious a part of the time.

On Holiday Extension

With her husband, who is a manager of the Western Fruit and Vegetable company, she left her home at 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

They were driving in an automobile, a Willys-Knight touring car, when it was wrecked six miles west of here.

Mr. Rensch told afterward that he was driving slowly along the highway when the lights of another machine, driven by Mrs. Thomas A. Hatfield of Lowry City, blinded him and forced him to keep far over to the right side of the pavement.

Blinded by Lights

Mrs. Hatfield, who until recently lived at Billings, also was blinded by the lights of the Rensch machine, and her car crashed into the side of the other automobile, spinning it around and throwing Mrs. Rensch and her 11-year-old son, Junior, through the side curtains and to the pavement. The boy escaped unhurt, but

Mrs. Rensch was knocked unconscious and was hurried to a hospital here by a passing motorist.

Her condition at first was not considered critical, and she was taken from the hospital to her home, only to be hurried back to the hospital Monday night for an operation.

Children Not Injured

Mrs. Hatfield and two children with her in her car were not injured in the accident. Both motor cars were damaged badly.

Dr. Murray C. Stone, Greene county coroner, was making an investigation of Mrs. Rensch's death today and summoned witnesses for an inquest which probably will be conducted tomorrow.

Mrs. Rensch is survived by her husband, two children, Cleo, 17, and Junior, 11; three brothers, C. O. White of Mumfords, Earl White of Springfield, and Raymond H. White, of Douglas, Wyo., and a sister, Mrs. Hal Ingram of Route 9, Springfield.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but services will be under direction of the Alma Lohmeyer funeral home.

Marshfield Man Near Death Here After Auto Crash

As the result of an accident at the intersection of Benton avenue and East Division street shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, H. C. Cantrell, widely known stock dealer and shipper of Marshfield, is near death today in a Springfield hospital.

Cantrell was driving east on Division at the time and his motor car collided with one driven by Gus Wickman, bookkeeper of the Merchants Ice and Fuel company.

Cantrell's car overturned and he was thrown to the pavement. The other car was only slightly damaged and Wickman was uninjured.

The injured man was taken to a hospital in a Herman H. Lohmeyer ambulance and Dr. Wilbur Smith operated immediately. Cantrell suffered a fractured skull and cuts and bruises.

Wickman was driving an automobile belonging to J. C. Christian, manager of the Merchants Ice and Fuel company. He was on his way to bank the day's receipts.

YOUTH EXPIRES OF SHOT WOUND

Fail to Clear Up Mystery of Hurts Sustained While Hunting

Special Dispatch to The Leader

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Dec. 7.—Albert Ball, 15, son of John Ball of Brandsville, died yesterday morning at his home from gunshot wounds.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness the boy said the wounds were received when a quail hunter shot at him at close range. The boy's brother, Oscar, 11, however, said the wounds were received when Albert tried to frighten a rabbit from a brush pile and the hammer of his gun caught on the brush, discharging it.

The two boys had been forbidden by their father to hunt with a gun, and it is believed Albert tried for that reason to conceal the real facts of the tragedy.

The two Ball boys went hunting Monday morning on a farm near Brandsville. Neighbors noticed when the boys returned at noon that Albert was in distress. The boys have no mother and the neighbors sent for the father who immediately summoned a physician.

When questioned, Albert said he had been shot by a quail hunter who fired on him while he was stooping over a hollow log and who left immediately. This was doubted, however, because the wounds indicated the boy had been shot at very close range. He, however, lapsed into unconsciousness and was never able to give further information on the tragedy.

ATHLETIC STAR DIES SUDDENLY OF INFLUENZA

Lawton Gray, 19-Year-Old Student Here, Suddenly Stricken

NO EPIDEMIC INDICATION

Business College Student Was Basketball Team Regular

Lawton Gray, 19, popular student of Springfield-Draughon's Business University, and regular forward on the basketball team of the school, died after a brief illness of influenza about 3:30 o'clock this morning.

Taken Suddenly Ill

Gray, whose home was at Purdy, Mo., attended school yesterday morning. He complained of feeling cold and told W. E. "Doc" Lunsford, coach, that he believed he had the influenza. Mr. Lunsford took the boy to his room, 558 East Elm street. By evening Gray's condition had become so alarming that a physician was called. The physician was positive that Gray was not suffering with influenza, but a post mortem today revealed that "flu" caused his death.

Death of the young athlete does not in any way indicate danger of an epidemic here, physicians pointed out, because Gray apparently was killed by only a mild attack of the disease. The autopsy revealed that for years the youth, because of abnormal gland development, had little resistance against disease, and this condition made the influenza attack fatal.

Gray had not played basketball for two weeks and had been out for practice only twice since then. That was Monday and Tuesday. He was one of the most popular students at the business school where he entered in September.

Funeral Not Yet Arranged

The body of the late Lawton Gray, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was taken to Springfield, Mo., by the family of his father, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gray, to Springfield. He also is survived by four other sisters, Noveta, Nadine, Willadine and Geneva, and one brother, Everett, all of Purdy.

Funeral arrangements are pending with the Alma Lohmeyer Funeral home.

HIT BY TRUCK, BOY PARALYZED

School Lad Brought to Hospital Here in Critical Condition

Badly injured as the result of being struck by a truck at Arno, Mo., a 7-year-old youth was brought to a Springfield hospital yesterday afternoon, and this morning physicians were debating whether to attempt a delicate operation to remove a blood clot from the brain.

The boy, Jack Staley, son of Carl Staley, who resides at the little community six miles southwest of Arno, Mo., was returning to his home from school at Arno yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a truck driven by a man named Hartley.

It is not known just how the accident occurred, witnesses declaring that Hartley was going at slow speed and that he stopped the truck before it had passed the boy.

It is thought that the youth started to run across the road and that some of his schoolmates called to him when they saw the truck, the youth suddenly stopping.

It is believed that the youth does not have a fractured skull, but that a blood clot has formed on his brain, as his left side was paralyzed last night. If he regains control of his left arm and leg, it is declared, an operation will not be necessary, as it will indicate that the blood clot has dissolved.

The youth was still unconscious with his left side paralyzed late this afternoon.

An X-ray taken today did not disclose a fracture of the skull, Dr. Wallace Smith said.

RICH STOCKMAN DIES OF HURTS IN AUTO CRASH

Niangua Man, Fatally Injured Here, Expires Within Few Hours; Skull Fractured in Collision; Funeral Rites Sunday

His skull fractured in an automobile collision here Thursday afternoon, Hes C. Cantrall, 61, prominent and wealthy stockman of Niangua, Mo., expired at 4:30 o'clock this morning in a Springfield hospital.

An operation had been performed and bits of bone removed from the man's skull in a vain effort to save his life.

Mr. Cantrall, a prominent stockman and farmer, suffered a head fracture in the collision here Thursday when his car collided at the corner of Benton avenue and Division street with a machine driven by Gus Wickman, bookkeeper at an ice plant here. Mr. Cantrall had been driving east on Division street and the other car approached on Benton from the south. The stockman was thrown out of his car to the pavement.

Brief funeral services for Mr. Cantrall will be conducted tomorrow at the home near Niangua, and another service is planned at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Mount Zion church near Hartville. Burial will be in the cemetery there under direction of the Herman Lohmeyer funeral home.

Numerous Survivors

Mr. Cantrall is survived by two sons, Oso and Azza Cantrall of Niangua; one daughter, Miss Effie Cantrall of the home address; three sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Dodson, 2034 Travis street, Springfield, Mrs. Martha Davis of Oklahoma City, and Mrs. J. D. Cantrall, and four brothers, Elvey Cantrall of Hartville; A. L. Cantrall of Bartlett, Cal., and C. T. Cantrall of 1150 North Jefferson avenue, Springfield.

A coroner's inquest into Mr. Cantrall's death was conducted by Dr. Murray C. Stone, Greene county coroner, at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Herman Lohmeyer funeral home. The body was taken overland to Niangua this afternoon.

After viewing the body, inspecting the damaged cars and visiting the scene of the accident, the coroner's jury adjourned until 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when it will meet in the municipal court room to complete its investigation. Illness of a witness caused the delay.

Coroner Probing Death of Woman In Auto Smashup

Investigation of the death of Mrs. N. G. Rensch, 39, of 749 East Loren street, who expired Friday morning as the result of injuries suffered in an auto amashup near here early Thanksgiving day will be completed late this afternoon by a coroner's jury in session at the municipal court.

A jury summoned by Dr. Murray C. Stone, Greene county coroner, has viewed the body and inspected the motor cars involved in the accident, which occurred six miles west of here on Highway 66. Taking of testimony in the inquest will begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Alma Lohmeyer chapel, with the Reverend B. Dillon officiating, and burial will be in Maple Park cemetery.

In addition to surviving relatives previously listed, Mrs. Rensch is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. White of Springfield.

A letter of Charles E. Harwood of Upland, Cal., has been received, written in Long hand, although the former Springfieldian is 93 years of age. Judge Harwood expects to attend Drury commencement next year and is keenly interested in the progress of Springfield. Last year he attended commencement at Williams college and the degree of LL. D. was conferred on him. Judge Harwood inclosed a clipping from a California paper containing an account of a reunion of the Harwood clan which assembled in San Dimas on November 18. The story follows:

"A family of five children, four of whom are over 90 years of age and the youngest 86, celebrated the ninetieth birthday of Alfred P. Harwood, youngest of the three boys, this afternoon with a reception at the palatial home of Frank H. Harwood, one of the honorees who is 56 years old.

"The eldest of the family, Mrs. Susan Lester of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived yesterday afternoon by train, traveling here especially for the anniversary celebration.

"Every year the family holds a birthday party which honors one of the five. The Harwood family moved to California almost fifty years ago, and ten years afterward established their home in Upland where they gained prominence in the citrus business.

"The honored brother, Alfred, is the father of two daughters, Mrs. Mary Woodford of Claremont, and Mrs. Grace Harwood Thayer of Los Angeles, and a son, Frank H. Harwood of San Dimas, with whom he makes his home. The celebrant has nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

In the letter to his Springfield friend Judge Harwood says:

"I hope the residents of Springfield appreciate the beauty and attractiveness of their city. The last time I passed through your city I thought it was the most attractive city between the two oceans. What a change from the ragged little town I found when I first saw the place. What a delightful, companionable folk peopled the place. At our public gatherings the banker and the blacksmith were accorded the same courtesies if worthy. Where could you find finer people than the Robbersons, the Abbotts, the Gartons, the Flanners, the Townsends, the Sheppards, the Keets, Mrs. Graves and her charming daughters of Boonville street and many others who resided in Springfield when I moved to the hospitable town."

WORK TRAIN CREW HELD RESPONSIBLE FOLLOWING PROBE BY RAIL OFFICIAL

Two Injured Men Rushed to Carthage Hospital Not Expected to Live; Conduct Inquest Today

AMBULANCES, DOCTORS
SENT BY AURORA, MONETT,

Superintendent Daniels Will Continue Investigation Today; One Body Not Taken From Cars

RESPONSIBILITY for the rear-end collision of a freight train and a work train on the Missouri Pacific, two miles east of Iarussell, Mo., at 11:30 o'clock yesterday, taking the lives of four section hands and seriously injuring six others, was tentatively placed on the work train by J. W. Daniels, superintendent of the White river division, last night following a short investigation at the scene.

Missouri Pacific officials will conduct a thorough investigation of the wreck today and efforts will be made to determine the direct responsibility for the affair.

Two of the injured, who were rushed to a Carthage hospital, were not expected to live last night. They are Gilbert Crawford, of Iarussell, who suffered a fracture skull, and J. L. Oreciston, of Bowers Mill, who received serious internal injuries and a broken leg.

THE DEAD

Loy Campbell, 19, of Larussell.
Robert Ellifret, 20, of Monett.
Howard Creviston, 19, of Aurora

Mill.

Lowell Foster, 19, Sarcoxie.

Oreviston's body, which was found in the water of Spring river beneath the wreckage of a freight car, had not been recovered at 8 o'clock last night.

THE INJURED

Ernest Parker.
Howard Hedgecock.
R. A. Linder.

Inquest into the wreck will be held at Pierce City by the Lawrence county coroner this morning. The recovered bodies were taken there last night.

Deaths and injuries were confined to members of the work train, which was replacing the ballast of the track between Larussell and Stotts City. Members of the train crews were not injured.

The work train, manned by an extra crew of 32 men, left Carthage yesterday morning with chat to be placed along the track between Larussell and Stotts City.

NEAR SHARP CURVE

It had practically completed unloading the chat when the first section of train 294, known as the "Red Ball," rounded a sharp curve and crashed into the rear of the work train.

Three cars of the work train, each of which contained section hands, plunged into Spring river, throwing the workers, dazed and injured into the water.

A survivor rushed to a farmhouse nearby and telephoned for ambulances and doctors from Aurora, Carthage and Monett and a volunteer crew of residents and trainmen set to work to digging the killed and injured from the debris.

Wreckers were dispatched to the scene from Aurora and Carthage and officials expected to have the track clear by midnight. Passenger trains were routed over the Frisco, through Monett, Aurora and Springfield.

BLAME WORK TRAIN

Blame for the accident fell upon the work train. Superintendent Dahls said, because it was operating under orders to protect the Red Ball by sending out a flagman.

Members of the work train crew explained that a flagman had been stationed some distance up the track during the morning, but shortly before noon the train backed up and picked him up shortly before the collision. At that time a small amount of chat remained in one of the cars and it was decided to back up a short distance and unload the balance before returning to Larussell for dinner, and also to give the Red Ball passage.

The train was moving slowly backward when the freight train rounded a sharp curve. Engineer L. C. Darrell and Fireman H. Ellis of the work train, as well as workers, quickly spied the approaching freight. Darrell quickly applied the brakes and was attempting to reverse his motion when the crash came.

Fireman Ellis jumped into a steep bank as the collision came.

Engineer E. W. Proctor of the freight train, which was said to have been traveling about 25 miles an hour, applied the air, but on account of the slippery rails and the short distance between the trains, was unable to avert the crash. Fireman R. L. Brown and Brakeman Joe Smith, both of whom were in the cab, also jumped and escaped with minor scratches and bruises.

The car in which three of those killed were riding was leading the work train and received the full effect of the crash. It was demolished. The bodies of the dead workers were badly mangled.

CARS TELESCOPE

Two other light cars, of the open type, directly behind the locomotive of the work train, telescoped and Campbell, one of the workers, was instantly killed when he fell beneath the wheels of a car.

The approach of the freight came so suddenly and unexpectedly that fewer than half of the work train crew had a chance to jump.

J. L. Creviston, one of the injured and brother of Howard Creviston, one of the dead, was hurled high into the air, falling into Spring river. He swam to safety despite his broken leg. Another member of the crew was buried beneath a pile of chat, but was rescued and seemed to be none the worse for the experience.

Members of the freight train crew recalled that the locomotive pulling their train, No. 1208, figured in a wreck exactly two years ago to the day, in which an engineer and fireman were killed. The accident was between Milo and Nevada.

ALL WERE UNMARRIED

All of those killed were young men, under the age of 25, and unmarried. The work crew had been employed Monday for several weeks of work in repairing the track's ballast between Carthage and Aurora.

Loy Campbell, one of those killed, leaves a widowed mother and a young slater, who were dependent on him. Friends recalled that only last week he quit school at Sarcoux to help provide for the family. Wednesday he received employment on the work train and that night rejoiced with his mother that he had a good job.

Members of the crew, tired and nervous from the strain, worked untiringly last night to aid wrecker crews to clear the track and lift the heavy car from the body of a companion, Howard Greviston, buried in the shallow water of the river.

MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH

His death was probably the most terrible aspect of the wreck. Following the fearful noise and din of the crash, his screams for aid brought companions, but they were unable to get to him on account of the wreckage. He was beneath a car. It slowly slipped down the bank into the river, taking him with it. When it came to rest his head and body were submerged, while his feet were still discernable from the shore.

But the peculiar situation into which the car finally settled made it impossible for rescuers to save him. At a late hour last night, the wrecked car was being removed by a wrecker.

He was identified by blue socks he wore, which companions had joshed him about only a few minutes before.

The scene was given a gruesome aspect, especially when darkness began to arise, by scores of dead hogs strewn along the right-of-way. Those not killed, frightened by the affair, scurried up the bank and fled into the woods above the curve.

Although neither locomotive was derailed, both were considerably damaged. The tender of the work train locomotive was knocked from its trucks, while the pilot and the truck wheels of the other locomotive were demolished.

NO BLAME FIXED FOR TRAIN CRASH CLAIMING 4 LIVES

Have Work Train Crew Responsible For Wreck Near La Russell

NO CRIMINAL blame for the collision of two Missouri Pacific trains near La Russell, Mo., Thursday which took the lives of four workmen and injured five others, was found by the coroner's jury which investigated the accident yesterday afternoon at Pierce City.

TRIPLE SERVICE FOR CRASH DEAD

One Minister to Conduct Funeral for Three of Four Wreck Victims

Joint funeral services and burial ceremonies will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Harvey church and Harvey cemetery near Larussell for three of the four workmen killed in a Missouri Pacific train wreck near there Thursday, and separate services will be held for the fourth.

The families of Howard Creviston, Loy Campbell and Robert Ellifritt, all of Larussell, today are arranging the details of the services, according to Coroner William Wessell of Lawrence county. One minister, not yet selected, will officiate in the triple ceremony. Burial will be in Harvey cemetery.

No Blame Fixed

A private service and funeral Sunday afternoon will be held for Lowell Foster, the fourth man, and it is said burial also will be in Harvey cemetery.

No blame for the wreck was placed on any of the train crews concerned, or on any operator, by the coroner's jury which investigated the accident yesterday at Peirce City. The jury's verdict was purely formal, stating the circumstances of the accident and the cause of the deaths.

Independent investigation by the Missouri Pacific has not been completed. Superintendent J. W. Daniels of the White River division said today, but he gave his opinion that the work train was at fault in operating too close to the freight train's time.

Five Injured Improve

Complete recovery of all five injured men is expected, two already having been released from hospital at Carthage. J. L. Creviston of Bowers Mill, Gilbert Crawford and Ernest Parker, both of Larussell, are recovering rapidly. Carthage physicians said. R. A. Linder and Howard Hedgecock, both of Larussell, were treated for bruises and released.

The coroner's jury was terse in its verdict. It was: "We, the jury, find that Loy Campbell, Lowell Foster, Howard Creviston, and Robert Illiff, met death by a railroad collision of two Missouri Pacific trains near Larussell, Mo., on December 13, 1928."

Members of the jury were H. H. Windler and Francis Plaston, both of Stotts City, and William Buckner, Jack Rogers, Ray Roberts and Oliver Little, all of Peirce City. Eight members of the train crews and work train laborers were called as witnesses.

Five School Teachers Here Two Centuries in Service

Quintet Has Averaged 43 Years in Springfield Classrooms; Find Instruction Methods Have Changed But Not the Students

By DOCIA KARELL

FIVE teachers in Springfield's public schools have served for more than two centuries—216 years and a half, exactly—or an average of 43.3 years each.

They are Miss Mary Kelley, principal at the Bissett school; Miss Nannie Tracy, principal at Phelps; Mrs. Rebecca Conlon, principal at Campbell; Miss Cora B. Ott, vice principal at the Senior High school; and Miss Nettie Clark, 5A and 6B teacher at Campbell. Each has taught here for more than 40 years.

All but Miss Clark began their teaching at the old Central building which stood for many years where the Frisco building is now. Miss Clark began at the Campbell school, and is still there. During the years she has taught all grades from second to seventh. She has spent one year each at Berry and Weaver, as principal, but she is devoted to Campbell school, and after each sojourn "abroad" has chosen to come back to her "home school." She has consistently refused principalships, because she prefers the more intimate relationship with her pupils which the classroom gives her.

40 YEARS A PRINCIPAL

Mrs. Conlon, too, is a long-time Campbellite, for she left her third grade class at old Central in 1888, just 40 years ago, to go to Campbell as principal.

Miss Ott also began as a third-grade teacher at old Central, but has been teaching mathematics in the high school since 1889, four years before the new high school was built at the corner of Jefferson avenue and Central street in 1893. She always has been a popular teacher, much admired and loved, and in 1924 she was made vice principal with special supervision of the girls, and head of the department of mathematics.

Miss Tracy left old Central in 1887 to go to Bailey as principal, and in 1895 became principal of Phelps, where she still is.

"Miss Ma'y" Kelley began teaching a class of 107 second-graders in old Central when she was only 17 years old, and just out of high school. The average attendance in the class was 92 daily, and that was typical of the large classes of the day.

BIGGER THE BETTER

The superintendent considered it inefficient for one teacher to handle less than 80 pupils, and the larger classes were the better he was pleased. Most of them ranged from 85 to 95 in average daily attendance.

After four years, Miss Kelley was made principal of old Central, and when the building was abandoned, became principal of the new McDaniel school. Two years ago she was made principal of Bissett.

Miss Kelley believes that schools today are "Oh, a thousand percent better than they were 40 years ago!" The biggest change, she says, is in the size of the classes, which have been reduced more than half and frequently to a third of their former size. Almost equally important she sees the vastly better equipment of today.

When she began teaching, the second grade studies were only number work, writing, reading, and spelling. A few teachers taught singing. They had no song books, and taught the songs by writing the words on the blackboard and teaching the songs "by note"—the teacher singing them first, and the pupils after her.

SATURDAYS FOR DRAWING

Miss Kelley wanted to teach drawing, and did. There were no special drawing materials, and the children used their slates, or drew on the blackboard. Because drawing was not a part of the course, Miss Kelley started a special Saturday class, which about 30 boys and girls attended voluntarily.

"Some of them had real talent, too," she recalls, "but they had no chance to develop it, as children have today. Yet some of the drawings they made were just as good as children make today, with all their equipment and training."

Still another great improvement, Miss Kelley says, is the supervisory system, which correlates the work of the different grades and the different schools.

Most of the young teachers then had no professional training, and if they could have had supervisors it would have been invaluable, Miss Kelley reminisces.

CALLS ON ABSENTEES

There were no attendance officers, and every evening she called personally at the home of each child who had been absent that day. The district was large, and she walked. "But it didn't take long," she says. In spite of the large classes, she always knew every child by name before the third day of the term ended.

Of course there was no P. T. A. until years later, but parents had fewer outside interests and homes were more closely knit in interests, as Miss Kelley remembers it. It was customary for fathers and mothers to visit the schools frequently and informally, "sitting in" sometimes half a day or a day at a time, listening to recitations and observing the work.

Once a month the pupils presented an all-day program, attended by virtually all parents. Sometimes the morning was devoted to special review recitations to show what the children had learned, and the afternoon to speaking pieces, giving dialog, singing, and like entertainment. A variation was to alternate class recitations with the entertainment numbers throughout the whole day.

PUPILS BRING LANTERN

All entertainments were given during the day, because there were no lights in the school. But after Miss Kelley had been teaching four years she was given the eighth grade, and she organized a literary society in her classes. This society met at night, and the youngsters and the teacher carried lanterns, which they set around the room for light.

But if conditions and ways have changed, children have not, Miss Kelley observes. The school does a great deal more for them today, she believes—and the home considerably less, so that things are about even.

Forty years ago, she recalls, most homes had family worship; parents were at home evenings and kept their children there; youngsters had daily assigned tasks, and in general received more home training and less indulgence today.

Modern psychology and pedagogy just about balance this lack of home training today, she says—the schools do in a measure what the homes do not—and the result is that the youngsters are about the same as ever.

WHY BOYS ARE BAD

For more than 40 years of her teaching, until two years ago, Miss Kelley had never whipped a child; and that was extremely unusual, for whipping was a common practice in the schools 40 years ago.

She has found, she says, a "bad boy" to whom she could not appeal in some way besides punishment. Boys are "bad," she says, because they get an idea that nobody cares for them, and can be won by interest and affection.

However, she has found a few youngsters during the past two years who are so used to being disciplined by whipping that "they don't understand anything else," she explains. When it is necessary, she turns them over her knee and spansks them in the good, old-fashioned way, and thinks they are the better for it.

But she does believe that it is better for children to be spanked at home than at school, and she never spansks a youngster if she can persuade his mother to do it instead. She has agreements with some of the mothers in the district that they will spank their children whenever the school reports that they need it.

"I have enjoyed every year of teaching, and I have loved my classes," she says. Teaching has been her one interest and her whole life, and her pupils have responded—today she is one of the most widely-loved women in Springfield.

MISSOURI PACIFIC SETTLES FOR DEATHS

The Missouri Pacific railroad has settled two of the death claims resulting from the collision of a work train and freight train on the White river railroad near Larussell, December 13. The railroad paid $5000 in each of the cases.

The two deaths for which settlement was made were those of Loy Olin Campbell of Larussell and Lowell Foster of Sarcoxie.

In the Foster case the judgment was for $5250 and costs, the mother of the dead man having herself paid her son's funeral expenses. The railroad company made an allowance of $250 for funeral expenses for each of the four men who were killed.

Settlements were made under provisions of the federal employers liability act, under which in case of death of a man without a family, the money goes to the parents. The Campbell judgment goes to D. C. Campbell and Mrs. Rosa Campbell, parents, while that for the death of Mr. Foster goes to his mother, Mrs. Tommie Foster, of Sarcoxie.

LIVES TO TELL STORY.

Taken to Neighbor's Home
With Death Coming
Within Hour

Thrown to the highway and crushed beneath the bed of his wagon as his team of mules became frightened and ran away. Charles L. Miller, 70, one of Greene county's most prominent farmers, was killed shortly after noon today two miles north of Elwood.

Mr. Miller, whose home was on route 6 about four miles west of Springfield on the High street road, was driving alone between Elwood and Willard when the accident occurred. He had driven to a wooded tract in this section, which he owned, to haul a load of timber to his home.

Rescued Still Conscious

Farmers living along the highway saw the big team of mules plunge suddenly and escape from the aged man's control. What frightened them is a matter of conjecture. As they ran away Mr. Miller was thrown out of the wagon and the wagon bed came crashing down on top of him, crushing his chest and causing internal hemorrhages.

The aged farmer was still conscious when he was carried into the farm home of James Brown, west of the scene of the accident. He lived for nearly an hour, and was taken to the hospital at Elwood. He died at 10:15 p.m. after a short struggle with death.

Wants his body to be buried in the home of his wife. The body will be taken to the home of his wife, Mrs. C. J. Draper, of Emporia, Kan., following a lingering illness. # JURORS TO PROBE MILLER'S DEATH

Prominent Farmer Crushed To Death When Mules Overturn Wagon

A coroner's jury, to be summoned by Dr. M. C. Stone, Greene county coroner, will probe the death of Charles L. Miller, 70, a prominent Greene county farmer, who was killed yesterday when his team of mules became frightened and ran away.

The jury will gather at the Miller home, on route 6 about four miles west of Springfield on the High street road, at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mules Frightened

The mules became frightened when a motor cycle speeded past them while Mr. Miller was driving alone between Elwood and Willard. The wagon was filled with timber which he had taken from a wooded pasture he owned.

The mules, becoming frightened at the noisy cycle, lurched and turned the wagon over into a ditch. Mr. Miller was crushed under the mass. His chest was crushed and he suffered internal hemorrhages.

Friends Rescue Miller

When farmers nearby, attracted by the crash, rescued Mr. Miller he still was conscious. He was taken to the home of James Brower, who lives nearby. He told of the accident and then died—almost an hour later. The accident occurred shortly after noon.

Dr. Stone went immediately to the scene of the accident and made a preliminary investigation. He permitted the body to be moved to the home. The Herman H. Lohmeyer Funeral home is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Mr. Miller is survived by his wife; three sons, Thomas Miller and Homer Miller, who own farms near their father's home, and John Miller of Bentonville, Ark., a brother, Wilbur D. ## The Editor's Mail Bag

In Which the Reader May Air His Opinions

The Name "Turnback"

To the Editor of The Leader:

John S. Drake lived in Lawrence county many years, a large part of the time at Mount Vernon. He had been a traveler, a soldier of the Civil war, and was a printer, naturalist, a philosopher, and possessed a large fund of information. His version of the "Turnback" episode is about as follows.

In 1836 or thereabouts a party of immigrants from Indiana and Illinois headed westward in search of homes, fortune and adventure. As they crossed the Mississippi at St. Louis they were advised to follow the course in the direction of Springfield, as they would find more abundant pasturage for their stock, of which they had considerable, and better hunting for themselves. This advice proved very good but sickness overtook the party and it made slow progress. Late in the summer they left Springfield on their way westward, but travel again brought sickness upon them and at a point in the vicinity of what is now known as "Turnback" the party made camp.

Water was scarce and there was neither grass for the stock nor game for meat. While thus encamped a party of horsemen appeared from the west and informed the leaders of the immigrants that the country to the west was a barren desert (which Mr. Drake said was true) and that it was infested with hostile Indians, and to proceed further upon a westerly or southwesterly course was but to invite certain disaster. The men of the moving party held a conference, but failed to agree either to proceed to Westport Landing and up the Missouri or by way of St. Joe and the Santa Fe route. Finally becoming discouraged the majority turned back toward the east, a few found settlement nearer by, and a still smaller portion turned northward toward the regular routes of travel.

LAD LEFT BIG ESTATE BY EXPLOSION VICTIM

Two Bank Officials Seek Jurisdiction Over Lad; Litigation Will Begin Anew at Next Court Session

LITIGATION over the guardianship of John Henry "Jack" McFarland, 12-year-old son of the late Mrs. Kittle McFarland, West Plains undertaker, who was killed in the dance hall explosion there last spring, yesterday reverted to its original status when Judge Walter E. Bailey, judge of the Springfield court of appeals, reversed the decision of Judge E. P. Dorris of the juvenile division of Howell county circuit court and remanded the case to circuit court for retrial.

The child, whose estate amounts to more than $60,000, has been the object of court litigation which began a few hours after his mother's death at West Plains last April 1.

The decision which was reversed gave young McFarland in adoption to his foster great-uncle, E. J. Green, wealthy Mountain Grove banker.

SOUGHT TO ADOPT BOY

Upon Mrs. McFarland's death the Howell county probate court appointed Mr. Green the boy's guardian. Green is a foster brother to McFarland's paternal grandmother.

Later guardianship was changed to Howard Kellett, assistant cashier of the First National bank at West Plains. To again obtain custody of the child, Mr. Green filed a petition for adoption in the Howell county cir-

J. W. WILLIAMS DEAD IN TEXAS

Veteran Physician Had Practiced Here for Many Years

A pioneer physician in the Ozarks, Dr. John W. Williams, died at 1:30 o'clock this morning in El Paso Texas, according to word received here by his friends. He had been ill in health for some time and moved from Springfield to El Paso only a short time ago.

Doctor Williams came from a family of physicians, his father being one of the most prominent doctors in Farmington, Mo. Of old Virginia origin, the family rapidly became noted in the Ozarks and when Dr. Ben Williams, brother of Dr. John Williams, died several years ago in the White river district his funeral was attended by several hundred persons.

His father practiced until he was well up in his eighties and Doctor Williams himself was almost 70. He moved to Springfield around 1890 and began to practice on Commercial street, where his brother, Ed V. Williams later established the store which still bears his name.

For almost 12 years he was a partner in medical practice with Doctor Allen W. Gifford. He was well known and liked among the group of doctors in the city and had an extensive practice.

Ed V. Williams is at his home suffering from a severe attack of influenza and had not been informed of his brother's death early this morning. Notice was received through telegrams to Doctor William G. Howell and Doctor Gifford.

Services will be held in El Paso. He is survived by his wife and one son, Allen.

FATHER LEARNS NEWS AFTER CHRISTMAS TRIP,

Returning From Shopping for Yuletide Presents, Discovers Babies Dead and Home Destroyed

JOYOUS preparations for Christmas in the home of Rase Berry, farmer living 15 miles north of Lebanon, turned to tragedy at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon when fire destroyed the Berry home and burned two of the Berry children to death.

The dead:

Lucile Berry, 3 years old.

Jewell Berry, 1 year old.

MOTHER BADLY HURT

Mrs. Berry, who rushed into the dwelling as the roof caved in on the two children, is in a critical condition as a result of burns suffered in trying to rescue the tots.

Mr. Berry had left the home a short time before he got to Dartmouthville and completed the family's Christmas shopping. Two other children accompanied him on the trip.

Mrs. Berry left the small girls in the house while she went to an out-building to feed and water some chickens. She was gone about 15 minutes and upon leaving the building, saw her home in flames. She suffered burns about the arms and body. Neighbors, alerted by her screams, found the mother in ashes. An overcast sky is believed to have caused the fire.

FIND CHARRED BODIES

A search of the ruins revealed only parts of the children's bodies.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night but it was said that the remains of the two children probably would be interred in the same grave in a cemetery near Decaturville.

The Berry family is well known throughout Laclede and Camden counties.

Miss Constance Robinson was maid-of-honor to the bride; and Mr. Carl Gustafson was best man. Others assisting in the service were Mrs. Paul M. Bennett, Mr. John Ellis, Mr. Charles Ellis, and Mr. Lloyd Miller.

The wedding, which came as a surprise to the guests, was preceded by a shower, and followed by a supper. About 160 guests were present.

Shadow of Sorrow Dims Joy of 61 Wedded Years

Christmas Day Is Sixty-first Wedding Anniversary For Couple Here; First Yule Fete With No Children Present

CHRISTMAS day this year will be a queer mixture of pathos and happiness for Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Clark who live in a little home at 821 West Mount Vernon street.

For it will be their sixty-first wedding anniversary, and the first Christmas day they have observed in half a century without some of their seven children present. The last of the seven children who have been theirs died a little more than a week ago. She was Mrs. John Saunders.

SHADOW OF SORROW

"There's just two of us left now, mother and I," says Mr. Clark, "and this will be the first Christmas and wedding anniversary we've had with none of our children living."

A son-in-law, John Saunders, and his boys, and other relatives are going to be present and make the occasion just as happy as possible.

Mr. Clark, who will be 85 years old on the twenty-second of February, practiced law here for many years from the time he and his wife came here on April 3, 1888, until he retired when he was 68 years old.

TAKE VOWS SERIOUSLY

And when he gets started telling about his experiences in the Civil war and his practice here, Mrs. Clark doesn't even try to get a word in edgewise, because she knows he has too many experiences to relate.

Mr. Clark was reared in Old Duquoin, Ill., and Mrs. Clark in East Bloomfield, N. Y. She was 70 years old on the fifth of September. And they met by chance when she was visiting relatives in Duquoin, Ill.

"How does it happen that our marriage has lasted so long? Well," ventures Mrs. Clark, "we took marriage and our vows seriously—we had a nice wedding. One reason for so many divorces today is that they are so easy to get."

"Maybe that's why you aren't rich, always looking out for the other person," Mrs. Clark suggests.

"Well, we're comfortable, aren't we? And I haven't had to rob anybody or hurt anybody in making my own living, like some of the rich fellows have."

Out of his service under General Grant in the Civil war, Mr. Clark brought an intense dislike for "professional soldiers."

"SOLDIERS ARE BRUTES"

"Grant was all right as a general, a good soldier, but I refused to vote for him for president, and I never have, nor never will vote for a professional soldier for public office. I believe in leading people, not driving them.

"And the professional soldiers are taught to drive men. Soldiers are brutes and officers educated brutes."

Mr. Clark served three and one-half years in the sixth Illinois Cavalry and is the only one out of 104 men in his group alive today. He and the other men in the company went through the war without a furlough.

TELLS OF FAVORITE

Despite his hatred of soldiers, officers and war, Mr. Clark had a great admiration for the leader of his regiment, Grearson, who advanced to major-general.

"He had been a music teacher in private life and he was the kindest and best officer I ever knew. We were the only regiment that went through the war without a camp guard. All we had to do when we left the camp was to leave word when we would be back and where we could be reached if we were wanted suddenly."

SHE GADS CONSIDERABLE

About the younger generation with its petting and necking, Mr. and Mrs. Clark aren't very worried.

"Oh, these robberies, murders and other crimes are a hundred times as bad as what the kids are doing," he declares.

"Anyway the boys and girls always did like to do things that would startle us old folks."

Mr. Clark's parting request of his visitor was that he come back for another visit.

MONETT, MO.

In the Payne cemetery quietly sleeping where the flowers gently wave lies our Father and Mother we love so dearly and we tried so hard to save.

These precious ones from us are gone. These voices we loved are stilled. A place is vacant in our home that never, never can be filled.

The Waste Basket

A hotel boom seems to have struck Springfield. Announcement is made of the completion of long slumbering plans to enlarge the Ozark hotel while schemes are on to build two new hotels at South and Pershing and one on the square. All these propositions will not materialize. One project will interfere with the other, but it looks as though there will be a great expansion in the hotel business here soon. Hotels are now coming of their own accord which was not true only 20 years ago. When the city was smaller hotels were built as public enterprises. The general public was expected to take stock for the good of the city and with little idea of getting money back. The Metropolitan hotel was built that way. It was constructed shortly after the close of the Civil war and while it has had many managers the property itself has passed through few hands. Edward S. Finch and his mother came into possession soon after it was built and finally sold it to John O'Day and it is still in possession of the O'Day estate. The Ozark hotels on Commercial street, both the first and the second, were built as public enterprises, being encouraged by the Frisco railroad. Neither was a financial success. The Colonial hotel was erected as a public enterprise, John T. Woodruff organizing the company. Gradually the stock was sold and fell into the hands of John Landers and is still part of the estate.

The Hotel Reames was the first important hotel erected in Springfield as purely a commercial enterprise. John T. Woodruff again being the promoter. Later he followed with the Kentwood Arms. During the holiday season one wonders how the hotels make a living. Nearly every one has gone home and the lobbies are quiet and sometimes entirely deserted.

The Ozark hotel company is playing in great luck. It has a house in Wichita and oil was recently struck there. That has brought in thousands of transients and all the hotels are full to capacity. A boom of that kind generally lasts for several years.

BOYS STUMBLE UPON SKELETON

Wrapped In Blanket, Bones Found Hidden in Haystack Near Lamar

Special to The Leader
LAMAR, Mo., Dec. 26.—Officers of Barton county today were trying vainly to unravel the mystery of one of the county's strangest murder cases.

The investigation, which so far has brought nothing to light, resulted from the finding of a complete skeleton, wrapped in a half-rotted blanket and hidden in a haystack about six miles west of here.

The haystack where the skeleton was found by three boy hunters was only 75 or 100 yards from the main Lamar-Pittsburg highway. The skeleton apparently is that of a man who has been dead four or five months. Examination by C. F. Konantz, coroner, revealed that the skull had been fractured in several places. The coroner has no doubt that the man was murdered and his body hidden in the stack.

A half-rotted lumber jack shirt of a dark gray color seems the only clue to the man's identity. The skeleton appeared to be about five feet, six or seven inches tall, with small bones. Konantz said he believed the man was between 25 and 30 years old.

No reports of missing persons in Barton county have been received by the coroner.

Donald Lee, Oscar Clark and Glen Clark were the youths who found the skeleton. They were poking about the haystack, looking for rabbits, when they stumbled upon it.

Hunters Discover Skeleton of Man Buried in Stack

Special to The News.
LAMAR, Mo., Dec. 26—(AP)—One of the strangest murder mysteries in the crime history of Barton county faced officers of the sheriff's force here with the finding of a complete skeleton, wrapped in a half-rotted blanket and hidden in a haystack, about six miles west of here, by three youths hunting for rabbits. bits.

The skeleton apparently was that of a man about five feet seven inches tall, with small bones. The skull had been fractured in several places, according to the report of C. F. Konantz, coroner, who made an examination. He declared there was no doubt but that the man had been murdered four or five months ago.

A lumber jack shirt found about the skeleton also was in a decomposed condition. It furnished the only clue to the man's identity. The coroner said he believed the man was between 25 and 30 years old.

MOTHER, SON DIE AS AUTO CRASHES INTO FAST TRAIN NEAR THAYER, MO.

Sherman Rice of Caruthersville Instantly Killed When Frisco Passenger Train Hits Automobile

SEVERAL INJURED TOTS TAKEN TO WEST PLAINS

Car Driven by Springfield Woman Collides With Another Machine, Injuring Miss Elizabeth Roberts

TRAGEDY stalked through the Ozarks region yesterday when three persons were killed, five were critically injured, and two suffered painful cuts and bruises in a series of accidents at Thayer, West Plains and Hayti, Mo.

Two of the three accidents resulted when motor cars collided with Frisco passenger trains at Thayer and Hayti. The third caused painful injuries to a West Plains woman when she was struck by a motor car driven by a Springfield woman.

The dead are:

Mrs. May Parsons, 36, of Alton. Mo.
Ernest Parsons, her four-year-old son.

Sherman Rice, 58, of Caruthersville.

The injured all of Alton, are:

Herbert Parsons, 15.

Wesley Parsons, 14.

Newbird Parsons, 11.

Jewell Parsons, 7.

Laraine Parsons, 2.

Those suffering painful cuts and bruises:

Charles Parsons, 40, of Alton.

AUTO HITS TRAIN

Mrs. Parsons and her small son were instantly killed when the motor car in which they were riding collided with the engine of the fast south-bound Frisco Memphis express at Thayer, Mo., at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The five Parsons children are at Christa Hogan hospital, at West Plains, where physicians said last night their conditions were critical. Herbert, the oldest child, is not expected to live through the night. Al suffered severe wounds and perhaps fractured skull.

Mr. Parsons is painfully injured but his condition is not considered critical.

Rice, Caruthersville farmer, was killed instantly at noon when his automobile was struck by a north-bound Frisco passenger train at a Hayti, Mo., crossing. The car was dragged about 40 feet and demolished. He is survived by his wife and one child.

INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Miss Roberts suffered painful bruises when she was struck by a motor car driven by Mrs. Pearl Snowden, of Springfield. Mrs. Snowden was accompanied by Mrs. K. A. Roberts, also of Springfield.

Miss Roberts' condition is not serious. Mrs. Snowden and Mrs. Roberts were released by West Plains police after it was found Miss Roberts' condition was not serious.

The Parsons family, who live four miles west of Alton, were driving to Thayer. The accident occurred at the U. S. Highway No. 63 intersection of the Frisco railroad.

Parsons' story, told last night at Christa Hogan hospital, revealed he did not see the speeding passenger train until he was about to strike it.

There are four tracks at the intersection and he said box cars were at each side of the crossing, obscuring his view in either direction.

THOUGHT TRACK CLEAR

"I thought a switch engine was attached to the long string of box cars, but when I saw there was not, I decided to drive on through," Parsons said. I started my car, which is an old model Ford touring, and as I drove over the first track, where I could see the main line, I saw the train. My car struck it about half way between the front of the engine and the tender."

Parsons, Ernest, the boy killed, and Herbert, who is the most seriously injured, were riding in the front seat. Ernest was between his father and brother. Mrs. Parsons and the four children were in the rear seat.

The car was demolished. The mother and child were instantly killed. An A. L. Carr funeral company ambulance, of Thayer, rushed the injured to the offices of Doctors Cook and Barnes where emergency treatment was given. They then were taken in the Carr ambulance to West Plains where further treatment was given at Christa Hogan hospital.

Conductor A. W. Emery, of Springfield, who was in charge of the train, and Sam Cahill, engineer, said they did not see the motor car until too late to brake the rapidly moving southbound passenger.

An inquest probably will be conducted today at Thayer, A. L. Carr, Oregon county coroner, said last night.

Work of constructing a viaduct over the crossing already is under way. The highway commission has graded the road and only the structure remains to be built. The Frisco, at one time, asked the Oregon county court to do away with the crossing and reroute the road, but the court refused to do so. The crossing is considered one of the

Marshfield Mourns Death of Pioneers; Burial Rites Today

Special Dispatch to The Leader

MARSHFIELD, Mo., Dec. 29.—Webster county today mourns two of its prominent pioneer citizens who died Thursday and were buried today, one at the Marshfield cemetery and the other in the Osage cemetery near Marshfield.

Mrs. Elizabeth Onstott, 82, who had been born and reared in the vicinity of Marshfield, was the daughter of Henry King, the first sheriff of Webster county. Her father was also reputed to have been the first postmaster in the county.

The King family lived Webster county before Marshfield was given its name and before the county was actually organized in 1855. During those early days, Mr. King delivered mail to the residents in his neighborhood. When the county was organized he was made sheriff, a position he held for many years.

Mrs. Onstott's husband died almost 20 years ago and she lived from that time with her daughter, Mrs. Olivia Singer, at whose home she died. She is survived by three daughters and one son.

The other pioneer resident was William Calloway, 84, who died Thursday evening at his home, which is situated about 11 miles north of Marshfield. His father was an early Webster county preacher who organized the present Methodist M. E. church of Marshfield.

Mr. Calloway is survived by his wife, five daughters and two sons. He was buried today in the Marshfield cemetery.

Funeral services for both of these pioneers were conducted under direction of the McMahan Undertaking company of Marshfield.

The Waste Basket

These Wastes Are Often Tossed, Scrape Well Worth While

The Kansas City Star publishes this little story that was written several months ago:

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's secretary lives in the back hills of Southwestern Missouri. To reach him is difficult. You travel 14 miles over a trail that would be discouraging to a mountain goat. Then you cross over Bull's creek, stroll through a great sweep of green valley, and there you are at the village of Bluff. You might not suspect it, but Bluff, Mo., has a single store, three houses and a population of 16. You turn into the last of these houses, a modest gray cottage banked high with vines and approachable through half an acre of old-fashioned flowers.

And within you will find M. Harrison Strong, wartime secretary to Gen. U. S. Grant. Although Strong, like his great general, has habitually little to say, he admits that he would like to do his best at making right a few of the much-circulated fallacies which have so long hovered about the name of Grant.

"There is the saying that General Grant was a heavy drinker. Innumerable times I have been urged to substantiate the proposition that General Grant was a notorious drunkard. For almost three years I was with General Grant at all hours of day and night. I never once saw him take a drink of whisky and I never saw liquor of any kind either on his person or about his quarters."

Strong is the last surviving member of General Grant's private staff. He served in this capacity during the latter three years of the Civil war and with the leader during the course of his promotion from a minor brigade leader to supreme commander of the Union armies.

Strong left "the terrible jungle," so trying on the nerves of the correspondent and went to Arkansas where he died several months ago. While he resided at Bluff he was visited by many correspondents and magazine writers, including Hamlin Garland. Some of the writers have even attacked the old soldier and said there was no evidence he was on Grant's staff.

FOUND IN STREET. GEORGE CULLER'S STRANGE WOUNDS PUZZLE OFFICERS

Discovered Nearly Unconscious by Two Youths, Rushed To Hospital With Condition Critical

HOW HE WAS INJURED

Apparently Slugged and Putting Up Fight, Leaves Bloody Trail; Sleuths Unable to Develop Clues

CRITICALLY injured and bleeding profusely from severe lacerations of the head and left side of his face, George W. Culler, 908 North Jefferson avenue, former mayor of Springfield, was found leaning against the Queen City Woodworks and Lumber company building on Boonville avenue at 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Two youths who discovered him immediately crossed the street and reported their find to Glenn L. Miner, employe on duty at the Sayles Tire company, who called police headquarters. They reported to Miner that the injured man ran when they sought to help him and fell to the pavement at Boonville avenue and Court street.

PARTLY CONSCIOUS

Mr. Culler was in a half stupor when Mr. Miner went to him, but was able to give his telephone number. The tire company employee then called for a police ambulance took Mr. Culler to the Springfield Hospital.

It was first reported to the police that Mr. Culler had been injured by a fall on the pavement but examination by physicians at the hospital convinced the doctors that he either had been struck by a hit-and-run automobile driver or had been attacked by thugs.

VALUABLES NOT TAKEN

A large amount of blood marked the sidewalk where Mr. Culler was found and a red trail led to the point when he fell. Since no trace of blood could be found leading in any other direction, it seemed evident that he had been attacked by would-be robbers and left leaning against the building, bleeding and dazed. The attackers, however, probably were frightened away as Mr. Culler's watch and a small amount of money were still in his clothes when taken to the hospital.

An X-ray examination made by Dr. Wilbur Smith and Dr. Robert Glynn revealed that there was no fracture of the skull. The doctors were convinced, however, that his condition was critical. It was thought his left eye, over which there was a deep cut, might have been seriously injured.

STARTED TO BANQUET

Mr. Culler left his home about 8:40 o'clock Saturday night, after informing his wife he was going to attend a banquet of the Booster club at the Kentwood Arms hotel. The intersection where he was found is about six blocks north and two west of his home, in a direction opposite that which would have taken him to the hotel.

Marathon Dancer Will Wed Girl To Jazz Music at Benefit Dance

Program Will Be Staged At Clark's Hall to Help Stranded Contestants Out of Financial Straits

A benefit dance, to provide "moving on" funds for marathon dancers stranded in Springfield—will be staged by the dancers, trainers and other employees of the "staying awake contest," at Clark's hall Thursday night.

Mustering the strength of the small band of stranded marathoners, the dancers have planned a rousing program of entertainment, including six acts of vaudeville and a "jazz wedding" which will be given at intervals during the dance.

MARK TIME TO RITES

The jazz wedding—a ceremony which will be performed to the tune of a jazz band and with the dancers marking time while the rites are performed—will be the really big event. The wedding will climax a year's courtship of Harry "Slim" Bates, 28, of Joplin, and Bonnie Blackman, of Springfield beauty shop operator.

Bates, who says he is a veteran marathoner—with an even dozen to his credit—with Ralph Welborn and Roy White, two other contestants for the mythical $1500 prize, with Al Jolly, self styled "personality boy," are promoting the event.

OUSTED AS 'AGITATOR'

Bates was disqualified when he was charged with "agitating" after 312 hours on the floor. Following the walk out of the contestants he filed attachment suits against the promoters' motor cars for a total of $600, charging he had been fraudulently disqualified. He also is on bond pending hearing on charges of threatening violence to the life of one of the promoters.

The future Mrs. Bates, Miss Blackman, lives near Springfield on route 4.

Charles M. Bootman, justice of the peace, will perform the ceremony, and Burch's Clark hall orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.
